PREAMBLE

Read aloud at the naming of every child, at the seating of every Mayor, and at the opening of every school year, that none may say they did not know why they live as they live.

The world above is poison, and the world below is ours to keep. This is the whole of what our forebears left us to remember, and it is enough. Beyond that single fact, this Pact does not ask any citizen to hold the old world in mind at all — neither to mourn it nor to picture it nor to wonder after it — for such wondering has never once led anywhere good, and the Pact exists, before it exists to do anything else, to keep us from wandering there.

We are told, and it is sufficient to be told, that the air outside once turned against the people who breathed it, and that in the turning, nearly everything that had been built was lost. What remained of the builders' foresight was this: a shaft sunk deep into the earth, sealed against the poison above, stocked and engineered to hold generations of the living long enough for the world to heal, if it ever will. We do not know how long that healing will take. We are not to guess. Guessing has its own poison, and it moves faster underground than any vapor moves above.

The silo is not a shelter merely. It is a vessel with a hull, and a hull cannot be pierced in one place without the whole of it taking on water. Every rule that follows in this Pact — on birth, on labor, on speech, on punishment — exists to keep that hull whole for as many turns of the generations as it takes. We ask each citizen to hold this thought above all others: that the silo does not merely contain your life, it is the only reason you have one to live, and every citizen after you depends on your keeping of these laws exactly as every citizen before you depended on the keeping of them by others, most of whom you will never know by name, all of whom kept the silo alive so that you might stand here reading this. A citizen who keeps this Pact in full is sound, in the same word and the same sense a wall or a seal is sound, and the silo's whole endurance is nothing more, and nothing less, than the sum of so many sound citizens as it can keep.

This is a Pact, and a Pact is a thing agreed to by more than one party.

It is not handed down from a single hand, though it is set down by many hands together, to be amended in Assembly, argued over in Judicial, and tested against whatever winters of scarcity and years of grief the silo's generations must yet bear. It binds the Mayor no less than it binds the porter who carries her messages, the Head of Information Technology no less than the child not yet given a name. No officer of this silo, however seated, stands above it. Where any part of this Pact is silent, the silence is not permission; it is a gap to be carried to Judicial, and not filled by any one person's will.

We set down four founding truths, and every Article that follows serves one or more of them.

First, that the silo's people must go on, generation after generation, in numbers the silo can feed, warm, and air — no more, for the silo does not forgive a burden it cannot carry, and no fewer, for a silo that dwindles is a silo that dies alone. This is the whole reason for the lottery and for every law of birth and household that follows from it.

Second, that the silo's work must go on — the growing of food, the turning of the generator, the cleaning of the water, the keeping of the air — and that this work is not beneath any citizen and is owed by every citizen, in the place the silo's own methods of testing and shadowing determine each is best suited to give it. No family, no floor, no trade stands higher than another in the sight of this Pact, whatever any resident may privately believe about the floor above or below.

Third, that the silo's peace must go on. We are too many, packed too closely, with too little room to run from one another, to survive our own quarrels unrestrained. Every law of conduct, of property, of marriage, of dispute, and of punishment set down here exists only to keep neighbor from turning on neighbor, and floor from turning on floor, in a hull that cannot afford the turning.

Fourth, and hardest, that the silo's mind must go on. The old world is gone, and the wanting of it is a sickness that has taken good men and women both, quietly at first and then all at once. This Pact does not pretend such wanting can be legislated out of the heart. It only insists that it be kept out of the mouth, off the walls, and away from the young, so that longing does not become teaching, and teaching does not become a whole floor's grief, and a whole floor's grief does not become the silo's end. Where this Pact is sternest, it is sternest here, and it does not apologize for that.

Let it also be said, for it is said too rarely: this Pact is not cruelty dressed as order. It is written by people who have buried their own dead and will raise their own children beneath its rule, and every hard clause in it is hard-won by someone's hard year, present or yet to come. It changes, by the lawful means set down in its final Article, when the silo's Assembly and its Mayor and its Judicial agree that it must, and it will change again, and again after that, for as long as the silo stands. What it does not do, and must never do, is disappear — for a silo with no Pact is not a silo with more freedom, only a silo with no floor beneath its feet.

Keep it, then, not because you were told to, but because you have read, here, exactly why.

OF THE FOUNDING AND PURPOSE OF THE SILO

In which is set down what every citizen is owed to know of why the silo stands, and to what end this Pact is written.

SECTION 1. THE RECITATION OF THE FOUNDING

It is recorded, and shall be taught to every child before their eighth naming-day, that the air above was made poison to breathing things, and that in the time of that poisoning a great work was completed just in time to save some remnant of the people who built it: a shaft driven far down into the earth, sealed at its head, provisioned and engineered to keep its people fed, watered, warmed, and aired for longer than any single life, and longer, if need be, than any single family's memory of the ones who came before.

The recitation is this, and is taught in these words and no others:

The air above was made poison, and it is poison still. The people who saw it coming built this place beneath the ground, and sealed it, and provisioned it, and set within it everything a people needs to live: water to drink and air to breathe, light and warmth, ground to grow food in, and a stair to join it all. They gave it laws, and they gave it to us. We do not know their names, and we do not need to. We know what they built, because we stand in it. We keep it whole, because it keeps us. We do not go outside, because outside is death, and the wallscreen shows us so. This is the founding, and this is all of it, and a citizen who knows this knows enough.

- (a) The air above is poisoned, and the silo stands sealed and provisioned to outlast the poison itself. This Pact is written to govern the silo so long as it stands and citizens dwell within it. No citizen is required to know more of the founding than this.

- (b) The precise manner of the poisoning above, the number and names of the founders, and the full account of the silo's building are not restated in full here. What a citizen is owed is this: that the silo was built in earnest, by people who meant for it to last, and that it will last only so long as those who come after keep faith with what they are given.
- (c) No citizen is required to believe more of the founding than is here recorded, and no citizen shall be made to suffer for professing ignorance of any detail beyond it. A citizen shall suffer, however, for inventing detail beyond it and teaching that invention to others as though it were known fact; see Article 16, Section 3.

SECTION 2. THE PURPOSE AND SUPREMACY OF THIS PACT

This Pact is the whole of the silo's public law. It governs every floor, every trade, and every citizen from the Up Top to the Down Deep, without exception of birth, office, or seniority.

- (a) Where this Pact speaks plainly, no local custom, floor tradition, or departmental rule may contradict it. Where this Pact is silent, a matter shall be carried to Judicial for a ruling, and that ruling shall thereafter bind as though it were written here, until such time as the Assembly amends this Pact directly under Article 23.
- (b) This Pact binds the Mayor, the Sheriff, the Head of every Department, and every appointed or elected officer of the silo exactly as it binds any other citizen. No office excuses its holder from any duty or punishment set down in this Pact, save where an Article expressly grants an officer some further power in the conduct of that office, and then only for so long as the office is held.
- (c) This Pact shall be kept in printed form in the Judicial archive, in the office of the Mayor, in the Sheriff's station, and in no fewer than one copy per twenty floors, placed in a hall or landing where any citizen may read it freely and without charge. No citizen may be denied sight of this Pact for any reason.
- (d) Ignorance of this Pact excuses no violation of it, save where this Pact itself provides a warning or grace as the first measure of correction, as in Article 17.

SECTION 3. THE STRUCTURE OF THE SILO

The silo is built of one hundred and forty-four levels, joined by a single spiral stair at its center, and by no other common passage between floors save the freight lift reserved to Supply and Mechanical under Article 9.

- (a) The uppermost levels, known to all as the Up Top, hold the cafeteria and its great wallscreen, the offices of the Mayor and Deputy Mayor, the station of the Sheriff, the Department of Judicial, and the classrooms of the young.
- (b) The levels beneath, extending through the greater body of the silo and known together as the Mids — the uppermost of them, by their numbers, as the Mid Thirties — hold the bulk of the silo's housing, its markets, its hydroponic farms, its infirmary, and the trades that serve the whole of the silo's daily life.
- (c) The lowest levels, known to all as the Down Deep, hold Mechanical, the generator, water treatment, the workings of Mines, and the deep storage of the silo's reserves.
- (d) No citizen shall dig, bore, blast, or otherwise open any passage through floor, ceiling, or wall not already provided by the silo's builders, save under direct order of the Head of Mechanical acting within Article 9, and no such order may be given without the joint knowledge of the Mayor. This prohibition stands regardless of purpose, curiosity, need, or claimed emergency.
- (e) The stairwell belongs to every citizen equally and shall not be blocked, gated, or reserved to any floor, trade, or person, save for the passage of a work crew under posted notice and for no longer than the work requires.

SECTION 4. THE SENSORS AND THE WALLSCREEN

The silo maintains, at its uppermost level, a wallscreen upon which is shown, without interruption, the view of the world above as it is gathered by the silo's outward sensors.

- (a) This display stands as a plain reminder of the reason the silo exists and the reason its laws are kept, and it is not to be covered, shuttered, or switched dark for any purpose save the maintenance described below.

- (b) The upkeep, cleaning, and repair of the outward sensors is a duty of the Department of Information Technology, exercised under such further procedure as that Department alone is instructed in. This Pact does not set down that procedure here, for it is not a matter of ordinary citizenship; it is enough for every citizen to know that the image shown is kept as true as it can be kept, at real cost, by real hands.
- (c) No citizen may tamper with, obstruct camera access to, or attempt private repair of the outward sensors. This is treated, without exception, as among the gravest offenses under Article 17.

SECTION 5. THE CITIZEN BOUND

Every person born within the silo, and every person who has taken the citizen's oath before Judicial upon reaching their majority, is a citizen for every purpose of this Pact, and remains so for the whole of their life, in every floor they are assigned to and every trade they are called to serve.

- (a) Citizenship is not sold, inherited as property, or transferred. It is a standing each person holds directly under this Pact, from naming to death.
- (b) A citizen's obligations under this Pact do not lessen with age, save where an Article expressly provides for the treatment of children or of the retired, as in Article 13 and Article 19.

SECTION 6. THE TERMS THIS PACT USES

Certain words are used throughout this Pact in one fixed sense, and are set down here that no Article need define them again and no citizen mistake them.

Citizen. Every person born within the silo, and every person who has sworn the oath under Article 2; a citizen from naming to death, whatever office, sentence, or standing the citizen holds between.

Ward. A citizen not yet of majority, held to the duties of a citizen of their years but without standing to swear, to petition Judicial, to enter the lottery, to speak in Assembly, or to hold office; a ward is of a household, or, where the household is broken, of the silo under Article 3.

Majority. The standing a citizen reaches upon the sixteenth naming-day, and holds thereafter.

Naming-day. The day a citizen's name was entered in the rolls under Article 2, and every yearly return of it; every age this Pact names is reckoned from it, and not from the day of birth.

Household. The citizens lodged together in one dwelling under Article 14 by marriage, by a sanctioned relationship, by birth, by the taking-in of kin or a ward, or by Housing's assignment; a household draws its ration together and answers together for its dwelling.

Day. One turning of the silo's own clock, by which every hour this Pact names is kept.

Cycle. Ten days. Wherever this Pact gives a citizen or an office ten days, it gives one cycle.

Rest day. The tenth day of each cycle, on which no labor is owed save what the works of Article 9, the workings of Article 10, the farms of Article 11, the Infirmary, and the keeping of the peace cannot leave untended; a citizen whose trade takes the rest day is given another in the same cycle.

Season. Nine cycles. A turn of the season is the day one season ends and the next begins.

Year. Four seasons. This Pact reckons years only forward from an event it names — a naming-day, a confirmation, a sentence — and never from the founding.

The rolls. The record of every living citizen kept by Judicial under Article 2; the count of the rolls is the silo's population for every purpose of this Pact.

The archive. The Judicial archive under Article 6 and Article 21, in which every record this Pact requires is kept and from which none is removed.

Office. Any of the following, and no other: the Mayor, the Deputy Mayor, the Judge, the Sheriff, and the Head of each Department this Pact establishes. An officer is a citizen holding an office, or a citizen acting under an office's direct charge — an Officer of Judicial, a Deputy or Peacekeeper of the Sheriff — for the purposes of Article 16, Section 7.

Department. Mechanical, Mines, Supply, Information Technology, Judicial, and the Infirmary, each under its Head, save that Judicial is under the Judge and the Infirmary under the Head Physician.

The works. The generator, the works of water and air, and the labor of reclamation under Article 9, taken together.

The workings. The mines below the Down Deep under Article 10.

The stair. The single spiral stair of Section 3, together with every landing upon it.

Up Top, the Mids, the Down Deep. The three zones of Section 3, marked by the work done in them and not by any fixed count of levels; the Mid Thirties are the uppermost levels of the Mids, where Information Technology keeps its offices.

Trade. Any labor a citizen is assigned to under Article 13; a master is a citizen confirmed in a trade who teaches it; a shadow is the citizen learning it under a master.

Sanctioned. Individually approved, for one citizen and one thing — a relic, an animal, a relationship — by the office this Pact names, and revocable by it.

Licensed. Permitted by Information Technology under Article 8 to a named citizen for a named instrument or use, recorded, and revocable.

Relic. Any object, writing, device, or likeness from before the silo's sealing, or bearing upon its making or the world above, as Article 16 provides; a restricted instrument is a thing Article 16, Section 5 names, whenever made.

Grace. The formal warning that answers a citizen's first offense under Article 17; the mines and the cleaning are the two further measures of that Article.

The gravest. Those offenses Article 17, Section 4 names, and no other, answered by cleaning alone.

The measure. The device fitted to every citizen against conception under Article 3.

The Assembly present. At any vote, the count of citizens who voted, in the hall or by a floor count added under Article 20, and no larger count.

The green list. The protocol of emergency measures kept under Article 22, which this Pact names and does not print.

ARTICLE 2

OF CITIZENSHIP AND THE CENSUS

In which is set down how a citizen is named, how a citizen comes into full standing, and how the silo keeps account of its own numbers, that none may be forgotten and none counted twice.

SECTION 1. THE STANDING OF A CITIZEN

Citizenship, as Article 1 sets down, belongs to every person born within the silo and to every person who has taken the citizen's oath before Judicial upon reaching majority. This section and those that follow set down how that standing is entered, kept, and closed.

- (a) Majority is reached upon a citizen's sixteenth naming-day.
- (b) A citizen not yet of majority is a ward of the household or floor to which they are assigned, and holds every duty this Pact lays upon a citizen of their years, but not the standing to swear before Judicial, to enter the lottery under Article 3, to speak in Assembly under Article 20, or to hold office.
- (c) No citizen may be stripped of citizenship for any cause. A citizen may be sent to cleaning under Article 18, or otherwise punished under Article 17, but remains a citizen, named in the rolls, until death is recorded under Section 5.

SECTION 2. THE NAMING OF CHILDREN

A child born without the lottery's grant under Article 3 is not thereby refused a name or entry into the rolls, but the citizens responsible for that birth are answerable under Article 17.

- (a) Every child shall be named and entered into the rolls within ten days of birth, in a naming recorded by Judicial and attested by the delivering physician or midwife.

- (b) A child's naming-day is reckoned from the day of naming, not the day of birth, and every observance this Pact ties to a naming-day — schooling under Article 15, majority under this Article, testing and shadowing under Article 13 — is reckoned from it.
- (c) A child not named within ten days of birth shall be named regardless, upon inquiry by Judicial, and no delay in naming shortens or lengthens any citizen's later years of majority, testing, or retirement.

SECTION 3. THE CITIZEN'S OATH

Upon a citizen's sixteenth naming-day, that citizen shall present before Judicial and swear the citizen's oath: to keep this Pact, to bear the labor given, and to hold the silo's peace above their own — the same oath every citizen before them has sworn, without exception, since the first citizen stood where they now stand, and the same oath every citizen after them will swear in turn.

- (a) A citizen who cannot present for the oath by reason of illness, distance of floor, or the press of labor may swear it before a deputy of Judicial sent for that purpose, but no citizen's majority is delayed beyond one turn of the season for want of the ceremony alone.
- (b) The oath once sworn is not sworn again, whatever office a citizen later holds or loses.

SECTION 4. THE KEEPING OF THE ROLLS

Judicial shall keep, for every living citizen, a roll recording that citizen's name, naming-day, floor and household of assignment, and trade, and shall issue to every citizen of majority an occupant card bearing the same, to be shown when Judicial, the Sheriff, Housing, or Supply require it.

- (a) Housing, Supply, and every Head of Department shall report to Judicial, within ten days, any change to a citizen's floor, household, or trade, that the rolls may be kept current; Judicial is not charged to seek out such changes on its own account, and relies upon these reports being made in good faith.
- (b) The full count of the rolls, and no other number, is the silo's population for every purpose of this Pact, including the granting of a lottery under Article 3 and the setting of the ration under Article 11.
- (c) A citizen who believes the rolls to record them in error may petition Judicial for correction; Judicial's finding on such a petition is final.

SECTION 5. DEATH AND THE CLOSING OF A NAME

A citizen's name is entered in the rolls at naming and closed in the rolls at death, and it is this closing, and no other event, that opens a place in the lottery under Article 3.

- (a) A citizen's death shall be recorded by Judicial upon the attestation of a physician under Article 19, or, where a citizen is sent to cleaning under Article 18, upon the word of the Department of Information Technology that the sensors were kept.
- (b) No citizen may be recorded as dead while living, nor as living while dead, and a citizen found to have made a false attestation under this section is treated among the gravest offenses under Article 17.
- (c) A death suspected by the attending physician to have come by the citizen's own hand, and not sought and granted under Article 18, shall not be closed upon the physician's attestation alone, but shall be carried to Judicial for a finding under Article 6 before the name is closed.

SECTION 6. THE CEREMONY OF THE OATH

The oath under Section 3 is sworn once, aloud, before witnesses, and in fixed words; this section sets down the manner of it.

- (a) A citizen presents for the oath on the citizen's sixteenth naming-day, or on the first posted sitting of Judicial under Article 6 thereafter, in the hall of Judicial, or before a deputy of Judicial sent to the citizen's floor where Section 3 allows; the citizen's household attends where it will, and the citizen's teacher under Article 15 where the teacher can climb.
- (b) Before the oath is sworn, the Clerk of Judicial reads aloud the entry of the citizen's final examination under Article 15, Section 10, and the citizen's name, naming-day, floor, household, and the trade or shadowing the citizen enters under Article 13, and asks the citizen whether each is true; a thing the citizen says is not true is entered as disputed and carried to the rolls for correction under Section 4, and the oath is sworn regardless.
- (c) The oath is sworn in these words and no others, the citizen standing, the Clerk or deputy reading each line and the citizen speaking it after: I am [the citizen's name], of [the citizen's floor and household]. I will keep this Pact. I will bear the labor given me. I will hold the silo's peace above my own. I swear it before Judicial, as every citizen before me has sworn, and as every citizen after me will swear.

- (d) The Clerk enters the oath in the rolls with the day, the place, and the witnesses, and gives the citizen the occupant card under Article 21 in the same hour; the citizen is of majority from the entry, and every standing this Pact gives a citizen of majority is the citizen's from that hour.
- (e) A citizen who will not speak the oath is not of majority and is not forced; the Clerk enters the refusal, the citizen remains a ward of the household under Section 1, and the citizen may present again at any later sitting. A ward of eighteen naming-days who has not sworn is carried before the Judge, who hears the ward and the household and rules whether the ward is fit to swear, or is to remain a ward of the silo under Article 3 in the Infirmary's keeping under Article 19.

SECTION 7. THE RECONCILING OF THE ROLLS

The rolls are fed by many hands under Section 4, and once in every year the hands are compared with one another.

- (a) At the turn of the season the Judge names, Housing under Article 14, Supply under Article 11, the Infirmary under Article 19, the schools under Article 15, and the Head of every Department deliver to the Clerk of Judicial their own rolls of the citizens in their keeping — the households and their dwellings, the drawings of the ration by name, the births and deaths attended, the children enrolled, the citizens assigned to each trade — as those rolls stand on that day.
- (b) The Clerk and the archivist compare each delivered roll against the rolls of citizenship, name by name, and enter every difference found: a citizen in one roll and not another, a floor or household or trade entered differently, a name closed in one and open in another.
- (c) A difference is resolved upon the report of the office whose roll is the latest in its entry, and the rolls of citizenship corrected to it under Section 4; Judicial is not charged to seek out the citizen concerned, nor to inquire beyond the reports, and relies upon them as Section 4 provides. A difference the reports themselves cannot resolve is entered as open, and the citizen's occupant card under Article 21 is called in and compared.

- (d) The count of differences found, and of those left open, is entered in the archive and reported by the Judge to the Mayor and read at the next sitting of the Assembly under Article 20, without the names.

SECTION 8. THE COUNT OF THE ROLLS

The number this Pact turns upon is a number, and is read as one.

- (a) At every turn of the season, the Clerk of Judicial counts the names in the rolls not closed under Section 5, and enters the count with the day, the names entered since the last count, and the names closed; the count is delivered the same day to the Mayor and to the Head of Supply, and the ration under Article 11 and the lottery under Article 3 are reckoned from it and from no other number until the next.
- (b) A name neither closed nor confirmed by any report under Section 4 within the year — a citizen no office has entered in any roll delivered under Section 7 — stands open in the count, and is counted, until Judicial has inquired of the household and the floor and either confirmed or closed it; a name so open is reported to the Sheriff, who seeks the citizen.
- (c) The count is read aloud at the ordinary sitting of the Assembly under Article 20 with the reckoning of the stores, and any citizen may ask the Clerk the count at the door of Judicial on any posted day.

OF MARRIAGE, THE LOTTERY, AND THE RIGHT OF BIRTH

In which is set down the marriage bond, the lottery by which the silo permits the bearing of children, and the right of every citizen to petition to be a parent, subject to the silo's need to preserve its population in balance.

SECTION 1. THE MARRIAGE BOND

A marriage is a partnership of two citizens, contracted before Judicial and entered into the rolls under Article 2, by which the two citizens become a household unit and are bound to each other and to the silo in such further duties as this Pact sets down. The marriage bond is the ordinary form by which two citizens declare their commitment to share labor, resources, and, where the lottery permits, the bearing and raising of children. It asks of each party a constancy the silo itself depends upon no less than it depends on breath and water: a household divided against itself cannot be trusted to raise a child in the silo's peace, and a silo built of divided households cannot be trusted to keep its own.

- (a) A marriage is dissolved only by the death of one of the parties, or by mutual petition granted by Judicial under such terms as Judicial finds just. A marriage dissolved remains entered in the Judicial archive, and does not erase the citizenship rolls of either party.
- (b) Two citizens may petition to be married before Judicial; Judicial shall not refuse such a petition save where one of the parties is already married or is a ward unable to consent under Article 2.
- (c) A marriage entered creates no obligation of children; the marriage bond stands as a household association alone, until and unless the partners petition the lottery under Section 2.
- (d) Housing shall accommodate married couples as married persons under Article 14, allocating housing by the partnership's size and needs rather than counting the two as separate residents.

SECTION 2. THE LOTTERY FOR CHILDREN

The silo's population must remain within the bounds set by the silo's stores and the capacity of its Departments to provide for all its citizens. To this end, the bearing of children is governed by a lottery held once yearly: citizens may petition to bear a child, and the lottery selects from among the petitioners such number as the silo's population can sustain.

- (a) Any citizen, whether married or unmarried, or any partnership of two citizens married under Section 1, may petition to the lottery to be granted the right to bear a child. A petition shall name the petitioner, or both petitioners, and the intended bearing parent, if different.
- (b) The lottery is drawn by Judicial, with the Mayor and the Head of Supply present, once yearly. The number of slots granted is the number of names closed in the rolls under Article 2 since the last drawing, and no more; the Mayor, in consultation with the Head of Supply and the Heads of other Departments, may set the number lower where the silo's stores or the capacity of its Departments for the coming year, weighed against the census under Article 2, require it, but may not set it higher.
- (c) A citizen granted a slot in the lottery receives the right to bear a child, and the measure fitted under Section 7 is quieted for such time as permits one conception and bearing. The window for conception shall be no fewer than three seasons and no longer than one full year, at the direction of the Infirmary under Article 19.
- (d) A citizen who wins the lottery may gift or transfer the right to bear a child to a spouse, a sibling, or another citizen of their household, provided Judicial approves the transfer; such a transfer does not require the recipient to be married or partnered.
- (e) No citizen shall be compelled to bear a child, and the winning of a lottery slot does not obligate the winner to use it. A slot not used within the window of conception shall be forfeited, and the citizen's birth-control measure shall be re-activated.

SECTION 3. THE RIGHT OF BIRTH AND THE WINDOW OF CONCEPTION

A citizen granted the lottery's right to bear a child must do so within the window of conception granted; outside this window, the child-bearing is unlicensed and unsanctioned. A child born within the window and properly attested shall be named and entered in the rolls under Article 2 as a full citizen.

- (a) A child conceived within the lottery window and born to a citizen holding the lottery right shall be named and entered in the census by Judicial within ten days of birth, exactly as any other citizen is named.
- (b) A child born to a citizen who did not win the lottery, or born outside the window of conception granted, is still a citizen and shall be named and entered in the rolls; but the citizen or citizens responsible for the child's birth are answerable under Article 17, as set down in Section 4.
- (c) The Infirmary shall keep, for every citizen of bearing age, a record of the citizen's birth-control status and the dates of any lottery window granted. These records are kept in the Judicial archive under Article 6 and are available to Judicial for verification.

SECTION 4. UNSANCTIONED CHILDREN AND THE ANSWERING FOR UNLICENSED BIRTH

A child conceived and borne without the lottery's sanction is no less a citizen than any other; the child receives full standing, a name, and entry in the census. But the adult or adults responsible for the child's conception are answerable under Article 17 for the breach of the silo's population law.

- (a) The citizen or citizens responsible for an unsanctioned child's conception shall be determined by Judicial, taking evidence from the child's birth records, from the parent or parents, and from any other source; once responsibility is assigned, those citizens are answerable under Article 17.
- (b) The bearing of an unsanctioned child does not prevent a citizen from petitioning the lottery in future years; a citizen who has borne an unsanctioned child and is later granted a lottery slot may use it for a sanctioned bearing.
- (c) No child born outside the lottery shall be treated differently from any other citizen in the silo's law, ration, housing, or any other respect. The penalty falls upon the responsible adult or adults, not upon the child.

SECTION 5. THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE LOTTERY

The lottery is held once yearly, its slots are announced, and the process is kept in the Judicial archive under Article 6. The lottery is a matter of great consequence to every citizen, and transparency is the guard against favoritism or secret manipulation.

- (a) The lottery shall be drawn in the Assembly under Article 20, or at such place as the Assembly determines, and any citizen may witness the drawing. The names of the winners shall be announced publicly and entered in the Judicial archive.
- (b) A citizen who believes the lottery was conducted unfairly may petition Judicial for a ruling; Judicial may order the lottery re-drawn if sufficient cause is found.
- (c) The slots granted by the lottery are the sole means by which a citizen's birth-control measure may be deactivated. No other authority — not the Mayor, not a Department head, not Judicial itself — may order such deactivation.
- (d) A citizen denied a lottery slot may petition again in following years without penalty; the lottery is held once yearly without exception, and no citizen is permanently barred from petitioning.

SECTION 6. THE DUTY TO MAINTAIN THE POPULATION

The silo's survival depends on its population remaining stable across the generations. The lottery is the mechanism by which this balance is struck: a death opens a place, and a birth fills it, and the silo is neither more nor fewer for the exchange. This balance is not a cruelty, but the silo's means of keeping every citizen fed and the works of the silo in motion for generations to come.

- (a) No citizen is deprived of the chance to bear a child by this Article alone; only the timing is constrained. Citizens who are denied slots in one year may petition in the next, and the lottery is held without fail, every year, for so long as the silo stands.
- (b) The capacity of the silo to support children is weighed by the Mayor and the Heads of Departments against the census; as the silo's stores shrink or its Departments contract, the number of lottery slots may be held below the number of names closed since the last drawing, but it may never be set above that number. The Mayor shall announce the year's slot count before the lottery is drawn.

SECTION 7. THE FITTING AND KEEPING OF THE MEASURE

Every citizen bears, from before the age at which a child might conceive or beget, a measure fitted by the Infirmary against conception, that no child be born to the silo but by the lottery's grant. The measure is the silo's and not the citizen's; it is fitted, kept, quieted, and restored by the Infirmary alone, and this Pact treats it as it treats the ration and the dwelling: a thing every citizen carries alike, and none by choice.

- (a) The Infirmary shall fit the measure to every child before the twelfth naming-day, or at such earlier age as the Head Physician judges the child's growth to require, and shall enter the fitting in the child's record under Article 19. The child's household shall be told the day of the fitting, and the child shall be told what the measure is and why it is carried, in the words of this section and no others.
- (b) The fitting is among the treatments this Pact compels under Article 19, Section 1, and neither the child nor the household may refuse it; a household that withholds a child from the fitting is answerable under Article 17 as for withholding a child from schooling under Article 15.
- (c) The measure is quieted only upon a lottery's grant under Section 2, by a Physician, for the window that Section provides, and is restored at the window's end whether or not a child was conceived; the Physician enters both the quieting and the restoring upon the citizen's record.
- (d) A measure found to have failed, whether by the Infirmary's own examination or by the bearing of a child without a grant, is reported to Judicial upon the Form Article 19 provides. Where the failure is the measure's own and not the citizen's doing, Judicial's finding under Section 4 shall say so, and the citizens concerned are not answerable under Article 17 for the birth, though the child is entered in the rolls as any other and the place it fills is counted against the next drawing.
- (e) No citizen may remove, disable, or attempt the quieting of a measure, the citizen's own or another's, save a Physician acting under this section; to do so is to take the lottery's grant without the lottery, and is answerable under Article 17 exactly as standing responsible for a birth without the grant.

SECTION 8. THE SANCTIONING OF A RELATIONSHIP AND THE MAKING OF A HOUSEHOLD

Two citizens who keep company with the intent of a shared household, and are not yet married under Section 1, may declare that intent before Judicial, and Judicial shall enter it in the rolls as a sanctioned relationship. The declaration binds neither citizen to marriage, and may be withdrawn by either before Judicial at any time.

- (a) A sanctioned relationship is entered in the rolls under Article 2 and reported to Housing under Article 14, that the two citizens may be lodged as one household where Housing's stores allow; two citizens lodged as one household without a declaration under this section or a marriage under Section 1 are lodged unsanctioned, and Housing shall lodge them apart upon discovering it.
- (b) A sanctioned relationship confers no standing in the lottery beyond a citizen's own; two citizens so sanctioned petition the lottery under Section 2 as any citizen petitions.
- (c) The declaration asks nothing of the two citizens beyond their names. Judicial neither inquires into nor records the reason for it, nor for its withdrawal, and no citizen is answerable under this Pact for keeping company undeclared, save as this section provides for lodging; though Judicial may, where a birth without the grant is in question under Section 4, take the fact of a relationship undeclared into its finding of who stands responsible.
- (d) A citizen already married under Section 1 may not declare a relationship under this section with another, nor may a ward under Article 2 declare one at all.

SECTION 9. THE WIDOWED, THE ORPHANED, AND THE DUTIES OF KIN

A household is the silo's smallest keeping, and what a household cannot keep the silo must. This section sets down what falls to kin when a household is broken by death, by the mines, or by the cleaning, and what falls to the silo when kin cannot bear it.

- (a) Upon the death of a married citizen, the surviving partner keeps the household's dwelling until Housing under Article 14 reassigns it by the household's new size, and no reassignment shall be made within one turn of the season of the death save at the survivor's own asking.

- (b) A child whose household is broken by the death, the sentencing, or the cleaning of every adult in it is a ward of the silo under Article 2, and shall be placed by Judicial with kin who will take the child, or, failing kin, with a household of the same floor that petitions for the child, or, failing both, in the keeping of the nursery and school under Article 15 until majority. A child so placed carries the child's own ration under Article 11 into the household that takes them.
- (c) The household of a citizen sentenced to the mines keeps its dwelling and its ration for the term, less the sentenced citizen's own share, and the sentenced citizen's kin are not answerable for the offense; the same holds for the household of a citizen sent to clean, as Article 18 provides.
- (d) A citizen who takes in a widowed parent, an orphaned kin, or a kin retired under Article 19 may petition Housing for quarters enlarged to the household's new size, and Housing shall weigh such a petition before any petition for a change of quarters made for preference alone.
- (e) No kin is bound by this Pact to take in another, and no citizen is answerable for declining; but a citizen who has taken in kin or a ward, and turns them out without notice to Housing and to Judicial, is answerable under Article 17, the place of that kin in the rolls having been set by the taking-in.

SECTION 10. THE NAMING

A citizen's life in this Pact begins not at birth but at naming, and the naming is a thing done before the silo and entered in its rolls, not a thing a household does for itself alone.

- (a) Within ten days of a birth, the child's household shall bring the child before the Clerk of Judicial, or before a deputy of Judicial sent to the household's floor for the purpose, together with the physician or midwife who attended the birth. The household speaks the name it has chosen; the physician or midwife attests the birth, the day of it, and the name of the citizen who bore the child; and the Clerk enters the name, the day of naming, the household, and the floor in the rolls under Article 2.
- (b) A child bears a given name of the household's choosing, and after it the household name of the citizen who bore the child, or of the married partner of that citizen where the household so chooses at the naming; a household name once entered is not changed save by marriage under Section 1, and then only at the citizen's own asking.

- (c) A child may be given the name of any citizen living or dead, and no name is reserved to any floor, trade, or office; but a child may not be given a name the Clerk finds to be no name at all, or to be a word this Pact forbids under Article 16, and the household shall choose again before the ten days are out.
- (d) The naming is read aloud by the Clerk at the next sitting of the Assembly under Article 20, with every other naming since the last, that the silo know who has come into it; and the Preamble of this Pact is read at the naming itself, as that Preamble provides, by the Clerk or the deputy, in the hearing of the household.
- (e) A child born to a citizen sent to clean, or serving a term in the mines, or dead before the naming, is named by the surviving household, or, where none survives, by Judicial, and is entered exactly as any other; the rolls do not record the manner of a parent's absence against a child's name.

SECTION 11. THE DISSOLUTION OF A MARRIAGE

A marriage is not lightly made in this Pact and is not lightly unmade; but a household that cannot hold together serves the silo worse divided under one roof than parted under two, and this Pact provides the parting.

- (a) Two married citizens who would part petition Judicial together under Section 1; where only one would part, that citizen petitions alone, and Judicial hears the other before ruling. Judicial grants the petition where it finds the household cannot be kept, and may refuse it, once, where it finds the parting sought in haste; a petition refused may be brought again after one turn of the season, and is not refused a second time.
- (b) Between the petition and the ruling, not less than one turn of the season passes, save where Judicial finds that one partner endangers the other, in which case Housing under Article 14 lodges them apart at once and the season runs regardless.
- (c) Upon dissolution, the dwelling is kept by the partner with whom the children of the household, if any, are placed under this section, or, where there are none, by the partner Housing under Article 14 finds the dwelling better suited to; the other is lodged anew by Housing within one cycle. The goods of the household are divided by the partners' own agreement entered with the Clerk, or, failing agreement, by Judicial's ruling, and the chits of each remain each's own under Article 12.

- (d) The children of a dissolved marriage are placed with one partner or the other by Judicial, weighing the children's years, the trade and floor of each partner, and the children's own wish where they are of an age to have one; the partner without the children may see them at such times as Judicial sets, and neither partner may be barred from a child's naming-day, schooling, or sickbed by the other.
- (e) A marriage dissolved does not undo a lottery's grant already given to the household, nor a child already conceived under it; a grant unused at the dissolution is forfeited, and the measure of each partner restored under Section 7.
- (f) Neither partner is answerable under Article 17 for the parting itself, and the dissolution is entered in the archive as a fact and not as a fault; but a partner who conceals from Judicial a matter bearing upon the placement of a child is answerable as for a false bringing under Article 17, Section 5.

SECTION 12. THE WARD AND THE HOUSEHOLD'S DUTY

A household that has a child has a duty the silo lends it and may take back.

- (a) A household owes a ward the drawing of the ward's ration under Article 11, a place in the household's dwelling, attendance at the schooling of Article 15, the care of the Infirmary under Article 19 when the ward is sick, and correction short of harm; and the household answers under Article 17 for a ward's grave breach of this Pact where the breach came of the household's own neglect.
- (b) A household that cannot or will not keep a ward — by the death or sentencing of its adults, by want, or by the household's own petition — shall say so to Judicial, and the ward is placed under Section 9 as a ward of the silo; a household that keeps a ward in name and abandons the ward in fact is answerable under Article 17 as for the neglect of assigned labor, the keeping of a ward being a labor the silo assigns.
- (c) A ward may be taken from a household by Judicial where the household is found, upon a report under Article 15, Section 7, or under Article 19, to have harmed the ward or to have kept the ward from schooling, from the Infirmary, or from the ration; the household is heard before the ward is taken, save where the danger to the ward will not wait, and the ward is placed under Section 9.

- (d) A ward of the silo placed with a household under Section 9 is that household's ward for every purpose of this section from the day of placing, and the household draws the ward's ration and answers for the ward exactly as for a child of its own.
- (e) The nursery and school under Article 15 that keeps a ward of the silo whom no household has taken stands as the ward's household for every purpose of this Pact, and the teacher who has charge of the ward brings the ward's matters before Judicial as Article 15 provides.

OF THE OFFICE OF MAYOR

In which is set down the office of the Mayor, the civilian head of the silo, and the powers by which this office governs in concert with Judicial and Assembly.

SECTION 1. THE OFFICE OF MAYOR

The silo is governed by a civilian Mayor, who stands as the highest executive authority of the silo, answerable to the Assembly under Article 20 and to the requirements of this Pact as set down in Article 1. The Mayor is chosen by election and confirmed into office through the process set down in Article 5. The Mayor resides and keeps the office in the Up Top, in the Mayor's chambers, alongside the office of the Deputy Mayor.

- (a) The Mayor is a citizen, subject to every duty this Pact lays upon any other citizen, save where an Article expressly grants the Mayor some further power or authority in the conduct of the office itself.
- (b) The Mayor holds office for a term of five years from confirmation, and continues in office until a successor is elected and confirmed under Article 5, an election being held as that term ends; a Mayor may stand again at the end of any term. Within a term the Mayor is removable by a vote of the Assembly as Article 20 provides.
- (c) In the absence or incapacity of the Mayor, the Deputy Mayor shall act as Mayor with all the powers of the office, for such time as the Mayor's absence continues, under Article 5.
- (d) The office of Mayor is barred to a citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, and vacated by it, as Article 13, Section 6 provides for every office of the silo; upon such a resignation the Deputy Mayor assumes the office under Article 5.

SECTION 2. THE MAYOR'S POWERS OF CONFIRMATION AND APPOINTMENT

The Mayor, in concert with this Pact and the Assembly, holds the power to confirm the heads of every Department and the single Judge who heads the Department of Judicial. The Sheriff is appointed by the Mayor alone, though the Mayor shall weigh the advice of those in and out of the Sheriff's own office. In all cases, the Mayor's judgment is final, and no other office may override such confirmation or appointment once given.

- (a) The Mayor confirms the Head of each Department — Mechanical, Information Technology, Supply, Mines, and all others established under this Pact — by written order, countersigned, where a recommendation was made, by the officer who made it, and filed in the Judicial archive under Article 6.
- (b) The appointment of the Sheriff is the sole discretion of the Mayor: the outgoing Sheriff may make a recommendation, and the Mayor shall hear it in good faith, but the Mayor is not bound by that recommendation and may appoint any citizen of majority, whether from within the Sheriff's office or without, as the Mayor sees fit.
- (c) The confirmation of the Judge is made jointly by the Mayor and the Assembly under Article 20; the Judge is confirmed once in lifetime and stands until death or removal by the Assembly.
- (d) No Mayor shall dismiss or remove a confirmed head of Department from office for cause of ordinary policy disagreement. Removal for cause requires a finding of Judicial that the head has violated the Pact or a major duty of the office; such findings are referred to the Assembly under Article 20 for final removal.

SECTION 3. THE MAYOR'S ORDERS AND EMERGENCY AUTHORITY

The Mayor may issue standing orders, written and filed in the Judicial archive, directing the conduct of the silo's ordinary affairs in concert with the heads of the relevant Departments. No order of the Mayor may contradict this Pact, nor may any standing order be given in secret — all orders are entered in the records that any citizen may examine under Article 6. In the event of emergency, the Mayor holds further powers, set down in Article 22.

- (a) An order of the Mayor takes effect when issued and is binding on the head of the named Department; a Department head who disputes an order may refer the matter to Judicial for a ruling, and the order does not bind until Judicial has ruled.

- (b) The Mayor may not order any act that would require citizens to violate the Pact, nor direct the commission of any offense under Article 17. A citizen ordered to break the Pact may refuse the order and refer the matter to Judicial under Article 6.
- (c) The Mayor may make promises or take oath-bound obligations on behalf of the silo as a whole — as, for example, the division of resources in a time of extreme shortage, or a standing obligation laid upon a Department beyond the term of the Mayor who laid it — only with the consent of the Assembly, given under Article 20.
- (d) The Mayor directs the use of the silo's major reserves — water, air, the generator's capacity, the stores of food — in ordinary times as Article 11 provides, the Head of Supply setting the ration under the Mayor's general approval; in emergency, Article 22 governs.

SECTION 4. THE MAYOR AND JUDICIAL

The Mayor and the Department of Judicial are co-equal in authority over the silo's law-making and law-executing functions, but with distinct roles: the Mayor commands the day-to-day operations and sets major policy; the Department of Judicial investigates offenses, tries accused citizens, and rules on the Pact's meaning when it is silent. Neither office may command the other in the exercise of this Pact-given power.

- (a) The Mayor may refer a matter to Judicial for a ruling if the Pact is silent, and Article 6's procedure applies to it.
- (b) The Judge may, by written order, direct the Mayor to enforce a Judicial finding or to comply with a ruling made under Article 6; the Mayor must obey such a written order or refer the dispute to the Assembly under Article 20.
- (c) A dispute between the Mayor and Judicial over interpretation of the Pact is adjudicated by the Assembly under Article 20, which may convene an extraordinary session to resolve it.
- (d) The Mayor's orders do not bind Judicial's investigative or charging decisions; Judicial may investigate and charge any citizen, including the Mayor, for any offense under Article 17 without the Mayor's leave or permission.

SECTION 5. THE MAYOR AND THE ASSEMBLY

The Mayor convenes the Assembly under Article 20 and sets its agenda, but does not control its votes or its business. The Mayor reports annually to the Assembly on the state of the silo. The Mayor may recommend amendments to this Pact under Article 23, and the Assembly may initiate amendments without the Mayor's consent.

- (a) The Mayor is answerable to the Assembly for the conduct of the silo's affairs, and the Assembly may question the Mayor on any matter of policy or resource management.
- (b) No standing order, appointment, or decision of the Mayor binds the Assembly, and any citizen or the Assembly itself may petition for an extraordinary sitting to revisit a mayoral decision.

SECTION 6. THE OFFICE OF DEPUTY MAYOR AND SUCCESSION

The Deputy Mayor is the second-highest office of the silo, charged with assisting the Mayor in the conduct of the office and with assuming the mayoralty should the Mayor die, become incapacitated, or be removed by the Assembly. The office of Deputy Mayor, the manner of the Deputy's own coming to it, and the whole order of succession are set down in full in Article 5, which this Article's other provisions bind exactly as they bind the Mayor's own office.

SECTION 7. THE FORGIVENESS HOLIDAY

The Mayor may declare a Forgiveness Holiday, of such duration and upon such notice as the Mayor sets, that a citizen holding a relic or restricted instrument or device forbidden under Article 16 may surrender it, in the manner that Article provides, without fear of answering for the mere keeping, making, or use of the thing surrendered.

- (a) A citizen who surrenders a relic or restricted instrument or device under Article 16 during a Forgiveness Holiday is not answerable under Article 17 for the keeping, making, or use of the thing surrendered. The thing itself is examined and classified exactly as any other surrendered relic under Article 16, and a thing classified among the gravest is destroyed or sealed as that Article provides, whatever grace is given the citizen who surrendered it.
- (b) This grace covers only the keeping, making, or use of the thing surrendered, and no other offense the surrender, or Judicial's examination of the thing surrendered, may bring to light; a citizen who surrenders a relic is answerable exactly as any other citizen for any other violation of this Pact the surrender reveals.

- (c) A Forgiveness Holiday declared under this section is announced to the whole silo before it begins, that no citizen surrender in ignorance of the grace being offered, and its ending is announced with equal notice; a thing surrendered after a Forgiveness Holiday has ended is answered under Article 17 exactly as though no holiday had been declared.
- (d) The Mayor may declare a Forgiveness Holiday at such interval, and for such cause, as the Mayor judges the silo's peace to require, and need not state more than the fact of its declaration and its duration.

OF THE DEPUTY MAYOR AND THE ORDER OF SUCCESSION

In which is set down the office of the Deputy Mayor and the manner by which the silo chooses its next Mayor, that the office may never stand vacant and the silo's governance may never pass into uncertainty.

SECTION 1. THE OFFICE OF DEPUTY MAYOR

The Deputy Mayor is the second-highest office of the silo, subordinate to the Mayor in ordinary times. The Deputy Mayor's duty is to assist the Mayor in the conduct of the office and to hold in readiness the knowledge and authority to assume the Mayoralty should the sitting Mayor become unable to serve. The Deputy Mayor is appointed by the Mayor and confirmed by the Assembly under Article 20, serves at the Mayor's pleasure and for no longer than the term of the Mayor who appointed the Deputy, and resides in the Up Top alongside the Mayor's chambers; a Mayor confirmed to a further term may appoint the same Deputy again.

- (a) The Deputy Mayor holds every duty of a citizen under this Pact and is subject to the same law as any other citizen, save where this Article or Article 4 expressly grants the Deputy some authority in the conduct of the Deputy's office.
- (b) The Deputy Mayor has access to all records, correspondence, and standing orders of the Mayor's office, that the Deputy may be prepared at any moment to assume the Mayoralty without loss of continuity.
- (c) The office of Deputy Mayor is barred to a citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, and vacated by it, as Article 13, Section 6 provides; upon such a resignation the Mayor appoints a new Deputy under Section 4.

SECTION 2. THE DEPUTY MAYOR'S ASSUMPTION OF THE MAYORALTY

Upon the death of the sitting Mayor, or upon the Mayor's resignation, or upon the Mayor being removed from office by the Assembly under Article 20, the Deputy Mayor shall immediately assume the office and powers of the Mayor, and shall serve as Mayor until such time as a new Mayor is elected and confirmed under Section 3.

- (a) The Deputy Mayor, upon assumption of the Mayoralty, becomes bound by every requirement and power set down in Article 4 for the Mayor, and Article 4 governs the Deputy's conduct from the moment of assumption forward.
- (b) The Deputy Mayor assuming the Mayoralty may issue standing orders, manage the silo's resources, and carry out all ordinary functions of the Mayor's office, save one: the Deputy may make no permanent appointment of a Department head or the Judge. Such permanent appointments are deferred until a new Mayor is elected and confirmed.
- (c) The Deputy Mayor's acts in the conduct of the Mayoralty during assumption are valid and binding on the silo and may not be reversed upon the election and assumption of a new Mayor, save where this Pact or a ruling of Judicial requires otherwise.
- (d) If the Mayor is absent but not dead or removed — taken ill, sent as an envoy, or otherwise prevented from the conduct of office for a known or suspected duration — the Deputy acts as Mayor with all powers including the power to make temporary appointments, such temporary authority ceasing upon the Mayor's return.

SECTION 3. THE ELECTION FOR THE NEXT MAYOR

An election for the Mayoralty is held in two cases: at the end of a sitting Mayor's term of five years under Article 4, at the ordinary sitting of the Assembly that falls in that year, which the sitting Mayor convenes as Article 20 provides; and when the Mayoralty stands vacant by reason of death, resignation, or removal. In either case no fewer than two citizens shall be proposed for the office. Any citizen of majority standing, with no sentence under Article 17 unserved and no restitution ordered there unpaid, may stand for election as Mayor. The Assembly shall conduct the election and determine the process of the same.

- (a) The Deputy Mayor, while serving as acting Mayor during a vacancy, may not stand for election to the Mayoralty, to ensure the impartiality of the acting office during the election itself.

- (b) A citizen elected to the Mayoralty must be confirmed by the Assembly under Article 20 before taking final office; confirmation shall not be withheld save for cause found by Judicial.
- (c) The newly elected and confirmed Mayor assumes office and all the powers of the Mayor under Article 4 upon confirmation; the outgoing Mayor's term, or the Deputy Mayor's acting Mayoralty, concludes at that moment.
- (d) Where the election is held for a vacancy, the Assembly, in consultation with the acting Mayor and the Heads of Departments, shall determine the timing and manner of the election.

SECTION 4. THE DEPUTY MAYOR'S ELECTION AND SUCCESSION

The Deputy Mayor is appointed by the sitting Mayor and confirmed by the Assembly under Article 20. Should the Deputy Mayor die, resign, or be removed from office before the Mayoralty stands vacant, the Mayor shall appoint a new Deputy, confirmed by the Assembly, to fill the vacancy.

- (a) A new Deputy Mayor may be appointed at any time the sitting Mayor judges needful, and no more than one Deputy may serve at a time.
- (b) Should both the Mayor and the Deputy die or be removed simultaneously or in succession before a new Mayor can be elected, the highest-ranking Department head, determined by the order of their first confirmation in office, shall assume the Mayoralty as acting Mayor until the election is held and a new Mayor confirmed.

OF JUDICIAL AND THE COURTS

In which is set down the charge of Judicial: to rule where this Pact is silent, to judge where it is broken, and to keep, in one place, the record of how both are done.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE AND THE JUDGE

Judicial is charged with the judging of every offense under this Pact, the ruling of every matter this Pact leaves silent, and the keeping of the silo's Judicial archive, and holds its offices Up Top as Article 1 sets down.

- (a) Judicial is led by a Judge, confirmed in office by the Mayor and, thereafter, by the Assembly under Article 20, and holding that office until death, resignation, or removal by the same two bodies acting together.
- (b) No citizen may hold the office of Judge who has not first served among the Officers of Judicial under Section 3, nor may a Judge also hold the office of Mayor, Sheriff, or Head of any other Department while serving.
- (c) The office of Judge is barred to a citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, and vacated by it, as Article 13, Section 6 provides; upon such a resignation the Mayor and the Assembly confirm a new Judge as this section provides.

SECTION 2. RULINGS WHERE THIS PACT IS SILENT

Where this Pact is silent on a matter properly brought before it, the Judge shall issue a ruling in writing, stating the matter, the ruling, and the reasoning that led to it, and that ruling shall thereafter bind as though written into this Pact, exactly as Article 1 provides.

- (a) A ruling under this section shall be kept in the Judicial archive and read into the record at the next sitting of the Assembly under Article 20, that no ruling binds the silo in secret.
- (b) A ruling under this section may be overturned only by a later ruling of the Judge on the same matter, or by amendment of this Pact directly under Article 23; it may not be overturned by the Mayor, the Sheriff, or any Head of Department.

SECTION 3. THE OFFICERS OF JUDICIAL

Judicial shall keep such Officers as its charge requires, to investigate an offense, to gather what evidence the offense leaves behind, to search where a search is warranted, and to carry out a sentence once given, including the carrying of a citizen to cleaning under Article 18.

- (a) An Officer of Judicial acts always at the direction of the Judge, or, in a matter touching the whole silo's safety, at the implicit command of the Mayor, and never on an Officer's own authority alone.
- (b) The Sheriff and the Officers of Judicial are not the same body. The Sheriff keeps the ordinary peace of the floors under Article 7; the Officers of Judicial act where Judicial itself has found cause to investigate, to search, or to carry out a sentence.
- (c) A search ordered by the Judge for a relic concealed under Article 16 may be made of any floor or room without further condition, save the station of the Sheriff, which may be searched only upon extreme cause found by the Judge, and only after notice of the search is given to the Sheriff beforehand.

SECTION 4. JUDGMENT AND SENTENCE

Upon an offense investigated under Section 3, the Judge shall determine whether this Pact was broken and, if so, shall set the sentence this Pact provides, without further trial, and that sentence takes effect at once.

- (a) The offender, or the offender's family where the offender cannot be heard, may make representations to the Judge after the sentence is set; the Judge shall hear them, but a representation made under this clause does not delay, lessen, or undo a sentence already taking effect.
- (b) A citizen accused of an offense not among the gravest named under Article 17 may request a hearing before sentence is set, and the Judge shall grant it; this right does not extend to an offense named among the gravest, for which Article 17 and this Article provide their own swiftness. In such a hearing, the accused citizen may speak, may call witnesses to speak to the accused's character or the facts of the offense, and may dispute the Officers' account of what occurred; the Judge shall hear all such evidence before determining guilt and setting sentence.

- (c) Ignorance of this Pact, where it excuses a first offense under Article 17, is weighed by the Judge before any sentence is set, not after.

SECTION 5. THE ARCHIVE OF JUDICIAL

Judicial shall keep, in its archive, a copy of this Pact, the rolls of citizenship under Article 2, every ruling issued under Section 2, every sentence given under Section 4, and such further record as this Pact elsewhere assigns to its keeping.

- (a) No record kept in the Judicial archive may be altered once entered, save by a further entry noting the correction, the citizen who made it, and the reason given; the original entry shall not be removed.

SECTION 6. THE BRINGING OF A MATTER BEFORE JUDICIAL

Every matter Judicial hears comes to it by one of three roads: a report of an offense, from the Sheriff under Article 7, from a Head of Department, or from any citizen; a petition, from any citizen of majority, upon a matter this Pact gives Judicial to decide; or a referral, from an officer this Pact directs to refer. This section sets down how each is entered.

- (a) A report or petition is made to the Clerk of Judicial, in writing where the citizen can write and by the Clerk's hand where the citizen cannot, and is entered in the docket of Judicial with the day and hour of its entry, the name of the citizen bringing it, and the matter in a line. A citizen may not be refused the entry of a matter, though Judicial may afterward find it no matter for Judicial at all.
- (b) A report of an offense named among the gravest under Article 17 is carried to the Judge the same day; every other matter is taken in the docket's order, save that the Judge may take a matter out of its order where delay would work harm, and shall enter the reason.
- (c) No matter waits in the docket longer than one turn of the season from its entry without the Judge entering the cause of the delay; a citizen whose matter has waited longer may ask the Clerk the reason, and shall be told it.

- (d) A citizen who brings a matter may withdraw it before it is heard, and the withdrawal is entered; but a report of an offense, once entered, is Judicial's to pursue or to leave, and its withdrawal by the citizen who brought it does not end it.

SECTION 7. THE CONDUCT OF A HEARING

A hearing under Section 4 is held in the hall of Judicial Up Top, or on such floor as the Judge names where the accused or the witnesses cannot climb to it, on a day the Clerk posts at the door of Judicial and at the landing of the accused's floor not fewer than ten days before.

- (a) Present at a hearing are the Judge, the Clerk, the accused, the Officers who investigated, such witnesses as the accused or the Officers call, and the accused's household. Any other citizen may attend and may not be barred, save where the press of citizens endangers the hall, and save where the matter touches a relic or a thing this Pact keeps from ordinary record, in which case the Judge may clear the hall of all but those named.
- (b) A witness speaks upon the citizen's oath under Article 2, and is reminded of it before speaking; a witness found to have spoken falsely is answerable under Article 17, Section 5, as for a false bringing.
- (c) The Clerk keeps the record of every word spoken, so far as the Clerk's hand allows, and reads the record back before the Judge rules, that the accused may say whether it is true; the record and the accused's answer to it are entered in the archive together.
- (d) The Judge rules aloud and states the measure. The Clerk gives the accused a copy of the ruling in writing before the accused leaves the hall, and sends a copy to the Head of the accused's Department, and to Housing under Article 14 where the measure requires the accused's removal from a dwelling.
- (e) No hearing is held for an offense among the gravest; for such an offense Section 4 provides, and the Judge's ruling upon it is entered, read to the offender by the Clerk, and a copy given to the household. The representation Section 4 allows is heard in the same hall, on a day the Judge sets, and entered in the archive beside the ruling it does not alter.

SECTION 8. THE WARRANT AND THE RETURN OF A SEARCH

An Officer of Judicial searches only upon a warrant of the Judge, save in the pursuit of an offender in the act, and a warrant names what it permits.

- (a) A warrant is written and signed by the Judge, names the floor and room to be searched and the thing or citizen sought, and is shown to the citizen whose room is searched, or to the household, before the search begins; where none is present, it is left in the room.
- (b) Upon the search's end the Officer makes a return: what was searched, what was found, what was taken, and the citizen or Officer in whose keeping each thing taken now lies. The return is entered in the archive within one day, and the citizen searched may read it upon asking.
- (c) A thing taken under a warrant and found to be no relic, no restricted instrument, and no evidence is returned to the citizen within ten days, and the return is entered; a thing kept is classified under Article 16 or entered as evidence, and the citizen is told which.
- (d) A search made without a warrant, save in pursuit of an offender in the act, is a wrong under Article 17, Section 5, whatever it finds; but what it finds is not thereby unfound, and Judicial may act upon it.

SECTION 9. THE SITTINGS OF JUDICIAL AND THE CLERK

Judicial sits on posted days and keeps its own house by a Clerk, that no citizen need guess when a matter may be brought or by whom it is kept.

- (a) The Judge sits to hear matters on no fewer than three days in every ten, on days posted at the door of Judicial; on other days the Judge rules upon petitions in writing and reads the docket.
- (b) The Clerk of Judicial keeps the docket, the record of hearings, and the Judicial archive under Section 5, and is raised by full shadowing under Article 13 from among the Officers or the archivists of Judicial; the Clerk does not rule.
- (c) Where the Judge is absent or unable to sit, the senior Officer of Judicial by first confirmation keeps the docket and may order a search under Section 3, but may neither rule nor sentence; a matter that cannot wait is held, and the Judge's absence beyond one turn of the season is reported to the Mayor and to the Assembly as a vacancy under Section 1.

SECTION 10. THE PETITION FOR A RULING WHERE THIS PACT IS SILENT

A ruling under Section 2 is not given unasked; it is given upon a matter properly brought, and this section sets down how such a matter is brought and argued.

- (a) Any citizen of majority, any office, or the Judge upon the Judge's own reading of the docket, may bring a matter under Section 2 by a petition entered with the Clerk under Section 6, stating the matter, the Article or Articles the petitioner believes nearest to it, and what the petitioner believes this Pact would provide if it spoke.
- (b) The Clerk posts the petition at the door of Judicial for one cycle, and any citizen may enter with the Clerk, within that cycle, a writing in answer to it, stating what that citizen believes this Pact would provide; a citizen who enters such a writing is heard at the ruling if the citizen asks to be.
- (c) The Judge hears the petitioner and every citizen entered under this section on a posted day, in the hall of Judicial, and may put questions to each; the Judge then rules in writing under Section 2, and the writing states which of the readings offered the Judge took, and why, or that the Judge took none of them.
- (d) A matter brought under this section while an offense turning upon it stands in the docket is ruled before the offense is heard, and the ruling governs the offense; but no ruling under Section 2 reaches back to make an offense of a thing done before the ruling was entered.
- (e) The rulings under Section 2 are kept in their own roll in the archive, in the order of their entry, and the Clerk keeps beside it a table of the Articles each ruling touches, that a citizen may find what this Pact has been held to provide upon any matter; the table is open to any citizen at the door of Judicial.

SECTION 11. EVIDENCE AND THINGS SEIZED

What an Officer takes under a warrant, and what a citizen brings to Judicial in proof, is kept in a manner that lets it be found again and shows it has not been changed.

- (a) Every thing taken under a warrant under Section 8, or surrendered under Article 16, or brought to Judicial by a citizen as proof of a matter, is entered by the Clerk in the roll of evidence with the day, the matter it belongs to, the citizen from whom or by whom it came, and a description sufficient to know it again; the Clerk marks the thing with the number of its entry.
- (b) A thing so entered is kept in the store of Judicial under lock, and is taken out only by an Officer or the Clerk, who enters the taking-out, the purpose, and the return; a thing that is a relic or a restricted instrument passes from the store to Information Technology under Article 8 for examination, and the passing is entered, and Information Technology's report under that Article is entered beside it.
- (c) A thing entered in the roll of evidence is shown to the citizen it was taken from, or to the accused in whose matter it is proof, at the hearing under Section 7, or, where there is no hearing, upon the citizen's asking at the door of Judicial; the citizen may say what the thing is and how it came to be where it was found, and the Clerk enters what the citizen says.
- (d) A thing that is neither a relic, a restricted instrument, nor proof of an offense found is returned as Section 8 provides; a thing that is proof is kept until the matter is ruled and for one year after, and then returned, or, where it is the silo's or cannot be returned, given to Mechanical for reclamation under Article 9 and the giving entered.
- (e) A thing that is a relic or a restricted instrument is never returned save under a sanction given under Article 16, and is destroyed, sealed, or kept as that Article and Article 8 provide, the disposal entered in the roll of evidence and in the relic roll both.

SECTION 12. THE ENTRY AND CARRYING OUT OF A SENTENCE

A sentence set under Section 4 is a written thing before it is anything else, and it is carried out as it is written and not otherwise.

- (a) The Clerk enters every sentence in the roll of sentences with the citizen's name, the offense, the Article and Section under which it is answered, the measure, and, for a term in the mines, the span; the Judge signs the entry, and no sentence is carried out before it is signed.

- (b) A grace under Article 17 is entered and a copy given to the citizen; no further act is required, and the citizen returns to trade and dwelling the same day.
- (c) A term in the mines is carried out by two Officers of Judicial, who conduct the citizen by the stair to the Down Deep within one cycle of the sentence, deliver the citizen to the Head of Mines with a copy of the entry, and take the Head's receipt for the citizen upon the copy; the receipt is entered in the archive. The Head of Mines reports the term's ending to Judicial under Article 10, and the Clerk enters it.
- (d) A citizen returned from the mines presents before the Clerk within one cycle of the term's ending, and Judicial assigns the citizen's trade and floor under Article 17 and reports the assignment to the citizen's new Head of Department and to Housing under Article 14; a citizen so returned holds every standing of a citizen, and no office may refuse the citizen a trade, a dwelling, or the ration on account of the term served.
- (e) A sentence of cleaning is carried out as Article 18 provides, and the Officer or Sheriff who conducts the citizen to the airlock returns to the Clerk with the chamber's record, which is entered beside the sentence.
- (f) Restitution ordered under Article 17, Section 5 is entered with the sentence, and the Chit-Keepers under Article 12 are given a copy where it is in chits, and the Head of the offender's Department where it is in labor; the Clerk enters its completion when the wronged citizen or the Chit-Keepers report it.

SECTION 13. THE OFFICERS AND THEIR DISCIPLINE

An Officer of Judicial holds a citizen's liberty in hand more often than any other citizen of the silo, and answers for it more closely.

- (a) An Officer of Judicial is entered by full shadowing under Article 13 and the vetting that Article provides for a critical role, and is confirmed by the Judge; an Officer serves at the Judge's direction and may be removed by the Judge for cause entered in the archive.
- (b) An Officer acts only under a warrant, a sentence, or the Judge's written direction, save in the pursuit of an offender in the act, and an Officer who acts otherwise is answerable under Article 17 as any citizen, and the act is a wrong under Section 5 of that Article, whatever it found.

- (c) A citizen who believes an Officer to have exceeded a warrant, to have taken what the warrant did not name, or to have done the citizen a wrong in the course of a search, an arrest, or the carrying out of a sentence, may bring a complaint against the Officer under Section 6, and the Judge shall hear it as any other matter; the Officer complained of does not investigate it, and the Judge names another to do so.
- (d) A complaint against an Officer found true is entered against the Officer's name, and the Judge sets the measure under Article 17; a complaint found false is entered against the complainant as a false bringing. Two complaints found true against one Officer remove the Officer from the Officers, whatever measure was set for each.
- (e) The Officers keep no record apart from the archive: every warrant, return, arrest, and delivery an Officer makes is entered with the Clerk, and an Officer who keeps a record of the Officer's own, apart from the Clerk's, is removed.

OF THE SHERIFF AND THE KEEPING OF THE PEACE

In which is set down the charge of the Sheriff: the ordinary peace of the floors, the good order of the stair and every landing upon it, and the keeping of common ground common.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF THE SHERIFF

The Sheriff is charged with the ordinary peace of the floors, distinct from the Officers of Judicial under Article 6, and holds office Up Top as Article 1 sets down.

- (a) The Sheriff is appointed by the Mayor, who shall weigh the recommendation of the Sheriff then leaving office but is not bound by it, and may appoint to the office any citizen of majority, whether a Deputy of the Sheriff's office or not.
- (b) A Deputy or Peacekeeper of the Sheriff's office serves under the Sheriff in the ordinary conduct of that trade, and remains bound in every other respect to this Pact and to Judicial, exactly as any other citizen is bound.
- (c) The office of Sheriff is barred to a citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, and vacated by it, as Article 13, Section 6 provides; upon such a resignation the Mayor appoints a new Sheriff as this section provides.

SECTION 2. THE STAIR AND THE LANDINGS

The stairwell, which Article 1 holds open to every citizen equally, is the Sheriff's particular charge to keep orderly, for it is the one road every citizen must walk, and disorder upon it endangers more than the citizens who make it.

- (a) A citizen ascending the stair keeps to the outer rail, and a citizen descending keeps to the inner rail, that the press of citizens moving in opposite directions not itself become a hazard; the Sheriff may set this practice aside, by posted notice, where a floor's own landing requires it.
- (b) A porter under Article 21, a citizen carrying an urgent word for Judicial or the Sheriff, and a work crew under posted notice under Article 1, pass before any citizen not so charged, and no citizen may impede that passage.
- (c) No citizen may block, occupy, or make camp upon the stair or a landing beyond the ordinary pause for rest, nor raise a hand against another citizen upon it; an offense under this clause, given the height from which a citizen upon the stair may fall, is weighed by the Judge with that danger in mind.
- (d) The Sheriff shall keep a Deputy or Peacekeeper posted at such landings as the press of citizens requires, particularly at the landings nearest the cafeterias, the markets, and the floors of Supply and Mechanical.

SECTION 3. THE CAFETERIAS AND OTHER COMMON AREAS

The cafeterias, the markets, and every hall where citizens gather beyond their own household are likewise the Sheriff's charge, that gathering not become disorder.

- (a) The Sheriff shall keep such order in a cafeteria, a market under Article 12, or a common hall under Article 20 as the press of citizens requires, and may disperse a gathering that threatens to become disorder, though the Sheriff may not disperse an assembly properly held under Article 20 for the assembly's purpose alone.
- (b) Where a cleaning under Article 18 draws citizens to a cafeteria's wallscreen, the Sheriff shall keep the peace of that gathering, and no citizen may be compelled to attend nor barred from attending, save where the press of citizens itself endangers the floor.
- (c) The freight lift under Article 9, the offices of every Department, and any floor or room this Pact reserves to a particular charge are not common areas under this section, and a citizen found there without leave is answerable under Article 17 as though the citizen had trespassed upon a restricted area.

SECTION 4. THE KEEPING OF THE PEACE BETWEEN CITIZENS

The Sheriff shall answer a dispute or a wrong between citizens under Article 17, and shall carry to Judicial any matter the Sheriff cannot resolve by word alone, or any matter Article 17 names among the offenses answered by the mines or among the gravest.

- (a) A citizen may bring a complaint to the Sheriff directly, and the Sheriff shall hear it and act upon it, or refer it to Judicial, within a turn of the season of its bringing.

SECTION 5. THE TRADES OF THE SHERIFF'S OFFICE

Every trade of the Sheriff's office below the Sheriff's own is entered by the shadowing set down under Article 13; the office of Sheriff itself is not shadowed, and is filled as Section 1 provides.

- (a) The Sheriff then leaving office shall pass to the Mayor, and to whoever succeeds as Sheriff, a full accounting of the floors and landings under Deputy or Peacekeeper charge, and every posted notice given under this Article.

SECTION 6. THE STATION AND ITS CELLS

The Sheriff keeps a station Up Top, beside the cafeteria and its wallscreen and this station is the one place in the silo, apart from the airlock and the Infirmary's isolation under Article 19, where a citizen may be held against the citizen's will by any office but Judicial.

- (a) The station holds the Sheriff's own office, the desks of the Deputies, the roll of posted notices under Section 9, and no fewer than two cells, each with a bed, water, and a light that may be dimmed but not put out; no cell is below ground beyond the station's own floor, and no citizen is held in any room of the silo not a cell of this section or of a Deputy's station under Section 8, save by Judicial in the hall of Judicial itself.
- (b) The station is not a common area under Section 3; a citizen enters it to bring a complaint, to be held, to visit a citizen held, or at the Sheriff's asking, and for no other purpose.
- (c) The Sheriff keeps a station roll in which every citizen held is entered with the hour of holding, the cause, the Deputy who held them, and the hour of release or of delivery to Judicial; the roll is delivered to the Clerk of Judicial at each turn of the season and entered in the archive.

- (d) A citizen held in a cell is fed the ration, may be visited by the citizen's household once in each day of holding, and may send word to Judicial by the Sheriff's own hand, which the Sheriff shall carry the same day.

SECTION 7. ARREST AND THE HOLDING OF A CITIZEN

The Sheriff holds a citizen only to carry the citizen to Judicial, or to keep the peace until Judicial can be reached, and not as any measure of correction, which is Judicial's alone under Article 17.

- (a) The Sheriff, a Deputy, or a Peacekeeper may take hold of a citizen found in the act of an offense, or named in a warrant of the Judge under Article 6, or whose remaining at liberty the Sheriff finds, upon a complaint brought, to endanger another citizen; or a citizen held for the departure under Article 18, Section 8; and for no other cause.
- (b) A citizen taken hold of is told the cause at the taking, and is brought to the nearest station under this Article or Section 8, and entered in its roll, before any other thing is done.
- (c) A citizen held for an offense among the gravest under Article 17 is carried to Judicial the same day, by the Sheriff or a Deputy with an Officer of Judicial sent for the purpose. A citizen held for any other cause is carried to Judicial, or released, within one cycle; a citizen not carried within the cycle is released by the Sheriff without further order, and the release entered, whatever the cause of the holding; save a citizen held under Article 18, who is held until the departure that Article provides.
- (d) A citizen released under this section is not thereby cleared; the complaint stands in the Sheriff's hands, and may be referred to Judicial under Section 4 as any other, and the citizen taken hold of again upon a warrant.
- (e) The Sheriff may not question a citizen held as to an offense beyond the citizen's name, floor, and household, nor take from the citizen anything but what endangers the cell; what is taken is entered in the station roll and delivered with the citizen to Judicial, or returned at release.

SECTION 8. THE DEPUTIES AND THE FLOORS

The stair is long, and the Sheriff cannot be at every landing; the Deputies are the Sheriff's presence where the Sheriff is not.

- (a) The Sheriff keeps three Deputies, each with the charge of a zone as Article 1 names them: a Deputy of the Up Top, who keeps the station under Section 6 in the Sheriff's absence; a Deputy of the Mids, who keeps a station of the Sheriff on a floor of the Mids the Sheriff names; and a Deputy of the Down Deep, who keeps a station on a floor of the Down Deep the Sheriff names, near the works and the workings. Each Deputy's station has a cell, a roll, and the copy of this Pact Article 1 requires.
- (b) Each Deputy keeps such Peacekeepers as the Sheriff assigns to the zone, posts them at the landings Section 2 requires, and reports to the Sheriff at each turn of the season the floors kept, the complaints brought, and the citizens held.
- (c) A Deputy acts with the Sheriff's whole authority within the zone, save that a Deputy may not appoint a Peacekeeper, set aside the practice of the stair under Section 2, or refer a matter to Judicial in the Sheriff's name without the Sheriff's word; word between the Sheriff and a Deputy passes by porter under Article 21 or, where the silo's peace cannot wait, by the stations of Article 8 as official word.
- (d) Where the Sheriff's office falls vacant, the Deputy of the Up Top keeps the station and the whole charge of this Article until the Mayor appoints a Sheriff under Section 1, and may not be appointed Sheriff on that account alone.

SECTION 9. POSTED NOTICES

What the Sheriff requires of the floors, the floors are told in writing, at the landing, in the Sheriff's own hand or a Deputy's.

- (a) A notice of the Sheriff is posted at the landing of every floor it binds, states the matter, the floors it binds, the day it takes effect, and the day it ceases or that it stands until taken down, and bears the Sheriff's or the Deputy's name; a notice not so posted binds no citizen.
- (b) A notice may set aside the practice of the stair under Section 2, close a landing to the passage of a work crew under Article 1, name the hours a common area is kept, call the citizens of a floor to the Sheriff's hearing of a complaint, or give any other direction this Article allows the Sheriff; it may not forbid a citizen the stair, nor a common area, beyond the hours and the crew's passage those Sections allow.

- (c) Every notice posted is entered in the roll of notices at the station with the day of posting and the day of taking down, and the roll is passed to the succeeding Sheriff under Section 5; a citizen may read the roll at the station upon asking.
- (d) A citizen who takes down, defaces, or covers a posted notice before its day is answerable under Article 17; a citizen who believes a notice exceeds this Article may petition Judicial under Article 6, and the notice stands until Judicial rules.

OF THE DEPARTMENT OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

In which is set down the charge of the Department of Information Technology: the keeping of the silo's servers and its voice across floors, the licensing of instruments no citizen may make for themselves, and such further duties as this Pact elsewhere leaves to that Department's own instruction.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

The Department of Information Technology is charged with the keeping of the silo's servers, the carrying of word by radio and by wire between floors and offices, the licensing of tools and instruments this Pact elsewhere restricts, and the upkeep of the outward sensors and the wallscreen as Article 1 sets down.

- (a) The Department is led by a Head of Information Technology, and keeps its principal offices in the Mid Thirties, though its charge under this Article extends to every floor.
- (b) Every citizen assigned to a trade of Information Technology serves under the Head of Information Technology in the ordinary conduct of that trade, and remains bound in every other respect to this Pact, to the Sheriff, and to Judicial, exactly as any other citizen is bound.
- (c) The office of Head of Information Technology is barred to a citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, and vacated by it, as Article 13, Section 6 provides; upon such a resignation a successor is named as Section 6 provides.

SECTION 2. THE LICENSING OF DANGEROUS INSTRUMENTS

No citizen may make, keep, or use any lens or glass that magnifies beyond the ordinary power of reading spectacles, any device that sends or receives word without a wire strung and licensed for the purpose, or any fine instrument for the working of metal, wire, or glass, save under a license issued by Information Technology.

- (a) A license issued under this section shall name the citizen, the tool, and the floor of its use, and shall be entered in a roll kept by Information Technology and shared with Judicial, that the two rolls may be reconciled one against the other at any time either Department requires.
- (b) A tool or device of the kind named in this section, found in the keeping of a citizen without license, is a relic forbidden under Article 16, whatever use the citizen claims to have intended for it, and its finding shall be reported to Judicial without delay.
- (c) Information Technology shall license to Mechanical such tools as Article 9 requires for its own work, under the same manner of numbering, recording, and return set down there.

SECTION 3. RADIOS AND THE SILO'S WORD

No wire, radio, or like device for the carrying of word beyond the reach of a citizen's own voice may be built, strung, or operated save by Information Technology or under its license, and no citizen may carry word by such means on another citizen's behalf without that license.

- (a) Word that must travel between floors, and is not licensed to pass by wire or radio, shall be carried by a porter under Article 21.
- (b) Information Technology shall keep such stations for the carrying of official word between the Mayor, the Sheriff, Judicial, and the Heads of every Department as the silo's business requires, and no citizen not assigned to that keeping may make use of them.

SECTION 4. THE SENSORS, THE WALLSCREEN, AND THE RECORD OF THE DEAD

The upkeep, cleaning, and repair of the outward sensors and the wallscreen is the charge of Information Technology under Article 1, exercised under such further procedure as this Pact does not set down, that procedure being no part of ordinary citizenship.

- (a) Where a citizen is sent to cleaning under Article 18, the word of Information Technology that the sensors were kept is sufficient, under Article 2, for Judicial to close that citizen's name in the rolls, and no further attestation is required.

- (b) The suit worn by a citizen sent to clean is assembled in the cleaning lab under this charge, to a specification Information Technology alone sets and is instructed in, from cloth, seals, and fittings furnished by Mechanical and Supply, as Article 18 sets down.

SECTION 5. RELICS OF CRAFT AND CONTRIVANCE

A relic of craft or contrivance from before the silo's sealing, surrendered under Article 16 or found by Judicial, shall be delivered to Information Technology for examination, that its danger may be judged by those fitted to judge it.

- (a) Information Technology shall report to Judicial what a relic examined under this section is and what became of it, but need not report how it was examined, nor keep the relic for any citizen's later viewing.

SECTION 6. THE TRADES OF INFORMATION TECHNOLOGY

Every trade of Information Technology is entered by the shadowing set down under Article 13.

- (a) The Head of Information Technology names a successor from among the Department's own trades, and that naming stands as though confirmed, unless the Mayor and Judicial jointly object within one turn of the season.

SECTION 7. THE ROLLS OF LICENSE AND THEIR KEEPING

A license under Section 2 is a written thing in two places, and is no license until it is in both.

- (a) A citizen or a Head of Department who would have an instrument licensed petitions the Head of Information Technology in writing, naming the citizen who will hold it, the instrument, the use, and the floor; the Head, or a licensor of the Department raised by short shadowing under Article 13, examines the petition and the instrument, and grants, limits, or refuses the license within one cycle, entering the reason for a refusal.
- (b) A license granted is entered in the roll of licenses kept by Information Technology, numbered, with the day, the citizen, the instrument by its own number under Article 9 where it has one, the use, the floor, and the licensor's name; the instrument is marked with the license's number by the licensor's own hand, and a copy of the entry is sent to the Clerk of Judicial within one cycle for the roll Judicial keeps under Section 2.

- (c) The two rolls are reconciled at the turn of every season by a licensor and an Officer of Judicial together, entry against entry; a license in one roll and not the other is void until entered in both, and the instrument is called in to Information Technology until it is.
- (d) A license runs for one year from its grant, and is renewed upon the citizen's presenting the instrument to a licensor within the last cycle of the year; an instrument not presented is called in, and a citizen found holding it beyond the year is answerable under Article 17 as for an unlicensed instrument, whatever the earlier license.
- (e) The Head of Information Technology may withdraw a license at any time, entering the reason, and the instrument is surrendered to a licensor within one day of the withdrawal's being told to the citizen; a citizen who believes a license wrongly withdrawn may petition Judicial under Article 6, but surrenders the instrument first.

SECTION 8. THE STATIONS OF OFFICIAL WORD

The word of an office travels by wire or radio only from a station this Department keeps, and only in the hearing of this Department.

- (a) Information Technology keeps a station of official word in the office of the Mayor, in the station of the Sheriff and in each Deputy's station under Article 7, in the hall of Judicial, in the offices of the Head of every Department, and in its own principal offices in the Mid Thirties; no station is kept elsewhere, and no wire is strung to any room not named here save under Section 3 for the carrying of word between these.
- (b) Each station is kept by a technician of Information Technology on every shift of the day, and no officer speaks by the station save in the technician's presence and with the technician's hand upon it; the technician enters in the station's log the sending office, the receiving office, the hour, and the officer who spoke, as Article 21 requires, and delivers the log to the Clerk of Judicial at each turn of the season.
- (c) An officer may send by the station only such word as the office's own charge under this Pact requires, and the technician may refuse a word the technician finds to be no word of the office, entering the refusal; a refusal so entered is carried to the Head of Information Technology and to the Judge, who rule upon it together, and the office may send the word by porter meanwhile.

- (d) No station may be opened, moved, or repaired save by Information Technology, and a station found opened by any other hand is reported to the Judge as interference under Article 16, Section 6.

SECTION 9. THE SERVERS AND THEIR KEEPING

This Department keeps the silo's servers, and what the servers keep is this Department's charge.

- (a) The servers are kept in a room of the Department's principal offices in the Mid Thirties, and in such further rooms as the Head of Information Technology names; no citizen not assigned to their keeping enters those rooms, and the rooms are not common areas under Article 7, nor subject to search under Article 6 save upon the Judge's warrant given with the Head's own knowledge.
- (b) The servers keep such records as this Department keeps in its own charge under this Article, and such further matter as that Department alone is instructed in; the servers are not the Judicial archive, and no record this Pact requires to be kept in the archive is kept only in the servers.
- (c) The servers draw their share of the generator's power under Article 9 by an agreement the Head of Information Technology and the Head of Mechanical enter with the Mayor at each turn of the season, and in a shortfall the servers' share is lessened in the order Article 22 provides, after the market and the common halls and before the farms'; the Head of Information Technology may represent to the Mayor that a lessening endangers the Department's charge, and the Mayor rules.
- (d) The server technicians of this Department are a trade of full shadowing and of the vetting Article 13 provides for a critical role, and a server technician's record of what is done in the server rooms is kept by the Department and not delivered to the archive, save upon the Judge's warrant given as this section provides.

SECTION 10. THE EXAMINATION OF A RELIC

A relic comes to this Department from Judicial under Section 5, and goes back to Judicial with a report; this section sets down the manner of both.

- (a) A relic delivered under Section 5 is received by a relic examiner of the Department, a trade of full shadowing and of the vetting of a critical role, who gives the Officer delivering it a receipt naming the relic by its number in the roll of evidence under Article 6, and enters the receipt in the Department's own roll of relics received.
- (b) The examiner examines the relic within one season, and reports to the Judge in writing what the relic is, so far as the examiner can say without saying what this Pact does not permit; whether it is a relic of craft or contrivance, a writing, a likeness, or a thing of no craft at all; whether it can teach a citizen anything the Department judges dangerous to the silo's order; and what the examiner recommends as to its class under Article 16.
- (c) The examiner need not report the manner of the examination, nor what the relic was found to contain beyond the report's own words, nor keep the relic for any citizen's later viewing, as Section 5 provides; and a relic the examiner finds to be a device that sends or receives word, or a writing bearing upon the world above, is reported so, and is kept by the Department and not returned to Judicial's store, the keeping entered in both rolls.
- (d) The report is entered in the roll of evidence beside the relic, and the Judge classifies the relic under Article 16 upon it; the Judge may ask the examiner to attend the classification and answer as to the report, and the examiner attends, and answers within the report's own bounds.

SECTION 11. THE TRADES OF THE DEPARTMENT AND THE NAMING OF THE HEAD

This Department keeps its own trades more closely than any other, and its Head is named as no other Head is named.

- (a) Every trade of Information Technology is entered by full shadowing under Article 13, and every trade of it save the licensors and the archivists of its own rolls is a critical role under that Article, vetted as it provides; the Head of Information Technology keeps the particulars of that vetting, and may require it again of any citizen of the Department at any time.

- (b) A citizen of the Department who leaves it, by reassignment, retirement, or removal, is seen by the Head before leaving and is bound, by an entry the citizen signs, not to speak of the Department's charge beyond what this Pact sets down; the entry is kept by the Department, and a citizen who breaks it is answerable under Article 17 as for interference under Article 16, Section 6.
- (c) The Head names a successor under Section 6 by an entry in the Department's own roll, signed by the Head and by the citizen named, and delivers a copy to the Mayor and to the Judge the same day; the turn of the season within which the Mayor and Judicial may jointly object runs from the delivery, and an objection is made in writing signed by both and entered in the archive, stating the cause.
- (d) Where the Mayor and Judicial jointly object, the Head names another, and the season runs again; where the Head dies or is removed before a successor is named, the citizen the Head last shadowed in the Department's charge, or, where there is none, the senior technician of the Department by first confirmation, keeps the Department as acting Head and names a successor under this section within one season, as the Head would have.
- (e) The Head's own shadow, where the Head keeps one, is a citizen of the Department confirmed in a critical role, and is instructed in such further matter of the Department's charge as this Pact does not set down; the naming of a shadow is entered in the Department's roll, and the shadow is the successor the Head is presumed to name under this section unless the Head enters otherwise.

OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MECHANICAL

In which is set down the charge of the Department of Mechanical: the generator, the works of water and air, the reclamation of what is worn, and the narrow road — the freight lift, and no other — by which goods may pass where citizens may not.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF MECHANICAL

The Department of Mechanical is charged with the keeping of the generator, the works of water and air, the reclamation of the silo's worn substance, and the structural soundness of the shaft itself, so far as such soundness may be tended without opening any passage forbidden under Article 1.

- (a) The Department is led by a Head of Mechanical, raised up from among its own trades by the shadowing entered into under Article 13, and confirmed in office by the Mayor.
- (b) Every citizen assigned to a trade of Mechanical serves under the Head of Mechanical in the ordinary conduct of that trade, though such a citizen remains bound in every other respect to this Pact, to the Sheriff, and to Judicial exactly as any other citizen is bound.
- (c) The Head of Mechanical shall reside and keep the Department's offices in the Down Deep, among the works described in this Article, and not Up Top.

SECTION 2. POWER, CIRCULATION, AND RECLAMATION

The generator that gives the silo its light and its warmth, the works that draw water fit to drink from water fouled, the vents and scrubbers that keep the silo's air breathable, and the reclamation of cloth, metal, and matter too worn for its first purpose are here treated as one charge, for the failure of any one of them, left untended, threatens all the rest.

- (a) The generator, its housing, and every line and switch that carries its power beyond that housing are the sole charge of Mechanical. No citizen not assigned to that charge may open, adjust, or attempt repair of any part of it.
- (b) The works of water and air — the treatment of water drawn from below, the scrubbing and venting of the silo's air, and the lines that carry both beyond the Down Deep — are likewise the sole charge of Mechanical, exercised alongside Supply where Supply's own stores of water and air are concerned, under Article 11.
- (c) Mechanical shall reclaim, so far as reclamation is possible, the cloth, metal, plastic, and other matter surrendered by citizens or gathered by Supply and Judicial, returning to use what can be made fit for it, and recording, but not destroying without instruction, what cannot.
- (d) Interference with any part of the generator, the works of water and air, or the labor of reclamation is treated, without exception, as among the gravest offenses under Article 17.

SECTION 3. THE FREIGHT LIFT

The one exception named under Article 1 to the silo's single stair is the freight lift running between the Down Deep and the floors of Supply, built and kept by Mechanical for the carrying of goods too heavy or too many for a citizen's own back.

- (a) The freight lift carries goods only. No citizen may ride within it, and no citizen may request or be granted passage within it, save a Mechanical or Supply worker in the direct performance of loading, unloading, or the lift's own repair.
- (b) Every use of the freight lift shall be logged — the goods carried, the citizen who ordered the carrying, and the floors between which it ran — and kept in the records of Mechanical under Article 21.
- (c) The freight lift shall be run at no greater speed, and shall draw no greater share of the generator's power, than the Head of Mechanical judges the generator can bear without want to any other citizen's need for light, warmth, or water.
- (d) The making of any device to carry a citizen's own body between floors, whatever its design and whoever proposes it, is forbidden under Article 16.

SECTION 4. STRUCTURAL WORK AND THE PROHIBITION AGAINST DIGGING

Article 1 forbids any citizen to dig, bore, blast, or otherwise open a passage not already given by the silo's builders, save under the direct order of the Head of Mechanical and the joint knowledge of the Mayor. This section sets down how such an order is given and kept.

- (a) An order under this section may be given only in writing, signed by the Head of Mechanical and countersigned by the Mayor, naming the floor, the wall or ceiling to be opened, the reason for the work, and the citizens who will perform it.
- (b) No such order may be given for the opening of any passage between the silo and the world above, nor for any depth beyond what the builders themselves reached, regardless of the reason offered or the office of the one offering it.
- (c) A copy of every order given under this section shall be kept in the records of Mechanical and in the Judicial archive.
- (d) No passage opened under this section may be used for any purpose beyond the work named in the order, and shall be closed and made sound again upon that work's completion, to the satisfaction of the Head of Mechanical, before any citizen but a Mechanical worker may pass it again.

SECTION 5. TOOLS, MATERIALS, AND THEIR LICENSING

Mechanical's work requires tools and instruments that this Pact elsewhere restricts to every other citizen, among them glasses and lenses beyond the ordinary power forbidden under Article 16, and fine instruments for the working of metal and wire.

- (a) The Department of Information Technology shall license to Mechanical such tools as its work requires, each tool numbered, its whereabouts recorded, and its return confirmed upon the completion of the work for which it was drawn.
- (b) No tool licensed under this section may be carried beyond the floor of its use without the leave of the Head of Mechanical, nor kept by any citizen beyond the day of its return, nor lent, sold, or given to any citizen not licensed under this section in their own right.

- (c) A citizen found to hold, or to have made, any tool of the kind licensed under this section without such license is treated exactly as though the tool were a relic forbidden under Article 16, whatever use the citizen claims to have intended for it.

SECTION 6. THE TRADES OF THE DOWN DEEP

Every trade of Mechanical — the tending of the generator, the working of water and air, the reclamation of matter, and the keeping of the silo's structure — is entered as every other trade is entered, by the shadowing set down under Article 13, save that no citizen may shadow into the tending of the generator, the licensing of tools under this Article, or the ordering of work under Section 4 without also being found fit by the Head of Mechanical, beyond whatever fitness Article 13 alone would require.

- (a) The Head of Mechanical shall keep, and pass to their own shadow before leaving office, a full accounting of the Department's tools, its licensed citizens, and its outstanding orders under this Article.
- (b) No citizen shall be assigned to Mechanical against the citizen's own naming of a trade at the age Article 13 sets down, save where the Department's need for a given trade cannot otherwise be met, in which case Judicial shall confirm that the assignment is not made in punishment.

SECTION 7. CRITICAL INFRASTRUCTURE AND HIDDEN SYSTEMS

Mechanical maintains certain systems and installations that are critical to the silo's survival but whose location, design, or operation must be kept from ordinary citizen knowledge, that the integrity of such systems be preserved and that citizens not be moved to interfere with or rely upon them improperly.

- (a) The Head of Mechanical shall keep, in a secured record in the Judicial archive, a full accounting of every critical system the builders installed within the silo's deepest works, among them the intake and drainage systems and the bypass conduits. The location of such a system shall not be disclosed to any citizen not assigned directly to its maintenance and operation.
- (b) A citizen who discovers the location or existence of such a system, and reveals that location or existence to any other citizen, shall report the matter immediately to the Head of Mechanical and to Judicial, and may not discuss or describe the system to any other citizen, upon penalty of Article 17.

- (c) A citizen who attempts to locate, map, or gain access to such systems without authorization from the Head of Mechanical, or who tampers with any such system, is answerable under Article 17 as for endangering the silo's structural integrity or essential systems.
- (d) The Head of Mechanical is accountable to the Mayor and to Judicial for all such systems, and shall provide a report on their condition once yearly, in private audience, to both offices. No such system shall be altered, opened, or modified save by order of the Head of Mechanical with the Mayor's joint knowledge.
- (e) Where the Mayor's ordinary decisions might affect a given critical infrastructure system, the Head of Mechanical may inform the Mayor of the system's existence, location, and nature, and shall bind the Mayor to secrecy under the same restriction that applies to Mechanical's own workers. Whether the Mayor is informed of a particular critical system is the sole determination of the Head of Mechanical.

SECTION 8. THE SHIFTS AND THE TENDING OF THE GENERATOR

The generator does not rest, and so the tending of it does not; this section sets down how Mechanical keeps a watch that never ends without keeping any citizen at it past bearing.

- (a) The generator is tended in three shifts in every day, each of a third of the day by the silo's own clock, and no citizen tends it for two shifts together save in an emergency under Article 22 entered by the Head of Mechanical; the Head posts the shifts at the Department's door at each turn of the season, and the rest day under Article 1 is given to each generator tender in turn, so that the watch is kept and each tender has it.
- (b) At the change of every shift, the tender going off and the tender coming on together read the generator's gauges, enter them in the generator's own log with the hour and both their names, and speak aloud any fault found or feared; a fault so spoken is entered in the log, and the Head of Mechanical reads the log at the start of every day.
- (c) Once in every year, at a turn of the season the Head of Mechanical names not less than one season before, the generator is stopped for its full tending, the silo's light and warmth being carried for that time by the reserve Mechanical keeps for the purpose; the Head gives notice of the stopping to the Mayor, the Head of Supply, and every floor by posted notice under Article 7, not less than one cycle before, and the stopping does not exceed one day save by the Mayor's written order.

- (d) The full tending is carried out by the generator tenders under the Head of Mechanical's own eye, and every part opened, cleaned, or replaced is entered in the generator's log by part and by name; the log of the full tending is copied to the Judicial archive within one cycle.
- (e) No citizen may enter the generator's housing during a shift save the tenders of that shift, the Head of Mechanical, and a citizen the Head brings in under the Head's own hand; a shadow tends the generator only beside a master, and never alone, until confirmed in the trade under Article 13.

SECTION 9. ACCIDENT IN THE WORKS AND ITS REPORTING

The works hurt those who keep them, and the silo owes it to those it hurts to know how.

- (a) A citizen hurt in the works, or in any labor of Mechanical, is carried to the nearest aid station of the Infirmary under Article 19 before any other thing is done, and the Head of Mechanical is told the same shift; a death in the works is reported to the Infirmary and to Judicial under Article 2 the same day, and the place of it is left as it was, so far as the works allow, until an Officer of Judicial has seen it.
- (b) The Head of Mechanical enters every hurt and every death in the Department's own roll of accidents, with the day, the shift, the place, the citizen, the tool or part concerned, and the cause so far as it can be known, and reads the roll to the Department at each turn of the season, that what hurt one not hurt another.
- (c) Where an accident came of a tool, a part, or a practice, the Head of Mechanical may order the tool withdrawn, the part replaced, or the practice changed, and enters the order beside the accident; where it came of a citizen's own neglect of the Department's practice, the Head corrects it under Article 13, and where it came of a citizen's interference, the Head reports it to Judicial under Section 2.
- (d) A citizen hurt in the works who cannot return to the trade is re-assigned or retired under Article 13 and Article 19, and the roll of accidents is the Infirmary's warrant for the retirement; the Department does not lose the citizen's dwelling to Housing under Article 14 on that account within the same year.

- (e) The roll of accidents is copied to the Judicial archive at each turn of the season, and the Head of Mechanical reports to the Mayor, once yearly, the count of hurts and deaths in the works and what was changed on their account.

OF THE DEPARTMENT OF MINES

In which is set down the charge of the Department of Mines: the winning of ore from the depths below the silo, the limits set upon the miners' working, and the oversight of the silo's ore supply for the working of metal and the silo's own repair.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF MINES

The Department of Mines is charged with the winning of ore from the workings below the Down Deep, that the silo may have metal for its own working and repair, and that the silo's reserves of ore may never fall below such quantity as the Head of Mines judges necessary for the silo's keeping.

- (a) The Department is led by a Head of Mines, raised up from among its own trades by the shadowing entered into under Article 13, and confirmed in office by the Mayor.
- (b) Every citizen assigned to a trade of Mines serves under the Head of Mines in the ordinary conduct of that trade, though such a citizen remains bound in every other respect to this Pact, to the Sheriff, and to Judicial exactly as any other citizen is bound.
- (c) The Head of Mines shall reside and keep the Department's offices in the Down Deep, among the workings described in this Article, and not Up Top.

SECTION 2. THE WINNING OF ORE

The removal and processing of ore from the silo's depths is a labor of great weight, requiring strength of body, steadiness of nerve, and intimate knowledge of the workings' structure and history. This section sets down the scope and method of the Department's charge.

- (a) The winning of ore in the workings below the Down Deep is a standing charge of Mines and needs no order under Article 9 for its ordinary continuation.
- (b) Every citizen assigned to the winning of ore works under the direct supervision of a miner of proven skill, and no citizen may work alone in any working, regardless of experience or office.
- (c) The ore won shall be brought to the processing stations under the charge of Mines, where it is measured, recorded, and delivered to the Department of Mechanical for the working of metal and the silo's repair under Article 9.
- (d) No citizen not assigned to Mines may enter any working or remove any ore or stone from below the Down Deep save under direct written order of the Head of Mines, countersigned by the Mayor, for a purpose set down in that order.
- (e) A citizen sentenced to a term in the mines under Article 17 labors in the workings under the direction of the Head of Mines for the span the Judge has set, and is counted for that span as assigned to Mines for every purpose of this Article, though not of Article 13; such a citizen works under the same supervision, the same shoring, and the same limit under Section 3 as any miner, and is lodged in the Down Deep under Article 14 for the term's duration. The Head of Mines shall report to Judicial, at each turn of the season, the labor and condition of every citizen so sentenced, and the day each term ends.

SECTION 3. THE TWO-HUNDRED-FOOT RADIUS

The founders, in their engineering of the silo, set a limit upon how far the miners might work outward from the silo's own structure. This limit stands as their judgment and is not to be questioned or exceeded.

- (a) No working of ore may run, in any direction, beyond two hundred feet from the silo's own structure, for cause the builders judged sufficient and did not set down.
- (b) Any citizen who works ore, or directs the working of ore, beyond this limit is treated as among the gravest offenses under Article 17, without regard to ignorance of the limit or the purpose of the work.
- (c) The Head of Mines is charged with knowing the silo's structure and the distance it is, and with ensuring that no working extends beyond the limit. A citizen assigned to Mines who believes a working has been carried, or is being carried, beyond the limit may report the matter directly to Judicial, without first carrying it to the Head of Mines, and Judicial shall inquire of the Head of Mines and rule upon the working's lawfulness.

SECTION 4. COORDINATION WITH MECHANICAL AND JUDICIAL

The Department of Mines works in the Down Deep alongside the Department of Mechanical, and both must keep the other informed of the work being done, that neither undermines the silo's structure or the other's safety.

- (a) The Head of Mines and the Head of Mechanical shall meet no fewer than once per ten days to discuss the workings being opened, the shoring being done, and the state of the structures shared between Mechanical and Mines.
- (b) Where a working threatens the integrity of the silo's structure or the water lines, the generator's housing, or any other charge of Mechanical, the Head of Mechanical may order the working halted until the threat is resolved, and may carry that order to Judicial if the Head of Mines refuses to comply.
- (c) Where a citizen assigned to Mines is suspected of taking ore beyond the two-hundred-foot limit, or of deliberate failure to measure the distance, Judicial shall investigate and make a finding under Article 6 before any punishment is carried out.

SECTION 5. THE TRADES OF MINES

Every trade of Mines — the breaking and removal of ore, the processing and measuring of ore, the shoring and tending of workings, and the keeping of records and accounting — is entered as every other trade is entered, by the shadowing set down under Article 13, save that no citizen may shadow into the breaking of ore or the measuring of distance without also being found fit by the Head of Mines, beyond whatever fitness Article 13 alone would require.

- (a) The Head of Mines shall keep, and pass to their own shadow before leaving office, a full accounting of the ore won by season, the workings that have been opened and closed, and the distances measured from the silo's structure to the farthest working.

- (b) No citizen shall be assigned to Mines against the citizen's own naming of a trade at the age Article 13 sets down, save where the Department's need for a given trade cannot otherwise be met, in which case Judicial shall confirm that the assignment is not made in punishment.

SECTION 6. THE SHIFTS AND THE SHORING

The workings are kept by shifts, and the shoring is kept before the ore.

- (a) The workings are worked in two shifts in every day, and no citizen, whether of the trade or sentenced under Article 17, works below for more than one shift in a day, nor for more than the day's shift on nine days of the cycle, the tenth being the rest day under Article 1; the Head of Mines posts the shifts at the Department's door at each turn of the season.
- (b) No working is broken or advanced until the shoring of it is set and the shorer of the shift has entered in the shift's log that it is sound; a citizen who breaks ore beyond the last set shoring is answerable under Article 17, and the miner of proven skill under Section 2 who allowed it with them.
- (c) At the change of every shift, the miners going off and coming on count each other at the head of the workings, and the count is entered in the shift's log with the names of every citizen below; no shift goes off until every citizen of it is counted up, and a citizen missing at the count is sought before any other thing is done.
- (d) The shorers of Mines are a trade of full shadowing under Section 5, and a shorer's judgment that a working is unsound stands against any order to advance it, from the Head of Mines or any officer, until the Head of Mechanical under Section 4 has seen the working and entered otherwise.

SECTION 7. THE MEASURING OF DISTANCE

The limit of Section 3 is kept by measuring, and the measuring is kept by more hands than one.

- (a) The Head of Mines keeps a measurer for every working, a citizen of the trade found fit under Section 5, who measures the working's farthest face from the silo's own structure at the start of every cycle, by a chain of a length the Head of Mechanical has proved and marked, and enters the distance in the working's log with the day and the measurer's name.

- (b) The chain of measure is kept at the head of the workings, and no other is used; it is proved against the marks of the silo's own structure once in every season by the Head of Mines and the Head of Mechanical together, and the proving entered.
- (c) Where a working's measured distance reaches nine parts in ten of the limit under Section 3, the measurer enters it so, the Head of Mines is told the same day, and the working is measured at the start of every shift thereafter until it is closed or turned; a working that reaches the limit is closed and its face shored blind, and the closing entered.
- (d) The measurer of a working and the miner of proven skill under Section 2 are never the same citizen; and any citizen of Mines may ask to see a working's log of distance and may not be refused.

SECTION 8. ACCIDENT IN THE WORKINGS

The workings fall, and flood, and choke; a Department that digs for the silo keeps the reckoning of what the digging costs.

- (a) A collapse, a flooding, or a fouling of the air in any working is met before all else by the counting-up of every citizen below under Section 6; the Head of Mines is told at once, and the Head of Mechanical within the same shift, and the two order together what the shoring, the pumps, and the vents require.
- (b) A citizen hurt in the workings is carried to the Down Deep's aid station under Article 19 before any other thing is done; a death is reported to the Infirmary and to Judicial the same day, and the place of it is left as it lies until an Officer of Judicial has seen it, so far as the safety of those still below allows.
- (c) The Head of Mines keeps a roll of accidents as Article 9 provides for Mechanical, reads it to the Department at each turn of the season, copies it to the Judicial archive, and reports its count yearly to the Mayor; where a collapse came of a working advanced beyond its shoring, or beyond the limit under Section 3, the Head reports it to Judicial as an offense.
- (d) A citizen sentenced under Article 17 who is hurt in the workings is cared for by the Infirmary exactly as a citizen of the trade, and the term does not run while the citizen cannot work below; a citizen so hurt who cannot return below serves what remains of the term in the labor of the processing stations under Section 2, or, where the Head Physician finds the citizen unfit for that, petitions Judicial to shorten the term, and Judicial hears the petition as Article 6 provides.

OF SUPPLY, HYDROPONICS, AND THE RATION

In which is set down the charge of Supply: the growing of food, the keeping of its stores and the silo's stores of water and air, and the setting of the ration by which every citizen's share is known and kept fair.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF SUPPLY

Supply is charged with the growing of food, the keeping of the silo's stores of food, water, and air, and the setting and distribution of the ration by which those stores are shared among the citizens.

- (a) The Department is led by a Head of Supply, raised up from among its own trades by the shadowing entered into under Article 13, and confirmed in office by the Mayor.
- (b) Every citizen assigned to a trade of Supply serves under the Head of Supply in the ordinary conduct of that trade, and remains bound in every other respect to this Pact, to the Sheriff, and to Judicial, exactly as any other citizen is bound.
- (c) Supply keeps within it the office of Housing, charged under Article 14 with the assignment and keeping of every dwelling, and with reporting to Judicial under Article 2 every change of a citizen's floor or household; the keeper of that office is raised by short shadowing under Article 13 and answers to the Head of Supply, whose approval every assignment under Article 14 requires.

SECTION 2. HYDROPONICS AND THE KEEPING OF LIVESTOCK

The growing of food is carried out in the hydroponic farms of the Mids, as Article 1 sets down, and in such further plots and pens as Supply is given charge of.

- (a) Supply may keep livestock for the ration's sake, in such number and kind as the silo's stores of feed and space allow, and no citizen not assigned to that keeping may tend, slaughter, or dispose of an animal kept under this clause.
- (b) A citizen who tends the farms or the livestock of Supply is answerable for the yield of that tending, and a citizen found to have wasted, spoiled, or diverted food or feed from its proper use is answerable under Article 17.

SECTION 3. THE RATION

The ration is set by the Head of Supply from the full count of the rolls under Article 2, and no other number, that every citizen's share may be known and kept fair.

- (a) A citizen's ration is theirs by right from naming to death, save where this Pact provides otherwise, and is not increased for labor, office, or seniority, though it may be adjusted for age, health, or condition where Article 13 or Article 19 expressly provides.
- (b) Where the silo's stores fall short of the ration this Pact provides, the Head of Supply shall report the shortfall to the Mayor and to Judicial without delay, and the ration shall be lessened by the smallest measure the shortfall requires, and lessened alike for every citizen, without exception of floor, trade, or office.
- (c) Goods too many or too heavy for a citizen's own carrying shall pass between the Down Deep and the floors of Supply by the freight lift under Article 9, and from Supply to every floor by such further means as this Pact elsewhere provides.

SECTION 4. STORES OF WATER AND AIR

Supply shall keep such stores of water and air as Mechanical delivers under Article 9, and shall distribute them by the same ration this Article sets down.

- (a) Where the works of water or air under Article 9 fail or fall short, Supply shall draw upon its stores to hold the ration steady for so long as those stores allow, and shall report to the Head of Mechanical and to the Mayor the day those stores will not.

SECTION 5. SANCTIONED ANIMALS KEPT BY CITIZENS

A citizen who wishes to keep an animal for companionship, and not for the ration, may petition Supply to sanction it; Supply shall weigh the silo's stores of feed against the asking, and may grant, limit, or refuse the sanction as those stores require.

- (a) An animal kept under this section draws upon the household's own ration for its feed, and is counted, for every purpose of this Pact, as the sanctioning citizen's to answer for.
- (b) An animal kept without sanction under this section is treated as livestock diverted from Supply under Section 2, and the citizen keeping it is answerable under Article 17.

SECTION 6. THE DRAWING OF THE RATION

The ration is drawn, and not delivered: a citizen comes to it, and it is given against the citizen's name.

- (a) A citizen draws the ration at the cafeteria of the citizen's own zone under Article 20 for meals taken there, and at the Supply station of the citizen's floor for the household's own stores, upon showing the occupant card under Article 2. The station marks the drawing against the citizen's name for the ten days, and a ration not drawn within its ten days returns to the stores and is not owed again.
- (b) One citizen of a household may draw for the whole household upon the cards of all its members, the roll of the household kept by Housing under Article 14 being the station's warrant for it; a citizen who draws upon a card not the citizen's own household's, or upon the card of a citizen dead or removed, is answerable under Article 17 as for the diversion of stores.
- (c) A citizen confined by illness under Article 19, by sentence, or by the press of labor certified by the Head of Department, may have the ration carried by a porter under Article 21 or by the Department's own runner, and the station marks it as carried and to whom.
- (d) The ration of a child is drawn by the child's household, and of a ward of the silo by the nursery or school under Article 15, or by the household that has taken the child under Article 3.

SECTION 7. THE RECKONING OF THE STORES

What the silo holds is counted, and the count is known, that no shortage arrive unannounced and no plenty be spent unrecorded.

- (a) The Head of Supply reckons the stores of food, water, and air at the turn of every season, in a written reckoning entered in the Judicial archive and reported to the Mayor, stating what is held, what the season's ration will draw, and how many seasons the stores would hold at that draw if no more were grown or made.
- (b) Supply keeps a reserve of stores against a failure of the farms or the works, not less than one season's full ration for the count of the rolls, drawn upon only by the Mayor's written order under Article 4 or under Article 22, and made good again before any other use of a season's surplus.
- (c) The seed of every crop grown in the farms is kept in a store apart, under a Seed-Keeper raised by full shadowing under Article 13, and no seed line is let lapse, nor sown out entire, nor given to any citizen; the Seed-Keeper reports the store with the season's reckoning.
- (d) A citizen who tends the farms, the stores, or the stations of Supply is subject to the audit Article 13 provides for those who keep the silo's goods, and the Head of Supply orders it without notice.

SECTION 8. THE FARMS AND THE ROTATION

The farms are the silo's ground, and the silo's ground is finite; this section sets down how it is kept in heart.

- (a) The hydroponic farms of the Mids are kept in beds, each bed numbered, its crop, its sowing, and its cutting entered in the farm's own roll; the Head of Supply sets the crop of every bed at each turn of the season, in a rotation the Head posts at the farm's door, that no bed carry one crop past what the Head judges the water and the light can bear.
- (b) Such plots of soil as Supply keeps beyond the hydroponic beds are kept in the same rotation and the same roll, and are fed with the reclaimed matter Mechanical returns under Article 9 and with what Section 13 provides; no soil is taken from the farms for any other use.

- (c) The light and the warmth of the farms are drawn from the generator under Article 9 by a share the Head of Mechanical and the Head of Supply agree at each turn of the season and enter with the Mayor; in a shortfall of power, the farms' share is lessened last of all the silo's uses save the works themselves, the Infirmary, and the stations of official word under Article 8, in the order Article 22 provides.
- (d) A grower of Supply is a trade of full shadowing under Article 13, and answers for the beds in the grower's charge as Section 2 provides; a citizen of any other trade may be set to the farms' simple labor under Article 13 for a season, at the Head of Supply's asking and the citizen's own Head's leave.

SECTION 9. WATER FOR THE FARMS

- (a) The farms draw their water from the works under Article 9 by a measure the Head of Mechanical sets and enters, and return to the works what the beds do not take up; no water is drawn for the farms beyond that measure, nor let run to waste, and a grower who finds a bed drawing more than its share reports it the same day.
- (b) In a shortfall of water, the farms' draw is lessened after the ration of every citizen is held at the least this Article allows, and before the works' own reserve is touched; the Head of Supply orders which beds are let go dry, beginning with those whose crop the stores can longest spare, and enters the order.
- (c) The water of the farms is tested by the Infirmary under Article 19 at every turn of the season, and at any time the Head Physician asks, and a bed found fouled is emptied and its crop given to reclamation, not to the ration.

SECTION 10. THE ANIMALS KEPT AND THEIR SLAUGHTER

- (a) Supply keeps such animals as the ration requires and the farms' waste can feed, in pens on the farms' own floors, under a livestock tender of full shadowing; the count of every kind is entered in the farm's roll at each turn of the season with the births and the deaths, and the Head of Supply sets the count of each kind to be kept, and no more are bred.
- (b) An animal is slaughtered only by the butcher of Supply, a trade of full shadowing, on a day the Head of Supply sets, and every part of it is entered: what goes to the ration, what to the Infirmary, what to Mechanical for reclamation, and what to the soil; no animal is slaughtered for any household, and no part of an animal is sold in the market under Article 12 save what the ration has already given a citizen.

- (c) An animal that sickens is set apart from the rest and shown to a Physician under Article 19; an animal the Physician finds a danger to the silo's health is killed and given to reclamation entire, and the pen it was kept in cleansed before another is put there.
- (d) A sanctioned animal under Section 5 is not livestock and is not bred; the offspring of a sanctioned animal are Supply's, and are taken to the pens or given to sanction elsewhere as the Head of Supply judges the feed allows.

SECTION 11. SPOILAGE AND ITS REPORTING

- (a) Every store of food is turned by the stores clerk of its floor at each cycle, the oldest drawn first, and what has spoiled is entered by kind and by weight in the store's roll and given to reclamation; the roll is read by the Head of Supply at each turn of the season with the reckoning under Section 7.
- (b) Spoilage in one store beyond one part in twenty of what the store holds is reported to the Head of Supply the same day, who sends a grower or a clerk to find the cause; a cause found in the store's keeping is corrected under Article 13, and a cause found in the water, the air, or the warmth is reported to the Head of Mechanical.
- (c) No citizen may draw, sell, or give to another a thing the store's roll has entered as spoiled; to do so is the diversion of stores under Section 2.

SECTION 12. THE STATIONS OF SUPPLY

- (a) Supply keeps a station on every floor that holds a dwelling, or on the nearest floor where a floor holds none, from which the ration of the households of that floor is drawn under Section 6; the station is kept by a stores clerk of short shadowing under Article 13, who keeps the station's roll of drawings and its store.
- (b) A station is open for the drawing of the ration on every day of the cycle save the rest day, from the first labor of the day to the last, and a household that cannot draw in those hours by reason of its trade may draw on the rest day upon the clerk's leave entered in the roll.

- (c) The station's store is filled from the farms and the deep stores at each cycle by the distribution runners of Supply, by the stair, and by the freight lift under Article 9 where the load requires it; what is carried is entered at both ends, and the two entries compared by the Head of Supply at each turn of the season.
- (d) A station is not a common area under Article 7; a citizen enters it to draw, and no citizen not of Supply enters its store.

SECTION 13. THE STORES OF A HOUSEHOLD UPON A DEATH, AND THE RETURN OF THE DEAD

What a citizen has drawn and not used goes back to the silo when the citizen does; and so does the citizen.

- (a) Upon a citizen's death recorded under Article 2, the station of the citizen's floor strikes the citizen's name from the household's drawing at the next cycle, and the household's store already drawn is the household's to keep; where the citizen was the whole household, the store is returned to the station within one cycle by the household's kin or by Housing, and entered.
- (b) The body of a citizen dead within the silo is given, after the Infirmary's examination under Article 19 and the household's leave-taking under that Article, to the soil of the farms, that what the silo fed may feed it again; the giving is entered in the farm's roll with the citizen's name and the bed, and the household may know the bed, and may be present at the giving, and no marker is set upon it beyond the roll's entry.
- (c) No body is kept above ground beyond one day after the Infirmary's examination, save by Judicial's order in a matter under Article 6, and no body is given to any use but the soil, nor kept by any household.

OF TRADE, CHITS, AND COMMERCE

In which is set down the chit, the silo's currency of trade, the marketplace where citizens buy and sell goods beyond the ration, and the keeping of accounts that make such commerce orderly and just.

SECTION 1. THE CHIT AND THE EARNING OF CHITS

A chit is a token of value, issued by the silo and verified by the Chit-Keepers under Section 3, that represents a citizen's claim upon the silo's goods and the skilled labor of other citizens. A citizen earns chits through labor — by the work done in a trade, by the goods made or services rendered, by the time spent in the silo's keeping or the Departments' employ.

- (a) Every citizen engaged in labor under Article 13 shall receive chits as payment for that labor, at a rate set by the Heads of Departments in consultation with the Mayor. The rate may vary by trade — skilled labor receives more than unskilled, dangerous labor may receive more than safe — but no citizen's chits shall be withheld or docked as punishment for work performed, save by order of Judicial for restitution under Article 17 or for the settling of a debt under Section 5.
- (b) A citizen retired from labor under Article 13 shall continue to receive a modest sustenance in chits, sufficient to purchase small goods and comforts beyond the ration, administered by Supply under Article 11 upon the Infirmary's certification of the citizen's continuing need under Article 19.
- (c) A citizen sentenced to the mines under Article 17 receives no chits during the sentence; upon release, chits resume at the rate set for the citizen's assigned trade.

- (d) Chits are personal property and may not be seized, stolen, or diverted, save by Judicial order for the payment of debts or damages under Article 17. A citizen robbed of chits may appeal to the Sheriff for recovery; a citizen unable to recover them may petition Judicial for recompense.

SECTION 2. THE MARKETPLACE AND THE SALE OF GOODS

Beyond the guaranteed ration of Article 11, citizens may purchase additional goods, specialized items, and the skilled labor of other citizens using chits. The marketplace is the ordinary mechanism of this trade: citizens may sell goods they have made or grown, or labor they have performed, to other citizens, with chits passing between them.

- (a) A citizen may buy and sell goods with other citizens without restriction, save that no citizen may sell goods that belong to the silo or to a Department — a Mechanical worker may not sell the silo's tools, nor a Supply clerk the silo's stores, and so for every Department alike.
- (b) A citizen engaged in a skilled trade — tailoring, cobbling, carpentry, or other craft — may sell the fruits of that trade to other citizens for chits, in addition to any goods the citizen's Department provides.
- (c) The silo maintains markets — designated areas on floors throughout the silo — where citizens may gather to buy and sell. The Sheriff under Article 7 keeps order in the markets and ensures no violence or theft occurs there.
- (d) A Market Clerk, raised up by short shadowing under Article 13 and appointed by the Mayor or the relevant Department Head, oversees a market and may set aside stalls for regular vendors or open vendors, may establish basic rules of conduct against spoiled goods and fraudulent claims, and may report disputes to Judicial or the Sheriff as required.

SECTION 3. THE CHIT-KEEPERS AND THE REGULATION OF CURRENCY

Chits are issued by the silo through the Chit-Keepers, who maintain the accounts of every citizen, verify the authenticity of chits in circulation, prevent counterfeiting, and ensure that the silo's currency holds its value and remains trustworthy.

- (a) The Chit-Keepers are appointed by the Mayor and overseen by the Head of Supply under Article 11. The Chit-Keepers keep two rolls:

one master roll of all chits issued, and one ledger of every citizen's balance, debits, and credits.

- (b) A citizen may, at any time, ask a Chit-Keeper to audit the citizen's balance or the authenticity of chits the citizen holds. The Chit-Keeper shall verify the chits and compare them to the citizen's ledger entry; any discrepancy is reported to Judicial.
- (c) Counterfeiting a chit, or possessing a counterfeit chit knowing it to be false, is among the gravest offenses under Article 17, as it strikes at the silo's foundation of trust in its own currency.
- (d) The Chit-Keeper may, at the Mayor's direction, revalue chits in the event of severe shortage or glut — as, for example, where the silo's stores are depleted and chits have grown too numerous, the Mayor may order a revaluation downward. Such a revaluation is announced to the Assembly under Article 20 and entered in the Judicial archive.

SECTION 4. PRICES, FAIRNESS, AND THE REGULATION OF COMMERCE

The silo does not fix the price of goods sold between citizens; a tailor and a customer may negotiate what chits a shirt is worth. But the silo does intervene where prices become extortionate or where a citizen attempts to hold a necessary good to themselves alone.

- (a) A citizen may charge what price they wish for goods or labor offered to another citizen, and the other citizen may refuse to pay. No one is compelled to buy or sell at any given price.
- (b) If a citizen accuses another of charging an unjust price — unreasonably high compared to the goods' actual value or necessity — either party may appeal to the Market Clerk in the first instance; if either party remains unsatisfied, the matter is carried to Judicial, which alone may rule that the price is unjust and order a transaction reversed or the chits returned.
- (c) A citizen may not charge a price so high that other citizens are priced out of necessary goods — as, for example, a water-seal seller charging so much that ordinary citizens cannot afford to seal their household water-stores. In such case the Mayor may, under the emergency authority of Article 22, set a maximum price for goods deemed essential; this is a measure of general policy reserved for genuine emergency, and is no substitute for Judicial's ordinary adjudication of a single unjust transaction under the clause above.

- (d) No citizen may prevent another citizen from selling goods or labor in the marketplace, save where Judicial finds the person selling is engaged in fraud, theft, or the sale of forbidden items under Article 16.

SECTION 5. DEBT, CREDIT, AND THE SETTLING OF ACCOUNTS

A citizen may borrow chits from another citizen, creating a debt that must be repaid. The silo does not compel repayment of such debts, but the Chit-Keepers keep records of them, and Judicial may enforce them if a debtor refuses to pay and the creditor brings suit.

- (a) A debt is a promise of repayment made between two citizens, recorded either by their own sworn statement to the Chit-Keepers or by a written note signed by both parties. A debt so recorded is legally binding.
- (b) A debtor who is unable to repay may petition Judicial for a reduction of the debt or an extended payment schedule; Judicial may grant such relief if the debtor's circumstances are genuine and the creditor is not unduly harmed.
- (c) A creditor who forgives a debt shall notify the Chit-Keepers, and the debt is removed from the ledger. A creditor who refuses to record the forgiveness, continuing to claim a debt the citizen has actually repaid, is answerable under Article 17 for fraud.
- (d) No citizen may be held to servitude without end for the paying of a debt. No debt shall extend beyond the debtor's death, nor shall a debt be transferred to a debtor's children or heirs.

SECTION 6. THE GOODS AND SERVICES OF THE SILO

The silo's skilled workers — tailors, cobblers, carpenters, rope-makers, and others — may be engaged for work by citizens willing to pay chits. The silo does not compel such work; the craftspeople may accept or refuse commissions as they choose.

- (a) A skilled worker may, in addition to any work performed for their Department, undertake private commissions from citizens willing to pay chits. The worker and the citizen shall agree on a price and timeline before the work begins.
- (b) A citizen commissioned to make a good may refuse the commission without penalty, and a citizen commissioning a good may refuse to accept it or pay if the work is not as promised; disputes over such commissions are heard by the Market Clerk in the first instance, and, if either party remains unsatisfied, by Judicial.

- (c) Certain goods and services are restricted to licensed or skilled workers only — as, for example, only a physician may sell medicines under Article 19, and only an electrician may repair certain technical goods under Article 8's licensing. A citizen advertising such goods or services without proper license is answerable under Article 17.

SECTION 7. THE PROTECTION OF THE MARKETPLACE AND THE SILO'S TRUST

The marketplace depends on trust: that chits are real, that sellers deliver what they promise, that buyers pay fairly, and that the Sheriff and the Chit-Keepers enforce these expectations. The protection of this trust is a standing charge of the Sheriff's office and the Chit-Keepers themselves.

- (a) The Sheriff patrols the markets and nearby areas where citizens gather to trade, and may apprehend any citizen observed committing theft, fraud, or violence in the course of trade.
- (b) A citizen who is defrauded in a trade — sold counterfeit goods, shorted on chits, or given lesser work than promised — may report the matter to the Sheriff or the Market Clerk; that official shall investigate and, if fraud is found, refer the citizen who did it to Judicial.
- (c) The Chit-Keepers maintain security over the silo's stores of blank chits and the apparatus by which new chits are issued; any citizen who steals or tampers with blank chits, or who aids in their theft or counterfeiting, is answerable under Article 17 among the gravest offenses.

SECTION 8. THE MARKET DAYS AND THE STALLS

A market is a floor, a day, and a roll; this section sets down all three.

- (a) Supply keeps a market on such floors of the Mids as the Head of Supply names, not fewer than three, and on one floor of the Down Deep near the works; a market is held on such days of the cycle as the Market Clerk posts at the landing, not fewer than three in the cycle and never the rest day, from the first labor of the day to the last.

- (b) The Market Clerk keeps a roll of stalls, each numbered, and assigns a stall to a citizen who petitions for one, for a season at a time, in the order of petition, save that a citizen confirmed in a trade of craft under Section 6 has first claim to a stall on the citizen's own floor's market; a stall not kept on three market days in a cycle is struck from the roll and offered to the next petitioner.
- (c) A citizen keeping a stall pays Supply, in chits, at each turn of the season, a fee the Head of Supply sets alike for every stall of the same size and posts at the landing; the fee is entered in the citizen's ledger under Section 3, and no other charge is made for the stall.
- (d) A citizen without a stall may sell from the citizen's own hands on a market day, in the market's open ground and not at the landing or the stair, without fee; the Market Clerk may move such a citizen where the press of citizens requires, and no further.
- (e) The market's ground is kept clean by the citizens who keep stalls, by turns the Market Clerk posts, and a stall-keeper who does not keep the turn is struck from the roll for a season.

SECTION 9. THE WEIGHTS AND MEASURES OF TRADE

A thing sold by weight or by measure is sold by the silo's weight and the silo's measure, and by no other.

- (a) Mechanical keeps, under Article 9, a standard of weight and a standard of length and of volume, proved against the marks the builders left and entered; from these Mechanical makes, marks, and numbers such weights, rules, and measures as the markets and the stations of Supply require, and no other weight or measure is used in trade.
- (b) The Market Clerk keeps a set of the marked weights and measures at every market and proves every scale and measure used at a stall against them at each turn of the season, entering the proving; a scale or measure found false is taken by the Clerk and given to Mechanical, and the citizen who used it is answerable under Article 17 for fraud where the Clerk finds the falseness was known.
- (c) A citizen who doubts a weight or a measure at a stall may ask the Market Clerk to prove it there, and the Clerk proves it in the sight of both; a citizen who asks it three times in a season without cause found pays the Clerk a chit for each further asking.

SECTION 10. THE CHIT ITSELF

A chit is a thing in the hand and an entry in a ledger, and the silo keeps both.

- (a) A chit is a token stamped by Mechanical under Article 9 to a pattern the Chit-Keepers keep and the Judge holds a copy of, in such values as the Chit-Keepers set and post at every market, and no citizen makes, marks, or alters one; the stock of blank tokens is kept by the Chit-Keepers under lock under Section 7, and the count of every stamping is entered with the Head of Mechanical's name and the Chit-Keepers'.
- (b) A chit passes from hand to hand in trade without entry, and the token is the whole of the claim it carries; but a citizen may bring chits to a Chit-Keeper and have them entered to the citizen's ledger under Section 3, and draw them out again as tokens at any time, and chits so entered are not lost with the token.
- (c) A chit worn beyond reading is brought to a Chit-Keeper and exchanged for a new one of the same value, the old one given to Mechanical for reclamation and the exchange entered; a chit found to be false is kept by the Chit-Keeper, entered, and reported to Judicial with the name of the citizen who brought it, who is not answerable for the bringing unless the Judge finds the citizen knew it false.
- (d) A citizen may keep chits in the token at home, and a chit stolen is a theft under Article 17 like any other; the silo does not make good a token stolen or lost, and a citizen who would not bear that risk enters chits to the ledger.

SECTION 11. THE SILO'S OWN PURCHASES

The silo does not buy what its Departments make; it may buy what a citizen makes, and it pays as a citizen pays.

- (a) A Head of Department may commission from a citizen of a craft under Section 6 a good the Department requires and does not itself make, for chits, at a price agreed before the work begins and entered with the Chit-Keepers; the Head pays from the Department's own account, which the Chit-Keepers keep and the Mayor reads at each turn of the season.
- (b) No Head may commission from a citizen a good the Department's own trades are assigned to make, nor pay a citizen of the Department's own trades for the labor of the trade beyond the rate under Section 1; a commission so made is entered as a diversion of the Department's account, and the Head answers for it under Article 17.

- (c) A citizen may refuse a Department's commission as any other, and a Department may not withhold the ration, the dwelling, or a shadow on account of the refusal.

SECTION 12. BARTER WITHOUT CHITS

Not every trade passes a chit, and this Pact does not require that it should.

- (a) Two citizens may exchange goods or labor for goods or labor without chits, and no entry is required of it; such an exchange is not a debt under Section 5, and Judicial does not enforce a promise of barter unmet, though a good delivered and not paid for in the good promised is a theft under Article 17 where the Judge finds it was never meant to be paid for.
- (b) No citizen may exchange for anything the ration, a thing of the silo's, a relic unsanctioned under Article 16, a restricted instrument, a medicine beyond the course a Physician set, or a chit for a chit of greater value; such an exchange is answerable under the Article that governs the thing exchanged.

OF LABOR, SHADOWING, AND THE ASSIGNMENT

In which is set down how the silo's citizens are matched to their work, how they are taught to do it, and the principle by which some labor is chosen freely and some is assigned by need.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF LABOR AND THE PRINCIPLE OF ASSIGNMENT

Every citizen, from the sixteenth naming-day onward, is bound to contribute labor to the silo's keeping, in such a trade or profession as the citizen's own aptitude, the silo's needs, and the Pact's requirements together determine. The silo contains one hundred and forty-four levels, built and provisioned to hold many thousands of souls; the work required to keep so many fed, watered, warmed, aired, and sheltered is immense and various. No citizen's labor is purchased by chits or offered freely; it is owed to the silo itself as a debt of citizenship.

- (a) A citizen may petition to enter a trade or profession for which the citizen has aptitude and desire, and such petition shall not be refused save where the silo's need for that trade is already met and other work goes short. The silo's welfare takes precedence over the individual citizen's preference, but a citizen's own petition is weighed first.
- (b) Where a trade is in short supply and the silo's need is critical, the Mayor and the Head of the relevant Department may jointly assign a citizen to that trade, without the citizen's consent, provided Judicial confirms that the assignment is not made in punishment under Article 17.
- (c) A citizen assigned to a trade without consent shall be tested for fitness in that trade; a citizen found unfit may petition Judicial for reassignment, and Judicial's finding shall bind.

- (d) A citizen who neglects the labor assigned, or who diverts the silo's tools, materials, or the citizen's own owed labor-time to a private study, pursuit, or fixation of the citizen's own devising, wastes what the silo cannot spare. The Head of the citizen's Department shall first correct such neglect by closer oversight or reassignment to labor better suited to occupy the citizen fully; where the neglect persists notwithstanding, the Head shall refer the matter to Judicial.

SECTION 2. THE TESTING OF APTITUDE

From a citizen's twelfth naming-day forward, the schools under Article 15 shall assess each child's aptitude for various kinds of labor: the working of tools, the tending of living things, the care of people, the working with numbers, the keeping of records, and such other aptitudes as the silo's work requires. A citizen reaching majority shall have some knowledge of which trades might suit the citizen's own nature.

- (a) The testing of aptitude is not a trial to be passed or failed; it is a guidance, carried into the citizen's majority and weighed when the citizen first petitions for entry into a trade.
- (b) A citizen may petition to enter a trade notwithstanding the aptitude testing's results, but a Head of a Department may weigh the results against the petition: where a citizen's expressed desire runs sharply against demonstrated aptitude, the Head may require an extended trial period or additional testing before accepting the citizen's shadow.
- (c) A citizen who petitions for a trade for which the silo has no current need, but for which the citizen has clear aptitude, may be entered on a roll of those waiting; if the silo's need for that trade grows, the waiting citizen has first claim when a shadow becomes available.

SECTION 3. THE THREE TIERS OF SHADOWING AND LABOR ENTRY

The silo's work is divided into three categories by the length and rigor of training required. A citizen enters a trade through one of three pathways: a full shadowing of years spent learning from a departing master; a short shadowing of some cycles or a season for moderately skilled labor; or direct assignment to a simple task requiring little or no formal training.

- (a) Full shadowing is the entry into trades of high skill, significant responsibility, or access to restricted knowledge or dangerous instruments. The shadowing shall not be less than three years nor more than seven, at the sole determination of the master being shadowed; the shadow shall live and work alongside the master, learning not only the technical work but the judgment and reliability the trade requires.

- (b) Short shadowing is the entry into trades of moderate skill or administrative responsibility. The shadowing shall be no fewer than three cycles and ordinarily no longer than one season, or two seasons in exceptional cases, at the determination of the master or the Head of the Department.
- (c) Direct assignment without formal shadowing is permitted for labor of little skill requirement, such as simple carrying, sorting, distribution, or maintenance tasks. A citizen assigned to such work receives instruction as the work requires, but no formal apprenticeship period.
- (d) A citizen who has shadowed under a master may not be removed from that shadow by the citizen's own request, nor by the master's, save with the consent of the other party or a finding by Judicial that the shadow is unfit. A shadow abandoned by either party without cause is answerable under Article 17 for breach of a commitment made before Judicial.

SECTION 4. MUNDANE LABOR AND THE SIMPLE TRADES

The silo requires much work of simple character: the carrying of goods and messages, the distribution of supplies, the painting and repair of common surfaces, the sorting of salvage, the cleaning of common areas, the tending of the simple tasks of kitchen and cafeteria. These trades require no formal shadowing, little specialized training, and are open to any citizen of sufficient strength or steadiness for the work.

- (a) A citizen wishing to enter such work may do so upon the petition to the relevant Head of Department or, for work not assigned to any Department, to the Mayor. The Head shall assign the citizen to the work or place the citizen on a list of those available.
- (b) No license, restricted access, or formal testing is required for such work, save that a citizen assigned to the keeping or moving of the silo's stored goods is subject to such audit of what is carried and what is delivered as the Head of Department orders from time to time.

- (c) A citizen engaged in simple labor may be reassigned by the Head of the Department at will, with one cycle of ten days' notice.

SECTION 5. SKILLED TRADES AND FULL SHADOWING

The silo's vital functions depend on trades of genuine skill: the tending of the generator and the works of water and air, the working of metal and the repair of machinery, the keeping of food stocks and the growing of crops, the healing of the sick, the keeping of records, the investigation of crime and the carrying out of sentences, the teaching of the young. These trades require years of learning under a master and may not be entered save through full shadowing.

- (a) A citizen wishing to enter a skilled trade shall petition the Head of the relevant Department. The Head shall examine the citizen's aptitude testing and interview the citizen, and may accept or refuse the petition. A refusal may be appealed to Judicial.
- (b) Where a shadow is accepted, a master who possesses the trade and plans to step down from it shall take the shadow as an apprentice. A master who does not plan to step down may be required by the Head of Department to take a shadow if the Department's needs require it, provided Judicial finds the requirement just.
- (c) The shadow shall be tested, formally and informally, throughout the shadowing period. A shadow found unfit may be dismissed by the master or the Head of Department, provided Judicial is informed; a shadow dismissed may petition Judicial for reassignment to a different trade.
- (d) Upon the completion of shadowing, the master shall attest the citizen's readiness to the Head of Department. The Head shall confirm the citizen in the trade, or, if the Head finds the citizen unfit despite the master's attestation, shall refer the matter to Judicial for a ruling.

SECTION 6. CRITICAL ROLES AND ORDER-ADJACENT TRADES

Certain trades carry access to knowledge or authority that goes beyond the ordinary silo's work: the technicians of Information Technology, the Sensor and Wallscreen workers, the Cleaning-Lab technicians, the teachers of the young, the Officers of Judicial, the Physicians of the Infirmary. These roles require not only full shadowing but additional testing and vetting, beyond what the shadowing system alone determines.

- (a) A citizen entering a critical role shall undergo, in addition to the usual shadowing, such further testing and vetting as the relevant Head of Department determines. This vetting may include examination by Judicial, investigation by the Officers of Judicial, and assessment of the citizen's steadiness, discretion, and loyalty to the Pact.
- (b) No citizen shall be compelled to undergo such vetting, and a citizen refusing it shall not be forced into a critical role; a citizen may withdraw from a shadow for a critical role at any point, and shall not be punished for the withdrawal.
- (c) A citizen confirmed in a critical role remains subject to this vetting throughout the citizen's tenure; a Head of Department may require additional vetting at any time, and may remove a citizen from a critical role if the vetting reveals cause.
- (d) The specifics of the vetting for any particular critical role are not set down in this Pact, but are determined by the Head of Department and are kept in the Judicial archive. No vetting procedure may contradict this Pact or require a citizen to violate it.
- (e) No citizen afflicted with the Syndrome, as Article 19 describes it, may hold any public office of the silo — the Mayor, the Deputy Mayor, the Judge, the Sheriff, or the Head of any Department — nor enter, hold, or continue in any critical role under this section. A citizen so afflicted shall report the affliction to the Head Physician and resign the office or role at once, and a successor is named as the Article governing that office provides; where no Article provides, the relevant Head of Department or the Mayor shall proceed by the shadowing and vetting of this Article to confirm one.

SECTION 7. THE MANAGEMENT OF LABOR SUPPLY AND CITIZEN ASSIGNMENT

The silo's various Departments require different numbers of citizens in different trades, and these needs change as the silo ages, as citizens retire or are removed by death or cleaning, and as the work itself changes. Where the silo's need for a particular trade cannot be met by citizens' own petitions, the system of assignment ensures adequate staffing.

- (a) Each Head of Department shall, annually or as the Department's needs change, report to the Mayor the Department's required staffing levels by trade. The Mayor, in consultation with the Heads of Department and the Assembly under Article 20, shall establish the silo's labor needs for the coming year.

- (b) Where citizens' own petitions for a trade exceed the silo's need for that trade, the excess petitioners are entered on a roll of those waiting, in the order of their petitions; as citizens retire or die, the roll is drawn upon in that order.
- (c) Where the silo's need for a trade exceeds the number of citizens who have petitioned for it, and the roll of those waiting is exhausted, the Mayor and the relevant Head of Department may jointly assign citizens to that trade, subject to Judicial confirmation as provided in Section 1.
- (d) No citizen of majority shall be left without assignment to some trade or labor, and no citizen's trade shall be left vacant without a shadow being prepared to fill it, save in genuine emergency. A citizen unable to find a trade to petition shall be assigned to mundane labor by the Mayor, pending opportunity for training in a more specialized field.

SECTION 8. REASSIGNMENT, RETIREMENT, AND THE MANAGEMENT OF CHANGE

A citizen's first assigned trade is not permanent. Citizens may petition for reassignment to a different trade after a least period of service — five years in a skilled trade, one year in simple labor; citizens may be reassigned by their Department if the citizen's fitness is questioned or the silo's needs change; citizens may retire from labor upon reaching such age as the Infirmary and the Mayor jointly determine.

- (a) A citizen petitioning for reassignment to a different trade shall undergo the usual petition and shadowing process for the new trade, except that a citizen's prior aptitude testing may be waived by the Head of the new Department if the citizen's years of successful service in another skilled trade demonstrate the necessary aptitude.
- (b) A citizen removed from a trade for cause — unfitness, abandonment of the shadowing, or breach of the citizen's duties — may petition for reassignment to a different trade, and Judicial shall rule on the petition; Judicial may grant reassignment, deny it, or require a period of service in mundane labor before permitting a reassignment to a new skilled trade.

- (c) A citizen reaching such age as the Infirmary judges the citizen no longer fit for the citizen's current trade may be reassigned to simpler labor, or, if unfit for any labor, may petition for retirement. Retirement ends the citizen's labor obligation under this Article, and the citizen becomes the responsibility of the silo under Article 19.
- (d) Where a Department's need for a particular trade diminishes, and the citizens holding that trade cannot be reassigned within the Department, they shall be reassigned to other Departments' needs, or retrained for related work, or retired if age or fitness permits. No citizen shall be removed from employment without alternative assignment or retirement.

SECTION 9. THE RIGHTS AND DUTIES OF THE SHADOWED

A citizen in shadowing is in a status between ordinary citizenship and full membership in a trade. The shadow owes the master and the silo earnest labor and obedience to the master's teaching; the master, the Department, and the silo owe the shadow fair treatment, protection from harm, and assessment according to genuine fitness.

- (a) A shadow shall receive the same ration as any other citizen under Article 11, and shall not be docked for tools, materials, or lodging during the shadowing period, save where the shadow has been assigned to lodging within the Department's own quarters, as a Down Deep trade requiring residence in Mechanical's own space.
- (b) A shadow may not be punished by the master for ordinary mistakes in learning, but may be dismissed for willful negligence, refusal to obey instruction, or breach of the Pact. A shadow dismissed shall be paid for the time worked and shall not be bound by any contract to repay training costs.
- (c) A master may not strike, deprive of food, or otherwise assault a shadow, and a shadow subjected to such treatment may appeal to Judicial or the Sheriff under Article 7 for relief and may be released from the shadowing without penalty.

SECTION 10. THE CONTRACT OF SHADOWING

A shadowing is not begun by a master's nod; it is entered before Judicial, and it binds as an entry binds.

- (a) Before a shadowing of either tier begins, the master, the shadow, and the Head of the Department present before the Clerk of Judicial, or before a deputy of Judicial sent to the Department's floor, and enter the contract of shadowing: the trade, the tier under Section 3, the master's name and the shadow's, the day the shadowing begins, the span it is to run, the lodging the shadow is to have under Section 9, and whether the trade is a critical role under Section 6.

- (b) The three sign the entry, and the Clerk gives a copy to each; the entry is kept in the archive under Article 21, and the shadow's occupant card is entered with the trade and the word shadow beside it, which is struck upon confirmation.
- (c) The span entered is the master's judgment under Section 3, and may be lengthened once by the master, by a further entry with the Clerk, for cause the master states; it may not be shortened save by the confirmation under Section 12, and a shadowing that runs past its span without confirmation or dismissal is reported by the Clerk to the Head of the Department, who rules upon it within one cycle.
- (d) A shadow of a critical role enters, beside the contract, the vetting Section 6 requires, and the contract does not bind until the Head has entered that the vetting is passed; a shadow who withdraws under Section 6 before that entry withdraws without mark.
- (e) No citizen holds two contracts of shadowing at once, and no master takes two shadows at once in one trade, save where the Head of the Department enters that the trade's need requires it and Judicial finds the master able.

SECTION 11. THE CONDUCT OF A SHADOWING

What a master owes a shadow, and a shadow a master, between the entry and the confirmation.

- (a) A shadow works the master's own hours and the master's own shifts, in the master's presence, and is given no work of the trade the master is not present for until the master enters in the shadow's record that the shadow may be; a shadow given such work before that entry is not answerable for what comes of it, and the master is.
- (b) The master keeps a record of the shadowing, in the Department's own roll, entering at each turn of the season what the shadow has been taught, what the shadow can do alone, and what the shadow cannot yet; the shadow reads the entry and signs it, or enters beside it what the shadow disputes, and the Head of the Department reads every record at each turn of the season.

- (c) A shadow is fed, lodged, and given the rest day as any citizen, and draws the shadow's chits under Article 12 at the rate of the trade's simple labor until confirmed; a shadow lodged in a Department's own quarters under Section 9 keeps the household's dwelling under Article 14 where the shadow has one, and Housing does not reassign it for the shadowing's span.
- (d) A shadow may be sent by the master to another master of the same trade, in the same Department, for a season, for teaching the master cannot give; the sending is entered in the record, and the second master enters the season's teaching, and the first master's contract stands.
- (e) Where the master falls sick, retires, dies, or is removed before the span runs, the Head of the Department names another master of the trade within one cycle, and the contract is entered anew with the Clerk under Section 10 for what remains of the span, the seasons already served counted; a shadow whose master is sent to clean is so re-entered without mark, and the archive does not record the cause of the re-entry against the shadow's name.

SECTION 12. THE ENDING OF A SHADOWING

A shadowing ends in one of four ways, and each is entered.

- (a) Confirmation: upon the span's end, or before it where the master enters that the shadow is ready, the master attests the shadow's readiness to the Head of the Department under Section 5, and the Head confirms the shadow in the trade by an entry with the Clerk of Judicial, or refers the matter to Judicial as that Section provides; the shadow is of the trade from the entry, and the master's record is closed and kept in the archive.
- (b) Dismissal: a master or a Head who finds a shadow unfit under Section 5 enters the finding and the cause with the Clerk, and the shadow is dismissed from the entry; a shadow dismissed may petition Judicial under Section 5, and Judicial hears the master, the Head, and the shadow, and may restore the shadowing, end it without mark, or end it with the mark the master entered.
- (c) Release: a shadow who withdraws from a critical role under Section 6, or a shadow and master who agree to part under Section 3, enter the release with the Clerk, and the shadowing ends without mark; the shadow petitions another trade under Section 5 as any citizen, and the seasons served are credited to a shadowing of the same trade under another master where the Head so enters.

- (d) Abandonment: a shadow who leaves the master's hours and the trade's floor for one cycle without the master's leave, or a master who withholds the trade's teaching from a shadow for one season without cause entered, has abandoned the contract, and the other party enters it with the Clerk; the party who abandoned is answerable under Article 17 as Section 3 provides, and the shadowing is ended or re-entered under Section 11 as the Head judges.
- (e) Upon confirmation, the shadow inherits what the master steps down from: the master's tools licensed under Article 8 and Article 9, re-licensed to the shadow within one cycle; the master's place in the Department's shifts; and, where the master steps down from a trade lodged in a Department's own quarters, the master's quarters, the master being lodged by Housing under Article 14 within the season.

SECTION 13. THE MASTER'S OWN STANDING

A master is a citizen of the trade who has undertaken to leave it, and the silo keeps faith with the undertaking.

- (a) A citizen of a trade of full shadowing becomes a master by entering, with the Head of the Department, an undertaking to step down from the trade upon a shadow's confirmation, or upon a span the citizen names; a citizen may be required to take a shadow under Section 5 without such an undertaking, and is then a master for the shadow's span only, and keeps the trade after.
- (b) A master who has undertaken to step down keeps every standing of the trade until the shadow is confirmed, and steps down on the day of confirmation; a master who steps down is reassigned under Section 8 to such lighter labor of the same Department as the Head gives, or retires under Article 19 where the Infirmary finds the master fit for none, and keeps the dwelling under Article 14 for one season after stepping down whatever the reassignment.
- (c) A master's judgment of a shadow's readiness under Section 12 is the master's alone, and no Head or officer may order a master to attest a shadow ready; a Head who finds a master withholding attestation without cause refers the matter to Judicial, which may name another master of the trade to examine the shadow and attest in the first master's place, entering why.

- (d) A master who has taught three shadows to confirmation in one trade is entered in the Department's roll as a master of the trade for life, and may be asked by the Head to examine any shadow of the trade, or to sit with Judicial in a matter under Section 5 touching the trade, and is not required to take a further shadow.

OF HOUSING AND THE FLOORS

In which is set down the keeping of living quarters for every citizen, the assignment of floors by the silo's zones, the accountability of citizens for their dwelling places, and the principle that every citizen shall have shelter and no citizen shall have more than is needful.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF HOUSING AND THE DISTRIBUTION OF QUARTERS

Every citizen is entitled to a dwelling place appropriate to the citizen's household size and the silo's available stores, held under the administration of Housing, the office of the Department of Supply charged with dwellings under Article 11, and answering to the Head of Supply. No citizen may claim a dwelling as permanent property, nor may any citizen occupy a floor or dwelling without the approval and assignment of the Head of Supply, and no assignment may be moved or changed without the same approval given in good faith.

- (a) A dwelling shall be assigned to a citizen household by size and need: a single citizen, an aged citizen living alone, or a child too young for independent keeping shall receive a single room or small quarters; a partnership of two citizens contracted under Article 3 shall receive quarters adequate to the partnership's needs; a parent with one or more children shall receive quarters adequate to the household, with additional space for each child born under the lottery of Article 3.
- (b) A citizen assigned to a dwelling may make reasonable changes to the interior — paint, the arrangement of common furnishings, minor repairs — provided the citizen restores the dwelling to its original condition upon leaving or ceding the assignment; major structural repairs shall be made only by the Maintenance workers of Supply under Article 11.

- (c) The floor upon which a dwelling is located shall be occupied primarily by citizens of the trades assigned to that floor under Article 13, and by the households of such citizens, that the silo's work not be endangered by dispersal of the trades across all floors.
- (d) A citizen's assignment to a dwelling may be revoked by the Head of Supply for failure to keep the dwelling in good repair, for violation of the Pact's requirements concerning the use of a dwelling under Section 3, or for the citizen's reassignment to a new trade requiring residence on a different floor; revocation shall be given in writing, and a citizen may appeal such revocation to Judicial for a ruling.

SECTION 2. THE ZONES AND THE DIVISION OF THE SILO

The silo is divided into three zones by the character of the work done there and the citizens assigned to each, exactly as Article 1 sets them down: the Up Top, its uppermost levels, where the Mayor, Judicial, the Sheriff, the teachings of the young, and the common areas of assembly and congregation are kept; the Mid Thirties and the Mids beyond them, where most citizen households are located, and the markets, the Infirmary, Information Technology, and the ordinary trades of the silo are carried out; and the Down Deep, the silo's lowest levels, where the Department of Mechanical, the Department of Mines, the generator, the water treatment and stores, and the deep-storage of the silo's reserves are kept, and where only the citizens assigned to those Departments shall ordinarily dwell.

- (a) A citizen may not occupy a dwelling in the Down Deep save where that citizen is assigned by trade to the Department of Mechanical, the Department of Mines, or to a support trade kept deep for the works of those Departments, and no other citizen, save by the explicit written permission of the Head of Supply, may lodge or sleep in the Down Deep overnight.
- (b) The Up Top is reserved for the officers and works of the silo's governance, the teaching of the young, and the common gathering of the Assembly under Article 20; housing in the Up Top is assigned by the Mayor in consultation with the Head of Supply, and is ordinarily provided only to citizens holding offices under Article 4 and the offices of Judicial under Article 6, and to such teachers and scribes as Article 15 and Article 21 require.
- (c) A citizen of the Mids may petition to work in the Up Top or the Down Deep, and such petition shall be considered under Article 13's labor-assignment process; a citizen successful in such a petition shall be assigned housing on the floor where the citizen's work is situated, or given permission to continue lodging in the Mids and to travel the stairs daily.

SECTION 3. THE KEEPING OF DWELLING QUARTERS

A citizen occupying a dwelling is answerable for the condition of that dwelling and for the conduct of the citizen's household within it. The Pact does not compel citizen-to-citizen courtesy or affection; it does compel that a citizen's household not become a hazard or a breach to other citizens in the dwelling or the floor.

- (a) A citizen's household shall not produce vermin, filth, or odor that spreads beyond the dwelling itself, nor shall a citizen's household contain more citizens than the dwelling is assigned to accommodate, nor shall a citizen harbor a citizen unknown to the rolls or hide a child born without the lottery's sanction.
- (b) A citizen may not keep an animal not sanctioned under Article 11, Section 5, nor forbid entry to the Maintenance workers of Supply where a repair to the dwelling's systems is required.
- (c) A citizen may not modify the structural integrity of a dwelling, nor seal off doors or passages, nor make permanent alterations without the approval of the Head of Supply and the approval, where relevant, of the Head of Mechanical for concerns affecting the silo's structure.
- (d) A citizen who breaches this section's requirements is answerable under Article 17; if the breach endangers the floor's stability or the water, air, or waste-flow systems under Mechanical's charge, it is among the gravest offenses under Article 17.

SECTION 4. THE PRIVACY OF DWELLING QUARTERS AND THE LIMITS OF SEARCH

The Pact recognizes that a citizen's dwelling is a citizen's refuge, and that some matters of household life are private. Nevertheless, the silo's safety and the enforcement of the Pact take precedence over dwelling privacy where the Pact judges they must.

- (a) The Sheriff may enter a dwelling to stop a crime in progress, to investigate a death, or to arrest a citizen for an offense. In all other cases, the Sheriff shall request entry, and may enter only if a citizen of the household consents or if the Judge has ordered a search under Article 6.

- (b) The Officers of Judicial, when executing a search ordered by the Judge under Article 6, may search a dwelling and the citizen's private possessions; such a search shall be conducted in daylight or by lamp, shall not destroy what is searched unnecessarily, and shall be reported to Judicial for the archive under Article 6.
- (c) A search conducted without a Judge's order, or conducted by an officer without the Judge's written order, is a violation of the Pact, and a citizen may refuse entry and may file a complaint with Judicial.

SECTION 5. HOUSING AND THE EQUALITY OF CITIZENS

The Pact provides that every citizen shall have shelter adequate to the citizen's household, and that no citizen shall go unsheltered or displaced without cause grounded in the Pact itself. The Head of Supply, in consultation with the Mayor, shall ensure that no citizen who fulfills the duties of the Pact is left without a dwelling.

- (a) Where a citizen is displaced from a dwelling by catastrophe, by the citizen's release from the mines or from cleaning, or by reassignment of the citizen's trade to a different floor, the Head of Supply shall assign new quarters without undue delay.
- (b) A citizen facing removal from a dwelling for breach of this Article's requirements may petition Judicial for a ruling; Judicial may find the breach overstated, may impose a deadline for remedy before removal takes effect, or may affirm the removal and order the citizen to a temporary holding pending reassignment.
- (c) The silo's citizens are entitled to housing, not to choice of housing; a citizen may petition for a change of quarters, and the Head of Supply shall consider such a petition in good faith, but is not bound by a citizen's preference where silo needs require otherwise.

SECTION 6. THE ROLL OF DWELLINGS

Every dwelling in the silo has a number, and every number has a household or is entered empty.

- (a) Housing keeps a roll of every dwelling, by floor and by number, entering for each its size in rooms, the household assigned to it and every citizen of that household by name, the day of assignment, and, for a dwelling empty, the day it was left and its condition; the roll is delivered to the Clerk of Judicial at each turn of the season under Article 2, and the count of dwellings empty is reported to the Mayor with it.

- (b) No dwelling is entered to two households, and no household to two dwellings, save a citizen of a Department lodged in its own quarters under Article 13 who keeps a household's dwelling elsewhere, which is entered so.
- (c) A dwelling is a single room or a set of rooms with a door that closes, a light, water, a vent of air, and a place for waste, as the builders made it; a room without these is not a dwelling under this Article and is not assigned as one, whatever a citizen would take.
- (d) The roll is open to any citizen at Housing's own office in the Mids, as to the number and size of dwellings on any floor and which stand empty, and to no citizen as to the households of others.

SECTION 7. THE PETITION AND THE ASSIGNMENT

A dwelling is asked for in writing and given in writing, and the order of giving is fixed.

- (a) A citizen who requires a dwelling, or a different one, petitions Housing in writing, or by the keeper's hand where the citizen cannot write, stating the household, its size, the floor of the citizen's trade, and the cause; the keeper enters the petition in a roll of petitions with the day, and the petition stands until granted or withdrawn.
- (b) Housing assigns dwellings as they stand empty in this order, and no other, whatever the day of petition: first, a household newly made by marriage or by a sanctioned relationship under Article 3; second, a household granted a lottery's window under Article 3 whose dwelling has no room for a child; third, a citizen returned from the mines, a partner lodged anew upon a dissolution under Article 3, or a citizen displaced under Section 5; fourth, a household enlarged by the taking-in of kin under Article 3; fifth, a citizen whose trade has moved to another floor; and last, a citizen who petitions for preference alone. Within each order, the earlier petition is granted first.
- (c) An assignment is made in writing, signed by the keeper and countersigned by the Head of Supply, naming the household, the dwelling by floor and number, and the day the household may take it up; a copy is given to the household, a copy entered in the roll of dwellings, and a copy sent to the Clerk of Judicial for the rolls of citizenship under Article 2.

- (d) A household assigned a dwelling takes it up within one cycle of the day named, or the assignment lapses and the dwelling passes to the next petition, the household's own petition standing where it stood; a household that cannot take it up within the cycle for a cause the keeper finds good may have one further cycle, entered.
- (e) A citizen who believes an assignment made out of the order this section fixes may petition Judicial under Article 6, and Judicial hears the keeper and rules; an assignment found out of order is not undone, but the citizen wronged is given the next dwelling of the same size that stands empty on the same floor, before any other petition.

SECTION 8. THE TAKING-UP AND THE LEAVING OF A DWELLING

A dwelling is handed over as it is found, and taken back as it was handed.

- (a) Before a household takes up a dwelling, a Maintenance worker of Supply goes through it with a citizen of the household, and the two enter its condition in a writing kept with the assignment: every room, its light, its water, its vent, its door, and the common furnishings this Pact gives with a dwelling — a bed for each citizen, a table, a chair for each, a shelf, a lamp — by count and by condition; both sign, and the household answers for the dwelling from the signing.
- (b) A household leaving a dwelling gives Housing one cycle's notice where it can, restores the dwelling as Section 1 requires, and goes through it again with a Maintenance worker on the day of leaving; what is found wanting or broken beyond the ordinary wear of living is entered, and the household makes it good in chits under Article 12 at a rate Mechanical sets for the thing, or in labor at Housing's direction, before the household's next assignment is made.
- (c) A dwelling left by the death of its whole household, or by a household's sentencing or cleaning, is gone through by a Maintenance worker with a Deputy of the Sheriff under Article 7, and the household's goods are given to kin under Article 3 who claim them within one cycle, or to Mechanical for reclamation after, and the giving entered.

- (d) A dwelling stands empty no longer than one cycle after it is left and made good, save where Housing enters that no petition stands for a dwelling of its size on its floor; a dwelling empty beyond a season is reported to the Mayor with the reason.

SECTION 9. THE DWELLING'S SYSTEMS AND THEIR KEEPING

What runs into a dwelling and out of it is the silo's, and a household keeps it as the silo's.

- (a) The water that enters a dwelling, the vent that airs it, the line that lights it, and the pipe that carries its waste are the works of Mechanical under Article 9 to the wall of the dwelling and within it, and no household opens, stops, alters, or draws upon any of them beyond the tap, the switch, and the vent's grille the builders gave.
- (b) A household keeps the vent's grille clear, the tap closed when not drawing, the waste-pipe free of what it was not made to carry, and the light out when the household sleeps; a household found wasting water or light, or fouling the waste-pipe, is warned by the Maintenance worker once, entered, and answerable under Article 17 thereafter as for the diversion of stores.
- (c) A fault in any of the dwelling's systems is reported by the household to Housing the same day, and a Maintenance worker comes within one cycle, or within one day where the fault is a leak, a stopped vent, or a smell of the works; a household that does not report a fault answers for what the fault does to the dwelling and the floor.
- (d) A Maintenance worker of Supply, or a citizen of Mechanical the Head sends, enters a dwelling to reach its systems upon notice to the household of one day, or without notice where the fault endangers the floor, and enters the entry and what was done; the household may be present and may not refuse the entry, as Section 3 provides.

SECTION 10. THE COMMON ROOMS OF A FLOOR

A floor is more than its dwellings, and what lies between them is kept by all of them together.

- (a) The washrooms, the landing, the floor's own common room where the builders gave one, and the passages between dwellings are the common ground of the floor, kept by the households of the floor by turns the floor's Deputy or Peacekeeper under Article 7 posts at the landing, each household taking its turn by the number of its dwelling.

- (b) A household that does not keep its turn is entered by the Peacekeeper, and after three entries in a season is referred to Housing, which may assign the household's next turn doubled, or, after three such referrals, revoke the dwelling under Section 1; a household of one citizen retired or sick under Article 19 is excused its turn upon the Head Physician's word, entered.
- (c) The common room of a floor may be used by the households of the floor for any gathering this Pact does not forbid under Article 16, without leave, and by any other gathering only with the leave of the floor's Deputy; a gathering in a common room is a gathering of the floor for the purposes of Article 16, Section 2.
- (d) A dispute between households of a floor over the common ground, its turns, or its use is brought to the floor's Peacekeeper, who resolves it by word or refers it to the Deputy, and thence to the Sheriff under Article 7; such a dispute is no matter for Judicial unless the Sheriff so refers it.

OF SCHOOLING AND THE TEACHING OF THE YOUNG

In which is set down how the silo's children are watched, taught, and tested, from the earliest years of the nursery through the founding recitation and the aptitude that finds each child's place, until the citizen's own majority and entry into labor.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE OF SCHOOLING

Every child born within the silo is owed instruction sufficient to keep the founding as Article 1 records it, to read this Pact and any writing the silo's work requires, and to come to majority fit for the oath and the labor Article 2 and Article 13 lay upon a citizen. Schooling is not a privilege a household purchases or withholds at its own pleasure; it is a duty the silo owes every child, and a duty every household owes the silo in the child's attending.

- (a) Every child, from the age this Article sets down until the citizen's sixteenth naming-day, shall be enrolled in schooling; no household may withhold a child from the schooling this Article requires, save where the Head Physician's judgment excuses attendance for illness or for a season.
- (b) Schooling is provided without charge to any household, its cost borne as a debt of the silo's keeping, the same as the ration under Article 11 and the dwelling under Article 14.
- (c) The purpose of schooling is fourfold: that every child come to know the founding as Article 1 records it; that every child learn to read and reckon sufficient for a trade and a household; that every child's own aptitude be discovered and weighed, as Article 13 provides; and that every child, upon majority, be fit to swear the oath under Article 2 and bear the labor Article 13 assigns.

SECTION 2. THE AGES OF INSTRUCTION

Every observance this section names is reckoned from the child's naming-day, as Article 2 provides, and not from the day of birth.

- (a) From the third naming-day, a child too young for the schoolroom is kept, while the members of the child's household are at labor, in the nursery under a Nursery Attendant, that the child be watched, fed, and given the earliest teaching of speech, order, and the household's care.
- (b) From the sixth naming-day — the age at which a child is judged to have reached basic societal awareness, sufficient to be held, in some measure, to the order and expectation the schoolroom asks of every child alike — a child is enrolled in the schoolroom proper, and shall attend upon every ordinary working day, save such rest days as this Pact or the child's own household observes.
- (c) Instruction continues, without interruption save for illness, from the sixth naming-day to the sixteenth, at which naming-day a citizen's schooling ends and the citizen's labor, under Article 13, begins in full.
- (d) A child who cannot attend the schoolroom by reason of illness, remoteness of floor, or the household's own labor need shall nonetheless be taught, at the least, the founding recitation and the reading it requires before the child's eighth naming-day, by a teacher sent for that purpose or by such other provision as the schooling of that zone arranges.

SECTION 3. THE FOUNDING AND THE LIMITS OF INSTRUCTION

The founding recitation under Article 1 is the one matter of history this Pact requires every child to be taught, and it is taught whole, exactly as recorded, and no further.

- (a) Every child shall be taught the founding exactly as Article 1 records it, complete and entire, before the child's eighth naming-day, and no teacher shall add to, subtract from, or embellish that recitation with any further detail of the founders, the manner of the poisoning, or the world before.
- (b) A teacher who instructs a child in any invented detail of the founding as though it were known fact offends under Article 16, Section 3, and offends gravely, whether the teaching arose from the teacher's own error or from the teacher's deliberate invention.

- (c) A child's own questions concerning the founding or the time before shall be answered only in the words Article 1 itself provides; where a child's question reaches beyond what Article 1 records, the teacher shall say plainly that the Pact does not provide more, and shall not speculate before the child.
- (d) This section binds every teacher, every aide, and every other citizen who instructs a child, whether within the schoolroom or without it.

SECTION 4. THE TEACHERS OF THE YOUNG

The teaching of the young is a trade like any other in its entry and its shadowing, and unlike any other in what it is trusted with; this section sets down who may teach, how a teacher is made, and who may stand in a teacher's place.

- (a) Teaching the young is a skilled trade entered by full shadowing under Article 13, Section 5, and is further an order-adjacent trade under Article 13, Section 6; a citizen shadowing to become a teacher undergoes, beyond the shadowing itself, such vetting as Article 13 there provides, and remains subject to that vetting throughout the citizen's tenure in the trade.
- (b) A teacher confirmed in the trade is housed, where the teacher's assignment requires it, among the Up Top under Article 14, Section 2, that the teacher be near the schoolroom the teacher serves.
- (c) A School Aide may be taken on by short shadowing under Article 13, to assist a teacher in the ordinary care and instruction of the youngest children, and to serve the nursery under a Nursery Attendant; an aide does not teach the founding recitation or the course of study under Section 5 without a teacher present.
- (d) No citizen may instruct a child in the schoolroom, the nursery, or in place of formal schooling, save a citizen confirmed as a teacher or aide under this section, or a parent or guardian teaching a child some matter this Pact does not reserve to the schoolroom, such as a trade skill or a household craft.

SECTION 5. THE COURSE OF STUDY

Every schoolroom in the silo teaches the same course, that a citizen of the Down Deep come to majority knowing what a citizen of the Up Top knows; this section sets down what that course contains, and what it does not.

- (a) Every child shall be taught to read and write, to reckon numbers sufficient for a trade and for the keeping of a household, and to know this Pact's structure and the citizen's own duties under it, that the citizen may swear the oath under Article 2 with genuine understanding.
- (b) Every child shall be taught the structure of the silo under Article 1, the offices of its governance, and the ordinary safety of the stairwell, the wallscreen, and the floors, that the child grow into a citizen who keeps the silo's order from knowledge and not from fear alone.
- (c) The course of study is set by Judicial, in consultation with the teachers of every zone, that a citizen taught on one floor be no less prepared than a citizen taught on another; a teacher may add local instruction suited to a floor's own trades, but may not omit any part of the course this section requires.
- (d) Beyond the tenth naming-day, a child's course of study shall include a survey of the silo's trades, described plainly and without preference, that a child's own aptitude testing under Article 13 be met with some earlier acquaintance with the choices before them.
- (e) The course of study set under this section does not include instruction in the working of wire, radio, lens, or fine instrument, whatever a child's own aptitude for such work may show; such instruction is given only within Information Technology's own shadowing under Article 13, to a citizen the Department has itself found fit to receive it.

SECTION 6. APTITUDE, THE APPROACH OF MAJORITY, AND THE PASSAGE INTO LABOR

A child's schooling ends where a citizen's labor begins, and the years between the twelfth naming-day and the sixteenth are given to finding where that labor is best placed; this section sets down how the school and the Departments share that finding.

- (a) From the twelfth naming-day, the schools under this Article shall assess each child's aptitude for labor as Article 13, Section 2 provides, and shall record the results for the child's own guidance and for the Head of Department's later reference.
- (b) In a child's final two years of schooling, from the fourteenth naming-day to the sixteenth, a child may be placed, with the household's consent and the relevant Head of Department's leave, in a trial placement of no more than a season's length within a trade of the child's own aptitude or desire, that the child come to know labor's demands before being bound to them. A trial placement is not a shadowing under Article 13, confers no standing in the trade, and may be ended by the Department, the school, or the household at any time.

- (c) A child's schooling does not end for a trial placement; the child remains subject to this Article's course of study and to the teacher's charge until the citizen's sixteenth naming-day.
- (d) Upon a citizen's sixteenth naming-day, schooling ends, the citizen swears the oath under Article 2, and the citizen's shadowing or labor assignment begins under Article 13; a trial placement completed under this section may be credited toward the citizen's later shadowing, at the discretion of the Head of the Department in which the trial was made.

SECTION 7. THE CORRECTION AND WELLBEING OF CHILDREN

A child is held to the order of the schoolroom, but not to the measures of Article 17 as a citizen of full standing is held; this section sets down how a child is corrected, how a grave matter is heard, and what a teacher must report.

- (a) A child is a ward of the household or floor to which the child is assigned, and holds, under Article 2, Section 1, every duty of a citizen of the child's years, but not the standing to petition Judicial directly; where a child's matter must be brought before Judicial, the household or, in its absence, the teacher shall bring it.
- (b) Ordinary correction of a child within the schoolroom — a delay of privilege, additional labor about the schoolroom, a report to the household — is the teacher's own charge, and is not an offense under Article 17 nor an occasion for Judicial's hearing.
- (c) A grave breach of the Pact by a child too young for majority is not answered under Article 17 as though the child were a citizen of full standing. Judicial shall hear the matter with the household present, and shall weigh the child's years in fixing whatever correction, restitution, or instruction the matter requires, saving always the gravest offenses named in Article 17, which Judicial may refer upward regardless of the offender's years.

- (d) A teacher who observes in a child a persistent distress, a defiance of correction beyond the ordinary, or a fixation upon some matter this Pact does not teach, shall report the matter to the Head Physician under Article 19 or to Judicial, that the child's needs be seen to. Such a report is not itself a charge against the child, and creates no mark upon the child's roll under Article 21 save the fact of the report and its resolution.

SECTION 8. RECORDS OF SCHOOLING AND ATTENDANCE

What a school records of a child follows that child into the rolls, and what a household withholds from the school is answered for; this section sets down both.

- (a) Every school shall keep a roll of its enrolled children, their attendance, and the results of the aptitude testing under Section 6, and shall report the roll to Judicial not less than once yearly, for entry into the citizen's record under Article 21.
- (b) A household that fails, without cause recognized under Section 2, to send a child to schooling as this Article requires is answerable under Article 17; repeated failure may be referred to Judicial for a ruling on the household's fitness to keep the child, without prejudice to the household's ordinary standing in all other matters.
- (c) A citizen's schooling record — attendance, aptitude testing, and any trial placement under Section 6 — is kept in the Judicial archive alongside the citizen's other records under Article 21, and is open to the citizen upon majority and to the citizen's own household before it, but to no other citizen save by Judicial's order.

SECTION 9. THE REST DAYS AND THE SCHOOL YEAR

A child's year is the silo's year, and keeps the silo's rests.

- (a) The schoolroom is kept on every day of the cycle save the rest day under Article 1, from the first labor of the day to the last save one hour, and a child is at the schoolroom for those hours and at the household's keeping for the rest.
- (b) The school year begins at the turn of the season the Judge names for every schoolroom alike, and the Preamble of this Pact is read in every schoolroom on that day, as the Preamble itself provides; the school year runs four seasons, with a recess of one cycle at each turn of the season, during which a child is at the household's keeping, or at the nursery where the household is at labor.

- (c) A child's household may keep a child from the schoolroom on a rest day the household observes beyond the silo's own, not more than four in the year, upon telling the teacher beforehand; and a child of a household sentenced, broken, or bereaved is kept from the schoolroom for such days as the teacher and the Head Physician judge, without mark.
- (d) A teacher keeps the schoolroom's hours as the Judge sets them, and no teacher keeps a child at the schoolroom beyond them, nor dismisses a child before them, save for illness, for a report under Section 7, or upon the household's asking entered in the school's roll.

SECTION 10. THE YEARLY EXAMINATION

What a child has learned is asked of the child once in every year, before the child's own household, and entered.

- (a) At the last cycle of every school year, each child from the sixth naming-day is examined by the child's teacher, in the schoolroom, with the household present where the household will come: the child recites the founding under Article 1, reads a passage of this Pact the teacher chooses, reckons such sums as the child's years require, and answers as to the structure of the silo and the offices of its governance under Section 5.
- (b) A child examined is not passed or failed; the teacher enters in the school's roll what the child could do and what the child could not, and the entry follows the child into the citizen's record under Article 21 as Section 8 provides. A child who cannot recite the founding complete by the eighth naming-day is taught it again, apart, until the child can, and the teacher reports the delay to the Head Physician under Section 7 where it persists beyond a year.
- (c) From the twelfth naming-day the examination includes the aptitude testing under Section 6, and from the fourteenth a report from any Head of Department in whose trade the child has had a trial placement under that Section.
- (d) A child of the sixteenth naming-day is examined last of all, and the entry of that examination is read by the Clerk of Judicial at the citizen's oath under Article 2, before the oath is sworn, that the citizen swear knowing what the silo has found the citizen to know.

OF PUBLIC ORDER AND FORBIDDEN SPEECH

In which is set down what a citizen may not say, may not keep, and may not make, that the silo's order and the silo's peace may both be kept whole.

SECTION 1. THE FORBIDDEN WORD

No citizen may speak, write, or otherwise give voice to a wish, a request, or a suggestion that a citizen be permitted outside the silo, save the citizen's own request made directly and finally under Article 18, which this Pact answers in full and does not treat as an offense.

- (a) No citizen may teach, suggest, or give another citizen cause to believe that the world above is fit, in whole or in part, for the living of a life, whether by word, by writing, or by any other means.
- (b) A citizen who hears another citizen give voice to the wish named above, and does not report it to the Sheriff or to Judicial without delay, is answerable alongside the citizen who gave it voice, under Article 17.

SECTION 2. RUMOR, DESPAIR, AND THE SPREAD OF DISCONTENT

No citizen may spread, as though it were known fact, a rumor of the silo's coming failure, of a coming shortage this Pact and its Departments have not themselves declared, or of any other matter likely to move citizens toward panic, hoarding, or unrest.

- (a) No citizen may gather other citizens, beyond the ordinary gathering of a floor, a trade, or a household, or an assembly held under Article 20, for a purpose this Pact does not name, without leave of the Sheriff, sought and given beforehand.
- (b) This section does not forbid a citizen's own grief, doubt, or complaint, spoken to another citizen in the ordinary way of living; it forbids only the giving of that grief, doubt, or complaint the shape of a fact this Pact has not itself declared.

SECTION 3. FALSE TEACHING OF THE FOUNDING AND THE PAST

No citizen shall invent detail of the founding, the silo's building, or the time before beyond what Article 1 records, and teach that invention to another as though it were known fact.

- (a) A citizen who studies or speculates upon the founding or the time before, privately and without teaching the invention to another as fact, does not offend under this section; a citizen who teaches a child, in a place of schooling under Article 15 or otherwise, any invented detail as fact, offends gravely, whatever the citizen's own belief in the invention's truth.
- (b) This section binds every citizen equally, of every office, and no office excuses the teaching of invented history as fact under this section.

SECTION 4. RELICS OF THE TIME BEFORE

A relic is any object, writing, device, or likeness made before the silo's sealing, or bearing upon its making, its history, or the world above, save such an object as this Pact or Judicial has sanctioned for a citizen's keeping.

- (a) A citizen who finds or comes to hold a relic shall surrender it to the Sheriff without delay, who shall carry it to Judicial for classification; Judicial shall enter every relic so surrendered in its archive under Article 6, together with its finding, its classification, and its citizen. A citizen who surrenders a relic during a Forgiveness Holiday declared under Article 4 does so under the grace that Article provides, and not under fear of the ordinary consequence of having kept it.
- (b) Judicial shall classify a relic by the danger it poses to the silo's order. A relic bearing upon the founding, the time before, or the world above in a way that could teach a citizen to doubt what Article 1 records is classified among the gravest, and is destroyed or sealed beyond any citizen's reach, at Judicial's own discretion, once its examination under Article 8 is complete. A relic posing lesser danger may be classified otherwise, and a citizen who finds such a relic may petition Judicial to sanction its keeping.

- (c) A relic sanctioned for a citizen's keeping under this section remains the silo's to reclassify, and a sanction once given may be withdrawn by a later ruling of the Judge under Article 6.

SECTION 5. RESTRICTED INSTRUMENTS AND DEVICES

No citizen may make, keep, or use any lens or glass that magnifies beyond the ordinary power of reading spectacles, any device that sends or receives word without a wire strung and licensed under Article 8, any fine instrument for the working of metal, wire, or glass, or any device made to carry a citizen's own body between floors, save under a license issued by Information Technology under Article 8 or Article 9.

- (a) An instrument or device named in this section, found in a citizen's keeping without license, is a relic under Section 4, and is classified among the gravest unless Judicial finds cause, upon examination under Article 8, to classify it otherwise.

SECTION 6. THE APPARATUS OF THE SILO'S KEEPING

Information Technology under Article 8 and Mechanical under Article 9 keep throughout the silo such apparatus as the monitoring of the silo's vital systems requires — the sensing of the air and the water, the reading of the generator's load, the carrying of official word by wire, and such further instruments as either Department's charge requires — and the working of that apparatus is no part of ordinary citizenship.

- (a) No citizen may cover, disable, remove, open, or otherwise interfere with any such apparatus, whether or not the citizen knows its purpose; a citizen who finds such an instrument out of its place, or damaged, shall report it to Information Technology or to the Sheriff without delay, and shall not attempt its repair.
- (b) Interference with such apparatus is answerable under Article 17; where the interference endangers the works of water, air, or power under Article 9, or the outward sensors under Article 1, it is among the gravest offenses as those Articles already provide.
- (c) Neither Department is required to set down for any citizen where such apparatus is kept or how it is read, that being a matter of each Department's own charge and not of ordinary citizenship.

SECTION 7. THE OBSTRUCTION OF AN OFFICER

No citizen shall hinder, delay, or obstruct the Mayor, the Judge, the Sheriff, an Officer of Judicial, a Deputy or Peacekeeper, a Head of Department, or any citizen carrying an office this Pact names, in the discharge of that office, whether by deed, by the withholding of what the office may lawfully require, or by the raising of other citizens against it.

- (a) A citizen so obstructing is answerable under Article 17; where the obstruction is of an Officer carrying out a sentence, or of Mechanical in the keeping of the works under Article 9, it is answered by the mines upon a first offense.
- (b) A citizen who refuses an officer's requirement on the ground that it is not lawful may say so, and shall be heard on it by Judicial under Article 6 afterward; but the refusal is at the citizen's own risk, and is not excused where Judicial finds the requirement lawful.
- (c) The referral of a matter to Judicial that Article 4, Article 9, Article 10, or Article 13 allows, made in good faith, is not obstruction, nor is the refusal Article 4 allows to a citizen ordered to break this Pact.

SECTION 8. THE CLASSIFICATION OF A RELIC

A relic surrendered under Section 4 is classified at a sitting, upon a report, and the class is entered before anything else is done with it.

- (a) Judicial keeps a relic roll, apart from the roll of evidence under Article 6, in which every relic surrendered or found is entered with its number, the day, the citizen who surrendered it or the place it was found, the report of Information Technology under Article 8, the class given, and what was done with it; the relic roll is not open to citizens save as this section provides.
- (b) The Judge classifies a relic at a posted sitting under Article 6, with an Officer of Judicial and, where the Judge asks it, the relic examiner of Information Technology present; the citizen who surrendered the relic may attend and be heard as to how the relic came to the citizen, and no more, and the Judge enters what the citizen says.
- (c) A relic is classified in one of three classes. The red class is the gravest under Section 4: a relic that could teach a citizen to doubt what Article 1 records, or that is a device of the kind Section 5 names, save where the Judge finds cause under that Section to classify it otherwise; a red relic is destroyed or sealed as Section 4 provides, and no petition for its sanction is heard. The second class is a relic of no such danger that is nonetheless the silo's to keep: a tool, a fitting, a material the works or the farms can use, or a thing the Judge finds it unwise to let pass among citizens; a second-class relic is given to Mechanical for reclamation or kept in Judicial's store, and is not sanctioned. The third class is a relic of no danger the Judge can find, and may be sanctioned for a citizen's keeping under Section 9.

- (d) The class is entered in the relic roll with the Judge's reason in a line, and the citizen who surrendered the relic is told the class, and, where the relic is red, that it will not be seen again; a citizen is not told the report of Information Technology beyond what the Judge chooses to read.
- (e) A relic once classified is reclassified only by the Judge at a further sitting, upon a further report or a ruling under Article 6, Section 2, and the reclassification is entered beside the first; a relic classified red is not reclassified.

SECTION 9. THE SANCTION OF A RELIC

A relic of the third class may be a citizen's to keep, by a sanction that is the silo's to give and to take back.

- (a) A citizen may petition the Judge, under Article 6, for the sanction of a third-class relic the citizen surrendered, or of one in Judicial's store the citizen asks for; the petition names the relic by its number and the use the citizen would put it to, and the Judge grants, limits, or refuses it at a posted sitting, entering the reason.
- (b) A sanction granted is entered in the relic roll and on the citizen's record under Article 21, names the citizen and the relic, and is marked upon the relic itself by the archivist where the relic will bear a mark; a sanction is for the citizen named and no other, and a sanctioned relic passes to another citizen only by a further sanction, or upon the citizen's death to the household by the Judge's leave entered.
- (c) A sanctioned relic is shown to the Sheriff or an Officer upon their requiring it, with the citizen's occupant card; a relic found in a citizen's keeping that is not so marked and entered is an unsanctioned relic under Section 4, whatever the citizen says of it.

- (d) A sanction is withdrawn by the Judge under Section 4 at any sitting, for cause entered or for none, and the relic is surrendered to the Sheriff within one day of the withdrawal's being told to the citizen; a citizen who does not surrender it is answerable under Article 17 as for the keeping of an unsanctioned relic.
- (e) The Judge reads at each ordinary sitting of the Assembly under Article 20 the count of relics classified in the year, by class, and the count of sanctions given and withdrawn, without the names of citizens or the description of any relic.

SECTION 10. WRITING, LIKENESS, AND THE WALL

What a citizen may write and draw, and where, is set down here, that the freedom of it be known as well as its limit.

- (a) A citizen may write, draw, or make a likeness of any thing within the silo, of any citizen, or of any matter this Pact does not forbid, and may keep, give, or sell it under Article 12; no license or sanction is required for a writing or a likeness a citizen makes, and none is a relic by reason of its making.
- (b) No citizen may make a likeness of the world above, save as the wallscreen itself shows it, nor write of the world above as a place of any character but that Article 1 records; a likeness or writing so made is a writing forbidden under Section 3 and is surrendered as a relic under Section 4, and the citizen who made it is answerable under Section 1 or Section 3 as the Judge finds.
- (c) No citizen may write or draw upon a wall, a door, a landing, or any common surface of the silo save the notice-board of the landing under Article 7 and the posting-places this Pact names; a writing so made is removed by the Sheriff, and the citizen who made it is answerable under Article 17, and the wall is the silo's to keep clean.
- (d) A likeness of the silo's own structure, its floors, its stair, or its works, made beyond what the schooling of Article 15 teaches, is shown to the Head of Mechanical before it is kept, given, or sold, and the Head may keep it for the Department's own use, entering why, or return it; a likeness of the works or the workings is not made at all save by a citizen of Mechanical or Mines for the Department's own use.

OF CRIMES AND THEIR PUNISHMENTS

In which is set down how an offense is measured, how a first offense is forgiven, and how a citizen answers, in the mines or in the cleaning, for every offense that is not.

SECTION 1. THE THREE MEASURES OF CORRECTION

This Pact answers a broken law in one of three measures: a grace given for a first offense under Section 2; a term in the mines for an offense named under Section 3; or cleaning under Article 18 for an offense named among the gravest under Section 4.

- (a) No offense is answered by more than one of these measures, and no citizen may be given a lesser measure for a gravest offense, nor a greater measure for an offense this Pact does not name among the gravest, whatever the Judge's own judgment of the citizen's character.
- (b) Where this Pact does not name the measure that answers an offense, the Judge shall rule under Article 6, and that ruling shall thereafter stand as though the measure were named here.

SECTION 2. THE GRACE OF A FIRST OFFENSE

A citizen's first offense under this Pact, save an offense named among the gravest under Section 4, is answered by a grace: a formal warning entered in the Judicial archive under Article 6, and no term in the mines.

- (a) A grace is given once to a citizen in their lifetime, for the whole of the offenses this Pact does not name among the gravest, and not once for every kind of offense a citizen might commit.
- (b) A second offense, of any kind not among the gravest, is answered by the mines under Section 3, whatever grace the citizen was earlier given.

SECTION 3. OFFENSES ANSWERED BY THE MINES

The following, upon a second offense or upon a first offense the Judge finds too grave for grace, are answered by a term in the mines: the diversion or waste of food, feed, or stores under Article 11; the keeping of an animal without sanction under Article 11; standing responsible, under Article 2, for a birth without the lottery's grant of Article 3; speaking or teaching the forbidden wish under Article 16 Section 1; the obstruction of an officer under Article 16 Section 7, where that Section so provides; the willful and persistent neglect of assigned labor, referred by a Head of Department under Article 13 and found by Judicial to continue notwithstanding that referral; and the keeping, making, or use of any relic or restricted instrument or device forbidden under Article 8, Article 9, or Article 16, without license, save where Article 16 classifies that relic among the gravest.

- (a) A term in the mines is a term of labor in the workings below the Down Deep, under the direction of the Head of Mines as Article 10 provides, for a span the Judge sets and the Judge alone may shorten.
- (b) A citizen serving a term in the mines remains a citizen for every purpose of this Pact, and returns, upon the term's ending, to the trade and floor Judicial assigns, which need not be the trade or floor held before.

SECTION 4. OFFENSES AMONG THE GRAVEST

The following, and no others save as this section provides, are named among the gravest offenses under this Pact, and are answered by cleaning under Article 18, without the grace of Section 2 or the hearing Article 6 grants for a lesser offense: tampering with, obstructing, or attempting private repair of the outward sensors, under Article 1; interference with the generator, the works of water and air, the labor of reclamation, or any system kept under Article 9, Section 7, whether by a citizen's own hand or by the keeping of a dwelling under Article 14; making a false attestation of a citizen's life or death under Article 2, or a false finding of a death's cause under Article 19, or a physician's failure to carry a suspected self-killing to Judicial as those Articles require; the taking, or the attempt to take, of a citizen's own life by any means not sought and granted under Article 18; the working of ore, or the directing of its working, beyond the limit Article 10 sets; the counterfeiting of a chit, the knowing keeping of a counterfeit, or the theft of or tampering with the silo's blank chits, under Article 12, or the counterfeiting of a seal-stamp under Article 21; a wrong done to another citizen with intent to kill or maim, under Section 5; and the keeping, making, or use of any relic or restricted instrument Article 16 classifies among the gravest.

- (a) The Judge alone may name a further offense among the gravest, by a ruling under Article 6, and that ruling shall state plainly why the offense is found to threaten the whole silo and not merely the citizen who committed it.
- (b) Nothing named among the gravest offenses under this Article may be answered by any measure but cleaning, and no citizen sentenced under this section may be sentenced instead to the mines, whatever representation is made under Article 6.
- (c) Where a citizen's own life is taken and the citizen does not survive to be sentenced, Judicial's finding under this section is entered in the archive under Article 6 and closes the citizen's name under Article 2, and no further punishment is had; a citizen who survives an attempt under this section is sentenced to cleaning as for any other offense named in this Article.

SECTION 5. OFFENSES AGAINST ANOTHER CITIZEN

A citizen who does violence upon another, who takes what is not theirs, or who otherwise wrongs a citizen in body or property, is answerable under this Article, and the Judge shall set the measure — grace, the mines, or, where the wrong was done with intent to kill or maim, among the gravest — according to the wrong done and the harm that came of it.

- (a) A wrong done under this section is Judicial's to judge, whether or not the wronged citizen brings it forward, but a citizen who brings a wrong forward and is found to have brought it falsely is answerable, under this same section, for the false bringing.
- (b) Where a wrong under this section, or an order given and later found unnecessary under Article 22, has cost a citizen property, labor, or standing, the Judge may order the offending party, or the silo itself where Article 22 so provides, to make restitution to the wronged citizen or the wronged citizen's household, in chits, goods, or labor, in addition to whatever measure of grace, the mines, or cleaning the wrong itself requires. Restitution is not itself a measure of correction under Section 1, and its ordering neither lessens nor replaces the measure that section requires.

SECTION 6. THE FORM OF A GRACE

A grace is the gentlest measure this Pact gives, and it is given in a fixed form, that it be known for what it is.

- (a) A grace is entered by the Clerk of Judicial under Article 6 in these terms and no others: the citizen's name and floor; the Article and Section offended, and the offense in a line; the day; and the words This is the grace of a first offense under Article 17, given once and not again; the Judge signs the entry.
- (b) The grace is read to the citizen aloud by the Clerk, in the hall of Judicial or on the citizen's floor where the Judge so orders, and the citizen signs the entry, or the Clerk enters that the citizen would not; a copy is given to the citizen, and the citizen's household is told the grace was given, and no more.
- (c) A grace stands against a citizen's name for the whole of the citizen's life, and is read by the Judge before any later sentence under Section 2; it is struck only upon a ruling under Article 6 that no offense occurred, and for no other cause, and a grace struck is entered as struck and not removed.
- (d) A grace given is not a finding that the citizen is answerable for any other thing than the offense named, and no office may weigh a grace against a citizen in the assignment of a trade, a dwelling, a shadow, or a sanction; but the Head of a Department is told of a grace given to a citizen of the Department, for the Department's own keeping.
- (e) No grace is given for an offense a citizen committed in an office, as Section 9 provides, nor for the diversion of stores in an emergency under Article 22, nor where this Pact elsewhere provides that the mines answer a first offense.

SECTION 7. THE RECKONING OF A TERM IN THE MINES

A term is a span of seasons, counted from a day and ended on a day, and every day of it is entered.

- (a) The Judge sets a term in whole seasons, not fewer than one and not more than twenty, and enters it with the sentence under Article 6; a term is not set in days or cycles, and a term of a part of a season is a term of the whole.

- (b) A term begins on the day the Head of Mines gives the receipt under Article 6, Section 12, and ends at the turn of the season on which the whole of its seasons have run; the Head of Mines enters the beginning and reports the ending under Article 10, and the Clerk enters both.
- (c) A term does not run on any day the citizen is unfit for the workings under Article 10, Section 8, and the days so lost are added at the term's end; a term does not run on the rest day either, the rest day being given the sentenced citizen as any other, but the rest day is counted in the seasons and is not added.
- (d) A term is shortened only by the Judge, upon the Judge's own reading of the Head of Mines' reports under Article 10, or upon a petition under Article 6 that the Head of Mines joins; no term is lengthened once set, whatever the citizen does below, an offense committed in the workings being answered as a further offense under this Article and entered as such.
- (e) A citizen returned from the mines under Article 6 who commits a further offense answered by the mines is sentenced to a term not less than the first, and a citizen sentenced to a third term is sentenced to twenty seasons, whatever the offense; a citizen who has served three terms is not sentenced to the mines again, and the Judge rules under Article 6, Section 2 what measure answers the offense instead.
- (f) The household of a citizen sentenced keeps its dwelling and its ration for the term as Article 3 provides, and the citizen's chits under Article 12 are the citizen's own still, entered to the ledger and not drawn until the term ends; the Chit-Keepers are told the term's beginning and its end.

SECTION 8. THE WEIGHING BETWEEN GRACE AND THE MINES

Where an offense is not among the gravest, the Judge chooses between the grace and the mines, and the choosing is not left to the Judge's mood.

- (a) In finding a first offense too grave for grace under Section 3, the Judge weighs, and enters the weighing of, these things and no others: the harm the offense did, to a citizen, to a floor, or to the silo; whether the citizen meant the harm, or meant the act and not the harm, or meant neither; whether the citizen offended alone or drew others in; whether the citizen offended in an office, as Section 9 provides; and whether the citizen came forward before the offense was found.

- (b) A first offense that did no harm, was not meant to, drew no other citizen in, and was not committed in an office is answered by the grace, and the Judge enters no weighing; a first offense in which any of those is otherwise is weighed, and the weighing is read to the citizen with the sentence.
- (c) In setting the span of a term under Section 7, the Judge weighs the same things and enters the same weighing, and sets the span nearer one season where fewer of them stand against the citizen and nearer twenty where more; a term set without a weighing entered is reduced by the Judge to one season upon the citizen's petition under Article 6.
- (d) A citizen who came forward before the offense was found, and who surrendered what the offense concerned, is given the grace where the offense is not among the gravest, whatever else the weighing shows, save an offense committed in an office; this is the same grace the Forgiveness Holiday under Article 4 gives for a relic, and stands whether or not a Holiday has been declared.

SECTION 9. THE OFFENSE OF AN OFFICER

An office excuses no offense, as Article 1 provides; and an offense in an office is the graver for the office.

- (a) A citizen who offends in the conduct of an office — the Mayor, the Deputy Mayor, the Judge, the Sheriff, a Head of Department, or a citizen acting under an office's charge — is given no grace for the offense, and a first offense so committed is answered by the mines where this Pact names that measure for it, and by the gravest where it names that; the office is vacated by the sentence, and the successor named as the office's own Article provides.
- (b) An offense of the Mayor is investigated by the Officers of Judicial and judged by the Judge as any citizen's, and the Mayor's orders under Article 4 do not bind Judicial in it; the Deputy Mayor acts under Article 5 from the sentence.
- (c) An offense of the Judge is investigated by the senior Officer of Judicial by first confirmation, who reports to the Mayor and to the Assembly under Article 20; the Mayor hears the matter as the Judge would hear it under Article 6, sets the measure this Pact names, and the Assembly removes the Judge under Article 20 upon the sentence; the Judge so sentenced is carried out of the office by the Officers as any citizen.

- (d) An offense of the Sheriff is investigated and judged as any citizen's, the Officers of Judicial acting in the Sheriff's place for the holding under Article 7; an offense of a Head of Department likewise, the Head's shadow or the senior citizen of the Department keeping the Department as acting Head until the Mayor confirms a successor.
- (e) An officer who offends is entered in the archive under the office as well as under the name, and the entry is read at the next sitting of the Assembly under Article 20 with the sentence, that the silo know the office was kept and not the officer.

OF THE CLEANING

In which is set down the gravest sentence this Pact names: the sending of a citizen outside to clean, that the silo may endure and every other citizen may live.

SECTION 1. THE REQUEST AND THE RIGHT OF A CITIZEN

No citizen may be compelled to walk outside the silo, to touch the lenses or sensors, or to approach the airlock against that citizen's will. Yet any citizen, at any time, may request to go outside, and that request must be granted. This choice, once made, is final and irrevocable. A citizen granted this request is released from every labor, office, and household bond this Pact lays upon a citizen, and is known thereafter as a cleaner; the citizen's name remains in the rolls until it is closed as this section provides below.

- (a) A citizen may make a final request at any point in the citizen's life, to any officer of Judicial or to the Sheriff, or may write it down and place it in the archive under Article 6, by speaking or setting down these words and no others: "I want to go outside." No further explanation is required of the citizen, and none shall be asked; the words alone, once said in earnest and to a proper officer, are the whole of the request this Pact requires.
- (b) The request does not need to be approved, discussed, or delayed; it shall be granted with utmost expedience, save only where Article 22 provides for its holding in the gravest emergency, and then only for so long as that Article allows.
- (c) A citizen who makes a final request shall be brought to the airlock on the next available cycle, clothed in a suit provided by Information Technology under Section 3 of this Article, and the citizen shall walk outside. No Pact provides a method by which a citizen might return, and none is needed, for every request is final.

- (d) A citizen who walks outside remains a citizen in the rolls until Judicial is informed by Information Technology under Article 8 that the sensors were kept and the citizen's death is confirmed; only then is the citizen's name closed under Article 2.

SECTION 2. THE OBLIGATION TO CLEAN AND THE SENTENCING TO CLEANING

A citizen sentenced to cleaning is sent out not for a wrong done to any one citizen but for a wrong that threatens the whole silo, as Article 17 names such wrongs; the silo does not keep within its hull a citizen who has shown that the hull itself may be pierced. What the citizen meets beyond the outer door is the world above, as Article 1 records it, and this Pact says no more of it than that.

- (a) The Judge alone sentences a citizen to cleaning, for an offense named among the gravest under Article 17, save the Judge's own offense, which Article 17, Section 9 gives the Mayor to hear. No citizen sentenced to cleaning may be reprieved, pardoned, or offered mercy by any other office.
- (b) A citizen sentenced to cleaning is made ready exactly as a citizen who has made the request: held under Article 7 as Section 8 provides, seen by a Physician under Article 19 where the citizen asks it, fed and watered, and fitted in the lab as Section 9 provides, without delay.
- (c) A citizen sentenced to cleaning is brought to the airlock and is sent outside on the next available cycle, exactly as a citizen making a final request, and the two are thereafter indistinguishable: both are cleaners, and both are lost to the silo.

SECTION 3. THE SUITS AND THE SEALS

The Pact does not name the fate of a citizen who walks outside, nor does it describe how long a citizen might last in the air above. The silo's knowing or not knowing of that fate is no citizen's concern. The suit provided is assembled in the cleaning lab under the charge of Information Technology, from cloth, seals, and fittings supplied by Mechanical and Supply, tested to hold for such time as the silo judges reasonable, and made ready with the utmost care.

- (a) The suit provided to any citizen sent to clean is assembled and sealed to a specification set by Information Technology, exercised under such further procedure as that Department alone is instructed in, this Pact not setting down that procedure here, for it is no part of ordinary citizenship. Mechanical and Supply furnish the cloth, seals, and fittings the specification requires, but the specification itself, and the final sealing, are Information Technology's alone. A suit known to be faulty shall not be sent out.

- (b) Information Technology under Article 8 monitors the sensors after a citizen emerges to confirm the citizen has begun and completed the cleaning, and reports this finding to Judicial for the archive under Article 6. The citizen is not informed of the manner of their death, nor of the time it takes.
- (c) A citizen's refusal of the suit, or of any part of the preparation Section 2 requires, is not grounds for a stay or a reprieve; the refusal is entered in the chamber's record under Section 4, and the departure proceeds as this Article provides.
- (d) The citizens of Information Technology who assemble, seal, and administer the suit and the chamber are entered into that trade only by full shadowing under Article 13, and are vetted beyond the ordinary measure Article 13 there provides, as befits a trade nearer than any other to the silo's gravest and most final procedure. The particulars of that further vetting are kept by the Head of Information Technology and are no part of ordinary citizenship.

SECTION 4. THE AIRLOCK AND THE DEPARTURE

The airlock stands at the silo's uppermost level, beyond the wallscreen and its cafeteria, and it is through this chamber alone that a citizen sent to clean departs the silo. This section sets down the plain administration of that departure, that it be carried out with the same order the silo asks of every other procedure it keeps.

- (a) Before the outer door is opened, the citizen is given no fewer than three and no more than five pads of raw wool, drawn from a store kept for this purpose alone and logged, by number issued and number remaining, in the chamber's own record, that the citizen may, once outside, wipe clean the lenses of the outward sensors, so that the wallscreen's image may continue to be gathered as true as it can be kept. A citizen sent to clean under sentence performs this wiping before any other act; a citizen departed by final request performs it if the citizen is willing, and is asked no further than once.

- (b) Before the flush begins, the Officer of Judicial or the Sheriff who brought the citizen to the chamber confirms the inner door is sealed, enters the hour of sealing in the chamber's record by the silo's own clock, and reports the sealing to the technician of Information Technology who oversees the chamber, who countersigns the same entry. The chamber is then sealed and flushed of the silo's own air, by a gas Information Technology alone administers and this Pact does not further describe, that the poison of the world above not be carried back into the silo with the door's opening; the technician enters the flush's completion in the same record, by the same hour and countersignature this section already requires.
- (c) Only once the technician of Information Technology has made the entry required above, confirming the chamber is flushed and the citizen is suited and sealed, does the outer door open. The Officer or Sheriff who accompanied the citizen does not enter the chamber for this final step, and returns to ordinary duty once the inner door is sealed behind the citizen and the record's first entry is made.

SECTION 5. THE PUBLIC WITNESSING OF A CLEANING

A cleaning at the wallscreen of the cafeteria is neither compulsory for any citizen to attend, nor forbidden. The citizens who gather to watch do so of their own choice, and the Sheriff ensures peace among them as any other gathering under Article 7.

- (a) A cleaning is displayed on the wallscreen at the Level 1 cafeteria as it occurs, exactly as the camera and the sensors capture it, without interruption or interference, so that all who wish to know may see the fate of the citizen sent out.
- (b) The gathering to watch is the charge of the Sheriff under Article 7, and the Sheriff shall keep order as at any other public place, and may disperse a crowd that threatens to become disorder, though the gathering itself may not be forbidden.
- (c) After a cleaning is complete, the image on the wallscreen ceases, and the visual record of what transpired outside is kept in the archive under Article 6, preserved for the record but not displayed further.

SECTION 6. THE RITUAL AND THE MEANING

The cleaning answers those offenses that endanger not a single citizen but all citizens at once — the tampering with the sensors, the interference with the works of water, air, and power, the self-killing of a citizen, the forging of the rolls — for these strike at the whole, and the whole must answer.

- (a) No citizen shall be sent to cleaning for a lesser crime than those named under Article 17, Section 4. No Judge may increase this severity, nor may any other office. This severity is fixed and irrevocable.
- (b) The families of citizens sent to cleaning are not barred from continuing to live in the silo, nor marked, nor punished under this Pact, save where the family member themselves has violated the Pact. A child born to a parent who was cleaned is entered in the rolls exactly as any other child.
- (c) No citizen is required to watch a cleaning, nor told by this Pact what to make of having watched one. This Pact sets down only that the measure is taken, and that the silo stands while it is.

SECTION 7. THE CLEANING LAB AND ITS KEEPING

Beside the airlock is a room, and the room is Information Technology's, and this section sets down what of its keeping is a matter of ordinary citizenship.

- (a) The cleaning lab is a room of the silo's uppermost level, between the cafeteria and the airlock, entered by a door Information Technology keeps; no citizen enters it save the technicians of Information Technology assigned to it under Section 3, the citizen sent to clean, and the Officer or Sheriff who conducts that citizen as far as its door; it is not a common area under Article 7, and is not searched under Article 6 save upon the Judge's warrant given with the Head of Information Technology's knowledge.
- (b) The lab keeps a store of the cloth, seals, and fittings Mechanical and Supply furnish under Section 3, received by a technician against a delivery entered by both Departments, and entered again in the lab's own roll by kind and by count; and a store of the wool pads under Section 4, drawn from Supply's own wool and no other, and entered by count at each turn of the season.
- (c) The lab keeps a log, apart from the chamber's record under Section 4, in which is entered every delivery received, every suit assembled and the day of it, every cleaning for which a suit was drawn, and the count of suits standing ready; the count of suits standing ready is reported to the Head of Information Technology at each turn of the season, and to no other office.

- (d) Not fewer than two suits stand ready in the lab at all times, that no request under Section 1 wait upon the making of one; a technician who finds fewer reports it to the Head the same day, and the Head orders the making.
- (e) What is done in the lab in the assembling and sealing of a suit is that Department's charge under Section 3 and no part of ordinary citizenship, and the lab's log is not delivered to the archive, save the count of cleanings for which a suit was drawn, which the Head delivers to the Clerk of Judicial yearly and which is compared against the sentences and the requests entered.

SECTION 8. THE DAYS BETWEEN THE REQUEST AND THE DEPARTURE

A citizen who has asked to go outside, or has been sentenced to, is a citizen still until the outer door opens, and the days between are kept as this section provides.

- (a) A citizen who has made the request under Section 1, or received the sentence under Section 2, is brought by the Officer or the Sheriff to the station of the Sheriff under Article 7 and held there in a cell, and not in the hall of Judicial nor in the lab; the holding is entered in the station roll with the cause, and the citizen is fed the ration, given water, and given a light that is not put out.
- (b) The departure is on the first day, within one cycle of the request or the sentence, on which the technician of Information Technology enters the chamber ready under Section 4; the technician enters it within one cycle, and no departure waits beyond the cycle save under Article 22.
- (c) The citizen's household may visit the citizen in the cell once in each day of the holding, for such time as the Sheriff allows alike to every household, and no other citizen visits save an Officer, a Physician the citizen asks for, or the teacher of a child the citizen asks to see; the Sheriff is present at no visit and hears none.
- (d) The citizen may write a last word, or speak it to the Clerk of Judicial, who writes it, of not more than one leaf; the last word is sealed, entered in the archive beside the request or the sentence, and given to the household after the departure, and is not read by any office save the Judge, who reads it for forbidden speech under Article 16 and strikes what that Article forbids before it is given.

- (e) No officer questions the citizen held under this section as to the request, the offense, or any other matter, and nothing the citizen says in the cell is entered save the last word; a citizen who asks to take back the request is told, once, that the request is final, and is not asked again.

SECTION 9. THE FITTING OF THE SUIT

On the day of the departure the citizen is brought from the cell to the lab, and the suit is put on there, and this is the whole of what this Pact says of the putting-on.

- (a) The Officer or the Sheriff conducts the citizen from the station to the door of the lab by the stair and the cafeteria, at an hour the technician names and the Sheriff posts at the cafeteria's landing, that the citizens who would watch under Section 5 may know it; the citizen walks unbound unless the citizen will not walk, and is not spoken to upon the way save by the household, who may walk beside the citizen as far as the lab's door.
- (b) Within the lab a technician of Information Technology fits the suit to the citizen: the undergarment, the suit, the gloves, the boots, the seals at every joining, and last of all the helmet; the fitting is done by the technician's own hands and no other, in the order the Department's own instruction provides, and the citizen is told at each seal that it is sealed.
- (c) The technician gives the citizen the wool pads under Section 4, and tells the citizen, in these words and no others, that the pads are for the lenses of the outward sensors, that the lenses are found by the wallscreen's own line of sight, and that the wiping is the last labor the silo asks; the technician tells the citizen nothing else of what lies beyond the door, and the citizen is not to ask.
- (d) The helmet's visor is sealed by the technician last of all, and what the citizen sees through it is no part of this Pact.
- (e) A citizen who will not be fitted is entered so under Section 3, and the departure proceeds; a citizen who is fitted and then asks to be unfitted is not, the request being final, and is told so once.

SECTION 10. THE CHAMBER AFTER

When the outer door has closed the chamber is not left; it is made ready again, and the record of the day is closed.

- (a) Upon the outer door's closing, the technician flushes the chamber again, as Section 4 provides for the flush before, and enters the second flush in the chamber's record with the hour; no citizen enters the chamber until the second flush is entered, and no door of the lab is opened to the cafeteria until it is.
- (b) The technician cleans the chamber and the lab, enters the pads issued and the pads remaining as Section 4 requires, enters the suit drawn against the lab's log under Section 7, and closes the chamber's record with the technician's name and the hour; the record is delivered to the Clerk of Judicial the same day by the Officer or Sheriff who conducted the citizen, who waits at the lab's door for it, and is entered beside the request or the sentence under Article 6.
- (c) What remains outside remains outside. No citizen is sent to recover a suit, a pad, or a citizen, and no request to do so is entertained by any office; the outer door is not opened again save for the next departure.
- (d) The wallscreen's image, which Section 5 requires to be shown as the sensors capture it, is shown until Information Technology enters under Article 8 that the sensors were kept and the citizen's death is confirmed, and the word is carried to the Clerk of Judicial and to the household the same day, as Article 19 provides; the chamber's record and that word are entered together, and the name is closed under Article 2.
- (e) The technician who kept the chamber is given the rest day next following, whatever the cycle, and is seen by a Physician under Article 19 within the season, the Department having so provided; the Physician's record of it is kept as any other.

OF HEALTH, THE INFIRMARY, AND THE MIND

In which is set down the care of citizen health, the charge of the Infirmary and the Physicians who tend it, mandatory care for health and the prevention of disease, and the disposition of citizens determined unable to sustain themselves through labor.

SECTION 1. THE CHARGE AND THE PHYSICIANS

The Department of the Infirmary is charged with the health of every citizen: the prevention of disease, the care and recovery of the sick and injured, the certification of fitness for trade and for labor, and the keeping of the records of every citizen's health that the Pact requires. The Infirmary is located on floors within the Mids and is run by the Physicians of the Infirmary, led by a Head Physician appointed and confirmed under the shadowing process of Article 13.

The Infirmary's charge extends to the disorders and afflictions of a citizen's mind no less than of the citizen's body: a Physician who examines a citizen troubled in mind keeps the same record, in the same confidence, and by the same procedure as for any other complaint, and no citizen is treated for such a trouble save by a Physician under this Article.

- (a) A Physician of the Infirmary is licensed by the Head Physician to undertake medical care, and may administer medicines, set broken bones, suture wounds, treat a citizen's disorders of mind, and determine the cause of death under Article 2; no other citizen may undertake such care save where no Physician is available and immediate aid is required to preserve life.
- (b) The Infirmary shall keep records of every citizen's health that the Infirmary observes or is told of: inoculations, treatments received, injuries, illnesses, and such conditions as affect the citizen's fitness for certain labors. These records are kept in the Judicial archive under Article 6, and remain confidential, open to the citizen named and to Judicial only, save where this Pact elsewhere requires disclosure.

- (c) A citizen shall have the right to refuse medical treatment, save where the Pact expressly compels it: the treatment of a communicable disease that threatens the silo; the mandatory health screening set out in Section 2; the fitting and keeping of the measure under Article 3, Section 7; and the examination and restraint of a citizen whom the Judge, upon a referral or petition under Section 6, orders examined.

SECTION 2. MANDATORY CARE AND THE KEEPING OF HEALTH

Every citizen is required to maintain the citizen's own health and to make regular use of the Infirmary's resources for the examination, inoculation, and prevention of disease, as set down by the Head Physician and the Mayor. A citizen who does not maintain such care may be reassigned by the relevant Department head to simpler labor less demanding of health or strength, or to retirement if no lighter labor is available.

- (a) Every citizen of majority shall submit, at intervals set by the Head Physician, to a comprehensive health screening: examination of the citizen's body, testing of the citizen's health records, and attestation of fitness or unfitness for the citizen's current trade. A citizen found unfit by a screening may be reassigned or medically restricted under Article 13.
- (b) A citizen who refuses or repeatedly avoids a mandatory health screening may be compelled to attend by the Sheriff, provided Judicial is notified; a citizen compelled by the Sheriff is entitled to a hearing before Judicial as to whether the screening was in fact mandatory and lawfully required.
- (c) The use of the facilities of recreation — the exercise yards, the baths, the steam rooms, the organized games — is made available by the Infirmary and the Department of Supply for every citizen's health, and citizens are encouraged, but not compelled, to make use of them. Where a citizen's health is observed to be seriously declining, the Head Physician may recommend reassignment or restricted labor as a condition of continued health.
- (d) Citizens of majority shall maintain awareness of emergency-health procedures: the location of the nearest aid station, the treatment of burns and wounds, the recognition of communicable illness and the obligation to report it. Teaching of such matters is the charge of the schooling of Article 15 and of the Infirmary itself.

SECTION 3. COMMUNICABLE ILLNESS AND THE ISOLATION OF THE SICK

The Infirmary has the authority to isolate a citizen believed to have a communicable illness, to compel treatment, and to restrict the citizen's movement and contact with others, all in service to the silo's collective health. No citizen's individual preference overrides this necessity.

- (a) A Physician who believes a citizen to be suffering from a communicable disease shall isolate that citizen, notify Judicial and the Sheriff, and undertake such treatment as the Physician judges necessary. The citizen is entitled to food, water, and care during isolation, but may not leave the isolation area without the Head Physician's written permission.
- (b) A citizen who violates the isolation ordered by a Physician, or who knowingly exposes others to a communicable illness, is answerable under Article 17 for endangerment.
- (c) The silo's water, air, waste disposal, and food-handling are monitored by the Infirmary in consultation with the Department of Mechanical under Article 9 and the Department of Supply under Article 11, that the spread of disease through the silo's systems be prevented.

SECTION 4. DEATH AND THE DETERMINATION OF CAUSE

When a citizen dies, a Physician of the Infirmary shall examine the body and determine the cause of death, entering the finding in the Infirmary records and reporting to Judicial under Article 2. This is the cornerstone of the silo's records and the Judicial archive's understanding of how citizens pass.

- (a) A Physician who examines a body shall, to the best of the Physician's knowledge, determine and report the cause of death, entering the finding upon the Infirmary's own Form of Death — the citizen's name and naming-day, the floor and hour the body was found, the examining Physician's own name, and the finding itself, set down in that order and no other — including whether the death is believed to be by illness, injury, age, or by the citizen's own will outside the clean request under Article 18.
- (b) Where a citizen is believed to have caused the citizen's own death by means other than a clean request under Article 18, the Physician shall report this finding to Judicial upon the same Form, and Judicial shall investigate and determine whether the finding is accurate before closing the rolls under Article 2. This investigation is not delayed; Judicial shall make its determination within a season.

- (c) Where a citizen dies by the cleaning procedure under Article 18, the Form of Death this section otherwise requires is not completed, and a Physician need not be present; Information Technology under Article 8 shall certify instead, by its own record and in its own keeping, that the sensors were properly maintained and the procedure was carried out as ordained, and this certification is sufficient for Judicial to close the rolls, provided the cleaning was either sentenced by the Judge under Article 17 or sought by the citizen's own final request under Article 18, and no evidence suggests otherwise.
- (d) A Physician who falsifies a cause of death, or who fails to report a suspected self-killing to Judicial, is answerable under Article 17 among the gravest offenses.

SECTION 5. RETIREMENT AND THE CARE OF THE AGED AND INFIRM

A citizen who can no longer perform the labor assigned to the citizen — whether by age, illness, or injury — may be retired from labor under Article 13 and shall be cared for by the silo. The Infirmary and the Department of Supply together manage the provision of housing, food, medicine, and comfort for the retired.

- (a) A citizen may petition for retirement after reaching the age at which the Head Physician and the Mayor jointly determine that further labor is no longer expected or possible. A citizen may also petition for early retirement if a chronic illness or permanent injury makes the citizen's current trade impossible; such a petition shall be referred to Judicial for a ruling.
- (b) A retired citizen continues to receive the ration of a citizen under Article 11, plus additional provisions for medicine or care if the Infirmary judges it necessary. A retired citizen's housing is assigned under Article 14 and may not be revoked save by the Head of Supply in consultation with the Head Physician.
- (c) A retired citizen who recovers strength or fitness sufficient to undertake lighter labor may petition to return to work; if approved by the Head Physician and the relevant Department head, the citizen may reenter a trade and will no longer receive retirement provisions beyond the ordinary ration.

SECTION 6. PHYSICIANS' JUDGMENT AND AT-RISK REFERRAL

A Physician of the Infirmary holds responsibility for the wellbeing of the citizens under their care. Where a Physician believes a citizen to be in immediate and critical danger of self-harm, the Physician may refer that citizen to Judicial for protective evaluation and care.

- (a) A Physician who believes a citizen to be in immediate, critical danger of self-harm or deterioration may refer that citizen to Judicial for protective evaluation, using the Physician's own judgment. No Physician is obligated to refer citizens believed to be at risk of lesser danger or slow decline.
- (b) A citizen who fears the citizen is in danger of self-harm may petition Judicial directly for protective evaluation, and may request the Infirmary's care and support without waiting for a Physician's referral. A citizen who petitions Judicial under this clause is entitled to a hearing as to the necessity and form of any protective measures.
- (c) A Physician who observes in a citizen a persistent fixation upon some matter this Pact does not teach or require, carried to the neglect of the citizen's own health, household, or labor, may refer the citizen to Judicial for evaluation under this section, using the Physician's own judgment; no Physician is obligated to make such a referral. A referral under this clause is not itself a charge against the citizen, and creates no mark upon the citizen's record under Article 21 save the fact of the referral and its resolution.

SECTION 7. FITNESS FOR CRITICAL ROLES AND THE SYNDROME

Certain positions carry responsibilities that demand full physical and mental acuity. The Infirmary and Judicial work together to ensure that a citizen holding a critical role under Article 13 is fit to do so, and to identify cases where a citizen's affliction or infirmity requires immediate attention and possible removal from the role.

- (a) A Physician of the Infirmary may, at any time, refer a citizen holding a critical role to Judicial if the Physician believes the citizen's health — mental or physical — is compromised in a way that threatens the silo's safety or the citizen's ability to perform the role. This referral is confidential until Judicial determines whether cause exists to remove the citizen.
- (b) The Syndrome is a wasting of the nerves, beginning in a tremor of the hands and advancing to the failing of the mind and the body's governance, neither inherited nor passed from one citizen to another. No citizen afflicted with it may hold a critical role or any public office, as Article 13, Section 6 provides; a citizen diagnosed with it shall report the diagnosis to the Head Physician, resign any such role or office as that Section requires, and undertake the care the Infirmary recommends.

- (c) The Infirmary shall maintain confidential records of every citizen's Syndrome status, made known to Judicial only where a citizen holds or seeks a critical role. Diagnosis of the Syndrome does not mark a citizen as unfit for ordinary labor; it marks only that the citizen may not undertake work bearing direct responsibility for the silo's welfare or the lives of other citizens.

SECTION 8. CHILDBIRTH AND THE NURSERY FLOOR

Every citizen the silo will ever have comes into it through the Infirmary, and the Infirmary keeps the coming as carefully as it keeps the going.

- (a) The Infirmary keeps, upon its own floors in the Mids, a nursery floor for the bearing of children, with rooms for the bearing, rooms for the lying-in after it, and the keeping of the newly born; the midwives of the Infirmary, a trade of full shadowing under Article 13, keep it under a Physician the Head Physician names.
- (b) A citizen granted a lottery's window under Article 3 is seen by a midwife at each cycle from the window's grant, and a citizen found to be carrying is entered in the nursery's roll, with the day the child is looked for; the household is told the day, and the citizen is set to such labor under Article 13 as the midwife judges the carrying allows, and to no heavier.
- (c) A citizen brought to the bearing is attended by a midwife and, where the midwife asks it, by a Physician, and by such of the citizen's household as the citizen wishes and the room allows; the bearing is entered with the day and the hour and the names of those attending, and the child's birth is attested to Judicial under Article 2 by the midwife who attended it.
- (d) A citizen who has borne a child rests from labor for one season from the bearing, drawing the ration and keeping the dwelling as before, and returns to the trade thereafter at such labor as the Head Physician judges; the married partner or sanctioned partner of the citizen rests from labor for one cycle from the bearing, and the household draws the child's ration from the day of naming.

- (e) A child born dead, or dead before naming, is entered in the nursery's roll and not in the rolls of citizenship, and is given to the soil under Article 11 as any citizen is, with the household present; the lottery's place the child would have filled is counted against the next drawing as a name closed, and the household's window is not extended on its account, nor its grant renewed but by the lottery.
- (f) The midwives keep the newly born on the nursery floor for such days after the bearing as the Physician judges, and no child leaves the nursery floor before naming; a household takes the child home at naming, and a household that cannot is given the nursery's keeping under Article 15 until it can.

SECTION 9. THE FLOORS AND STATIONS OF THE INFIRMARY

The Infirmary is one Department on many floors, that no citizen be farther from care than a citizen can be carried.

- (a) The Infirmary keeps its own floors in the Mids, as Article 1 sets down: the wards of the sick, the rooms of the Physicians, the store of medicines, the nursery floor under Section 8, and the rooms of the dead under Section 4.
- (b) The Infirmary keeps, beyond its own floors, an aid station in each zone: one Up Top near the cafeteria and the station of the Sheriff, one in the Down Deep near the works and the workings, and one on such further floor of the Mids as the Head Physician names; each is kept by an Infirmary aide of short shadowing under Article 13 on every shift of the day, with such medicines and dressings as the Head Physician sets, and a Physician is sent to it upon the aide's word.
- (c) A citizen hurt or fallen sick is carried to the nearest aid station, or to the Infirmary's own floors where the hurt allows the climb, by the citizens nearest, who may not be refused the stair's passage for it under Article 7; a citizen who cannot be carried is kept where the citizen lies and a Physician sent down.
- (d) The store of medicines is kept under lock by the Head Physician, and every medicine given is entered against the citizen's record with the Physician's name; no medicine is sold in the market under Article 12 save by a Physician, as that Article provides, and no citizen keeps a medicine beyond the course the Physician set.

SECTION 10. THE KEEPING OF THE RETIRED

A citizen retired under Section 5 has given the silo a life's labor, and the silo keeps the citizen in the same measure it keeps every other, and asks only what the citizen can give.

- (a) A retired citizen keeps the dwelling under Article 14 the citizen held at retirement, or, where the citizen lived in a Department's own quarters, is lodged by Housing in the Mids within one cycle, near kin where kin will have the citizen; a retired citizen's dwelling is not reassigned for the silo's need save by the Head of Supply with the Head Physician, as Section 5 provides.
- (b) A retired citizen draws the ration as any citizen, and the sustenance in chits under Article 12, and the medicines the Infirmary judges needful; a retired citizen may take such light labor as the Head Physician allows and a Head of Department will give, for chits, and is not bound to it.
- (c) A Physician or an aide sees every retired citizen at each turn of the season, in the citizen's dwelling where the citizen cannot climb, and enters the citizen's condition; a retired citizen found unable to keep the dwelling or the ration alone is lodged by Housing with kin who will take the citizen, or in the wards of the Infirmary, and the citizen's household under Article 3 is told.
- (d) A retired citizen keeps every standing of a citizen: the Assembly under Article 20, the petition under Article 6, the oath once sworn; and a retired citizen's word before Judicial or the Assembly is not weighed the less for the citizen's years.

SECTION 11. THE WORD TO THE HOUSEHOLD

A death is entered in the archive on a Form; it is told to a household by a Physician, in the Physician's own words, and this Pact sets down only what those words must contain.

- (a) Upon a citizen's death, a Physician goes to the household within the same day and tells them of it, and of the cause as the Form of Death under Section 4 will enter it, and of the day and place the body will be given to the soil under Article 11; the Physician tells the household no more of the manner of a death than the Form records, and no less.

- (b) The household may see the body in the rooms of the dead before it is given to the soil, on the day of the giving, for such time as the household asks and the Infirmary's floors allow; a household barred from the body by Judicial's order in a matter under Article 6 is told that there is such an order, and no more.
- (c) Where the Form enters a death as by the citizen's own will outside the request under Article 18, the Physician tells the household so, and that Judicial will make a finding under Article 2 before the name is closed, and the household may be heard at that finding; the Physician does not tell the household what the finding will be.
- (d) Where a citizen died by the cleaning under Article 18, the Physician does not go, there being no Form; the household is told by the Officer or Sheriff who conducted the citizen, on the day of it, that the citizen has gone out, and the household may take the citizen's place at the wallscreen if the household wishes, and may not be compelled to.
- (e) The household of a citizen dead is not visited again by the Infirmary on the death's account, save at the household's asking, and the death is not spoken of by any officer to the household again save as this Pact requires for the rolls, the dwelling, and the ration.

OF ASSEMBLY AND THE COMMON HALLS

In which is set down the Assembly of citizens, the common halls where the Assembly gathers, the speaking of citizens before the Assembly, and the will of the Assembly to amend this Pact or overturn the Mayor's or Judicial's acts where the Pact requires it.

SECTION 1. THE ASSEMBLY OF CITIZENS

The Assembly is the body of all citizens of majority, gathered in one place or by messenger-relay across the floors under Article 21, to hear the Mayor's report and the concerns of the silo, to confirm or remove the Mayor from office, to confirm or remove the Judge from office, to ratify amendments to this Pact, and to rule on disputes between the Mayor and Judicial where this Pact requires their judgment.

- (a) The Mayor convenes the Assembly once yearly, at a time of the Mayor's choosing, to report on the silo's condition and to make recommendations to the citizens. Any citizen of majority may attend this ordinary Assembly and speak.
- (b) The Assembly may be convened in extraordinary session by petition of one fifth of the silo's population of majority, or by the Mayor, or by Judicial where this Pact requires the Assembly's judgment on a matter between the Mayor and Judicial. An extraordinary session must be called within fourteen days of the petition or circumstance requiring it.
- (c) No Assembly session shall last longer than three days without recess; a matter that requires deliberation longer than three days shall be put to the Assembly again, not in continuous session.
- (d) A citizen may send a message to the Assembly in their stead by porter under Article 21, if the citizen is unable to attend in person; such a message may be read aloud in the Assembly and is recorded in the archive.

SECTION 2. THE COMMON HALLS AND THE GATHERING

The Assembly gathers in the large common halls on the Up Top, which are kept by the Department of Supply under Article 11. These halls are reserved for the Assembly and for such other gathering as the Mayor authorizes under Article 4.

- (a) The main common hall of the Assembly, on Level 1, can hold several hundred citizens, and the Mayor shall ensure adequate seating and ventilation for the Assembly. Where more citizens wish to attend than the hall can hold, the overflow may gather at secondary halls and relay the proceedings by porter-relay or, where Information Technology under Article 8 has provided the means, by radio relay to other floors.
- (b) The Sheriff keeps order in the common halls where the Assembly gathers, and may remove a citizen who disrupts the Assembly, provided the citizen is given the reason for removal and may request a hearing before Judicial as to whether the removal was lawful.
- (c) A citizen making a spectacle or a threat in the Assembly halls is answerable under Article 17 as for public disruption or endangerment of the Assembly itself.
- (d) The common halls that serve as cafeterias open before the first labor of the day and close after the last, save the Down Deep's own hall, kept to the hours of the shifts of Mechanical and Mines; a citizen whose labor keeps unusual hours may petition the relevant Head of Department for standing leave to draw food outside these hours, and such leave, once granted, need not be asked again.
- (e) Where the press of citizens wishing to witness a cleaning at the Level 1 wallscreen exceeds the hall's capacity, seating is granted by the same lottery Article 3 provides for the bearing of children, drawn separately and for this purpose alone, that the granting of a scarce place be seen to rest on chance and not on favor.

SECTION 3. THE HEARING BEFORE THE ASSEMBLY

Any citizen may petition to speak before the Assembly, and the Assembly shall hear petitions from any citizen who wishes to raise a matter of silo concern. The Mayor sets the time and order of speaking, but may not refuse a citizen the right to speak, save where the citizen has already disrupted an Assembly.

- (a) A citizen wishing to speak must declare the subject of the address, and the Mayor may set limits on the time of speaking, that no single citizen hold the floor beyond the measure the Mayor sets alike for all, and that a matter of great length be divided among several speakers or several sittings.
- (b) A citizen's address to the Assembly is entered in the archive under Article 6 and may not be censored or removed, save where the address itself is sedition or forbidden speech under Article 16, in which case the Judge may review the archive copy and rule whether the address was rightfully censored.
- (c) A citizen who speaks to the Assembly is protected from retaliation under this Pact; any citizen punished by a Department, the Sheriff, or the Mayor for the fact of having spoken to the Assembly is answerable under Article 17 as for breach of the Pact.

SECTION 4. THE ASSEMBLY'S POWERS OF CONFIRMATION AND REMOVAL

The Assembly, together with the Mayor or Judicial as the case requires, confirms citizens to the highest offices and may remove them. The Mayor serves for the term Article 4 sets, and within it at the Assembly's pleasure; the Judge serves at the Assembly's and Mayor's pleasure.

- (a) The Assembly, at the ordinary sitting that falls in the fifth year of a Mayor's term, elects the Mayor for the term next following, as Article 5 provides, and confirms the citizen so elected.
- (b) The Assembly, in extraordinary session, votes on the removal of the Mayor by petition or by recommendation from Judicial; a removal vote passes upon the affirmative vote of two thirds of the Assembly present.
- (c) The Assembly, in extraordinary session and joined by the Mayor, votes on the confirmation of a new Judge or the removal of a sitting Judge; a confirmation requires a simple majority, and a removal requires two thirds.
- (d) The Assembly shall, when the Mayor convenes an ordinary session, receive a report from the Mayor on the major decisions, standing orders, and resource allocations of the past year, and may petition Judicial to rule on whether any such decision violated the Pact.

SECTION 5. THE AMENDMENT OF THIS PACT

This Pact may be amended only by the Assembly, upon petition from the Mayor or from one fifth of the citizens of majority, and the amendment must pass by two thirds of the Assembly present. Amendments are entered in the archive and in a separate roll of amendments under Article 23.

- (a) The Mayor may recommend an amendment to this Pact and shall present the text of the proposed amendment to the Assembly for deliberation and vote.
- (b) Any citizen or group of citizens may petition for an amendment, provided the petition is signed by at least one fifth of the silo's population of majority, and the Assembly shall vote on the proposed amendment.
- (c) An amendment, once ratified by the Assembly, becomes part of this Pact and binds the silo from that date forward, exactly as if it had been written at the Pact's founding.
- (d) No amendment shall contradict a previous amendment or a prior Pact provision without explicitly repealing or replacing that provision; all amendments are entered in the roll and the archive, so the silo's citizens and Judicial may see how this Pact has grown and changed over time.

SECTION 6. THE VOTE AND ITS COUNTING

A vote of the Assembly is counted, not judged; this section sets down how the count is made and what it includes.

- (a) A vote is taken by the raising of hands in the hall, counted by tellers named by the Judge from among the Officers of Judicial, not fewer than three, who count separately and agree their count aloud before the Clerk of Judicial enters it.
- (b) Where citizens gather at secondary halls under Section 2, or upon their own floors, each such gathering votes in the same manner before the Deputy or Peacekeeper of that floor, who enters the count, the day, and the hour, seals it, and sends it by porter under Article 21 to the hall. A count arriving before the close of the sitting is added to the count of the hall; a count arriving after is entered in the archive but not added, and the fact of it is read at the next sitting.

- (c) The Assembly present, wherever this Pact reckons a vote by it, is the count of every citizen of majority who voted in the hall or by a floor count added under this section, for and against together; a citizen who attends and does not raise a hand is not counted present for that vote.
- (d) A vote on the removal of the Mayor or the Judge, the confirmation of the Judge, the election of the Mayor, or an amendment of this Pact is entered in the archive with its count for and against, and read aloud at the sitting's close; a vote on any other matter is entered with its result alone.
- (e) No citizen may be asked by any officer how the citizen voted, nor be answerable for it; a vote is not a speech under Section 3, but the protection of that section extends to it.

SECTION 7. THE ORDER OF BUSINESS

A sitting of the Assembly keeps an order, that what the silo must hear is heard before what any citizen would have it hear.

- (a) An ordinary sitting hears, in this order: the reading of the rulings under Article 6, Section 2, since the last sitting; the readings this Pact elsewhere requires at the ordinary sitting — the namings under Article 3, the count of the rolls and of their reconciling under Article 2, the relics classified under Article 16, and the sentences of officers under Article 17; the Mayor's report under Section 4; the reckoning of the stores under Article 11; the report that the green list has been kept under Article 22; the election of the Mayor where Section 4 requires it; such amendments as stand proposed under Section 5; and the petitions of citizens under Section 3, in the order of their entry with the Clerk of Judicial.
- (b) An extraordinary sitting hears the matter for which it was called and no other, save that a citizen's petition touching that matter may be heard.
- (c) The Mayor may not adjourn a sitting before its order of business is complete, save for the recess Section 1 requires or where the Sheriff finds the hall unsafe; a sitting so adjourned resumes on the next day the hall can be kept.

OF RECORDS, PORTERS, AND THE POST

In which is set down the keeping of records throughout the silo, the carrying of every citizen's word by porters, wire and radio being reserved to the silo's offices, and the obligation that every transaction of consequence to the silo be preserved in the archive for the memory of the silo's own history.

SECTION 1. THE KEEPING OF RECORDS

Every record the Pact requires to be kept in the Judicial archive under Article 6 is the responsibility of Judicial to keep whole, accurate, and protected from alteration. These records are the silo's memory, and the silo's memory is the silo's greatest treasure after the lives of its citizens.

- (a) The Judicial archive keeps every ruling, every sentence, every death-finding, every amendment, every standing order of the Mayor, and every record of crime and punishment that the Pact assigns to its keeping.
- (b) The archive is kept on Level 1, in the Up Top, in a room secured against fire, flood, and interference, and accessible to Judicial officers only, to the Mayor for review of standing orders, and to any citizen who petitions Judicial to see a record concerning that citizen's own business.
- (c) A citizen may petition to view any record concerning the citizen or the citizen's household, and Judicial shall grant access within one cycle; Judicial may refuse access to records of ongoing investigation or trial, provided the citizen is told the reason for the refusal.
- (d) The archive is backed by a secondary roll kept in secure keeping by the Head of Supply under Article 11, that if fire or catastrophe should strike the primary archive, the silo's records are not wholly lost.

SECTION 2. THE PORTERS AND THE CARRYING OF WORD

Where a message must travel between floors faster than a citizen might walk, or where a message must be kept private between the sender and the recipient, a porter carries the word. Porters are assigned by the Department of Supply under Article 11 and travel the stairs under protection from the Sheriff.

- (a) A citizen of majority may become a porter, and porters are trained by Supply in the keeping of messages, the swift travel of the stairs, and the protection of their charges. A porter's shadow under Article 13 shall be one season or two, as the Head of Supply determines.
- (b) A porter carrying a message has the right of way on the stairs under Article 7; any citizen must yield the porter's passage, and the Sheriff ensures this right is honored.
- (c) A message carried by a porter is sealed if the sender wishes it sealed, and a porter may not read a sealed message, nor may a citizen intercept a message from a porter without the porter's consent, save the Sheriff or Judicial may do so in pursuit of an investigation. An unsealed message is assumed to be open to ordinary view.
- (d) A porter who breaks a sealed message is answerable under Article 17 as for breach of trust; a citizen who intercepts a porter's sealed message is answerable as for theft or tampering, as the case requires.

SECTION 3. OFFICIAL WORD BY WIRE AND RADIO

Word that passes by wire or radio under Article 8 passes only between the offices this Pact names — the Mayor, the Sheriff, Judicial, and the Head of every Department — through the stations Information Technology keeps for that purpose and no other. A citizen's own word between floors, whatever its urgency and whatever fee or favor is offered for it, is a porter's charge under Section 2, and travels by no other means.

- (a) Every word sent by wire or radio between the offices named above is entered by Information Technology in a log noting the sending office, the receiving office, and the hour, and the log is delivered to the Judicial archive at such interval as Judicial requires. Whether the word itself is kept, and for how long, is Information Technology's own charge under Article 8, and this Pact does not set it down.
- (b) An officer who causes a citizen's private word to pass by wire or radio, and a citizen who asks it of an officer, are alike answerable under Article 17, as for the unlicensed carrying of word under Article 8.

- (c) Where an emergency under Article 22 requires the Mayor's order to reach a floor faster than a porter can carry it, that order may pass by the stations of Article 8 to the Deputy's station of that zone under Article 7, and from there by the Deputy's Peacekeepers by voice and by foot to every landing; no further use of the stations is opened by an emergency.

SECTION 4. THE FREIGHT LIFT LOG

The freight lift under Article 9 is logged in every use, and the log is kept in the Judicial archive for the record of what goods, ordered by what citizen and carried to what floor, have moved through the silo. This log is not open to citizens, but is audited by Judicial to ensure the lift is not being used contrary to Article 9.

- (a) Every use of the freight lift shall be logged by the operators of the lift under Mechanical's charge: the goods' description and weight, the citizens ordering the lift, the floor of origin, the floor of destination, the date, and the time.
- (b) The log is kept in duplicate: one copy in the Judicial archive, one in the Mechanical records under Article 9. The two copies are compared once per season by Judicial and the Head of Mechanical to ensure they match and no unauthorized use has been made of the lift.

SECTION 5. THE AMENDMENT LOG

The roll of amendments to this Pact, ratified by the Assembly under Article 20, is kept as a separate record from the main archive, so that citizens may see how the Pact has changed since its founding. This roll is kept in the Judicial archive and printed at the end of every copy of this Pact, as Article 23 provides.

- (a) Every amendment ratified by the Assembly is entered, in order of ratification, in the Amendment Log, that order and no other reckoning fixing its place, with the text of the amendment and a statement by the Judge as to whether Judicial found any conflict between the amendment and existing provisions.

- (b) A citizen may view the Amendment Log in the Judicial archive or may read it at the end of any printed copy of this Pact, and may petition Judicial for an explanation of any amendment's text.

SECTION 6. THE CLASSES OF RECORD AND THEIR KEEPING

The archive is not one roll but many, each kept in its own class, that a record may be found by the Article that made it.

- (a) The Judicial archive keeps its records in classes, each in its own roll: the rolls of citizenship under Article 2; the rulings and sentences under Article 6; the standing orders of the Mayor under Article 4; the licenses under Article 8; the orders of work under Article 9; the reckonings of the stores under Article 11; the ledgers of the Chit-Keepers under Article 12; the records of schooling under Article 15; the relics classified under Article 16; the records of the Infirmary under Article 19; the counts of the Assembly under Article 20; the logs of the freight lift and of official word under this Article; and the Amendment Log under Article 23.
- (b) No record of any class is destroyed, whatever its age. A record too worn to be read is copied by the archivist, the copy attested by the Judge, and the worn original kept beside it.
- (c) The archivist of Judicial, raised by short shadowing under Article 13, keeps the classes in order, enters what the Clerk of Judicial delivers, and reports to the Judge at the turn of every season what has been entered and what remains unentered.
- (d) The secondary roll under Section 1 is a copy of the rolls of citizenship, the rulings, the sentences, and the Amendment Log, and of no other class, copied at the turn of every season and carried to the Head of Supply's keeping by an Officer of Judicial.

SECTION 7. THE COPYING AND KEEPING OF THIS PACT

Every printed copy of this Pact is the archive's copy at one remove, and is kept true to it.

- (a) The printed copies of this Pact under Article 1 are made from the archive copy alone, by the archivist, and each is compared against the archive copy before it is placed; a copy is marked with the floor of its placing and the season of its making.

- (b) Every printed copy is compared against the archive copy once yearly by an Officer of Judicial, and a copy found altered, damaged, or wanting is replaced within the season, the fact of any alteration being reported to the Judge.
- (c) Any citizen may copy this Pact, in whole or in part, by the citizen's own hand and for the citizen's own use, and may not be hindered in it; but no citizen may alter a printed copy, nor place a copy of the citizen's own making where a printed copy is placed, nor pass off as this Pact any writing that is not. To do so is answerable under Article 17 as for the false teaching of the founding under Article 16, Section 3.
- (d) Upon the ratification of an amendment, the archivist enters it in the Amendment Log of every printed copy within one season, in the archivist's own hand, and the entry is compared as this section provides.

SECTION 8. THE OCCUPANT CARD

Every citizen of majority carries the rolls' entry of the citizen, in small, upon the citizen's own person.

- (a) The occupant card under Article 2 is made by the archivist upon a citizen's oath, of a stock kept by Judicial for the purpose alone, and bears the citizen's name, naming-day, floor and household, and trade, in the archivist's hand, with the Judge's mark; no other citizen makes one, and a card not so made is a false writing under Article 16, Section 3.
- (b) A citizen shows the card to Judicial, the Sheriff, Housing, or Supply upon their requiring it, as Article 2 provides, and to no other office without the citizen's own consent; an officer who requires it enters nothing from it save what the office's own roll requires.
- (c) A citizen whose floor, household, or trade changes brings the card to the Clerk of Judicial within one cycle of the change, and the archivist enters the change upon the card and in the rolls together; a card that no longer matches the rolls is not the citizen's fault where the change was reported under Article 2 and not entered.
- (d) A card lost, worn, or destroyed is replaced by the archivist within one cycle upon the citizen's word before the Clerk, and the old card, where it is found, is returned and destroyed by the archivist and the destruction entered; a citizen found carrying another citizen's card, or two cards, is answerable under Article 17.

- (e) A citizen sent to clean, or dead, surrenders the card, or the household does, to the Officer or the Physician who attends, and it is returned to the archivist and kept in the archive beside the closing of the name.

SECTION 9. A CITIZEN'S READING OF THE CITIZEN'S OWN RECORD

What the archive holds of a citizen is the citizen's to read, and the reading is kept as carefully as the record.

- (a) A citizen who petitions under Section 1 to read a record of the citizen's own is shown it by the archivist, in the archive's own reading room, within one cycle; the archivist enters the reading, the day, and the record shown, and the citizen may make a copy by the citizen's own hand and may not take the record away.
- (b) A citizen may read the citizen's own entry in the rolls, the citizen's health record under Article 19, the citizen's schooling record under Article 15, any sentence or grace against the citizen's name, any ruling of Judicial in a matter the citizen brought or was heard in, the ledger of the citizen's chits under Article 12, and any report or referral this Pact allows to be entered against the citizen's name; a citizen may not read the record of another, nor of a ward not the citizen's own, nor a record of a matter still in the docket.
- (c) A citizen who believes a record of the citizen's own to be in error petitions Judicial for correction under Article 2, and the correction, where Judicial makes it, is entered as Article 6 provides, the original standing beside it; a citizen may enter beside any record of the citizen's own, without petition, a writing of the citizen's own of not more than one leaf, which the archivist keeps with the record and shows with it, and which alters nothing.
- (d) A household may read the record of a ward of the household as the ward could read it upon majority, save a report under Article 15, Section 7, or Article 19, Section 6, made against the household's own keeping of the ward, which the household may read only upon Judicial's leave.

SECTION 10. THE PORTERS' ROLL AND THE DISPATCH

The porters go where the silo's word must go, and the silo knows where they went.

- (a) Supply keeps a dispatch of porters Up Top, beside the station of the Sheriff, and a dispatch in the Mids and one in the Down Deep on the floors where the Deputies' stations are kept under Article 7; each is kept by a head porter of short shadowing, who keeps the porters' roll of that dispatch.
- (b) A citizen who would send word by porter brings it to a dispatch, and the head porter enters the sender, the floor sent to, the hour, whether the word is sealed, and the porter who takes it; the porter enters at the far dispatch, or at the landing of the floor where no dispatch is, the hour of delivery and the hand it was given into, and the head porter enters the return. The two entries are compared at each turn of the season and delivered to the archive.
- (c) A porter carries word for chits under Article 12, at a rate the Head of Supply sets by the floors climbed and posts at every dispatch; word for Judicial, the Sheriff, or the Infirmary in a matter that cannot wait is carried first and without charge, upon the office's mark, and word for the Assembly under Article 20 likewise.
- (d) A porter carries small goods as well as word, by the same roll and the same rate, up to such weight as the head porter sets for each porter's own strength; goods beyond it go by the freight lift under Article 9 where the lift runs, and by a work crew of Supply where it does not.
- (e) The porters keep the practice of the stair under Article 7, take the rest day in turn as the generator tenders do under Article 9, and are seen by the Infirmary at each turn of the season, the stair being labor as hard as any the silo asks.

SECTION 11. THE SEAL

A word sealed is a word the silo has agreed not to read, and the seal is the silo's own.

- (a) A seal is a mark set in wax or in clay over the fold of a writing by a seal-stamp kept for the purpose; the stamps of the silo are made by Mechanical under Article 9 to a pattern the Judge keeps, one for each office, one for each dispatch, and one for the Chit-Keepers, and no other stamp is made, kept, or used by any citizen.

- (b) A citizen who would seal a private word brings it to a dispatch, and the head porter sets the dispatch's seal upon it in the citizen's sight and enters it sealed; the seal is broken only by the hand named in the roll, or by the Sheriff or Judicial under Section 2, who enter the breaking and the cause.
- (c) A word sealed by an office under its own stamp is official word, and is opened only by the office it is sent to; an officer who opens a sealed word not sent to that office, and a citizen who opens any sealed word not the citizen's own, are answerable under Article 17 as Section 2 provides.
- (d) A seal-stamp lost or stolen is reported to the Judge the same day, and the Judge orders a new pattern cut for that office or dispatch and the old pattern entered as void; a citizen found with a seal-stamp, or with a thing made to counterfeit one, is answerable under Article 17 as for the counterfeiting of a chit under Article 12.

OF EMERGENCY AND THE SUSPENSION OF ORDINARY LAW

In which is set down what constitutes an emergency that threatens the whole silo, and how the Mayor, Judicial, and the Heads of Departments may act beyond the ordinary Pact to preserve the silo's survival.

SECTION 1. THE DECLARATION OF EMERGENCY

An emergency exists when the silo faces a threat to its survival or the survival of a substantial portion of its citizens: catastrophic damage to the water or air systems, failure of the generator, breach of the outer walls, disease threatening the whole silo, or such other emergency as the Mayor and Judicial jointly determine. In an emergency, ordinary procedures may be set aside, but only by the Mayor and Judicial acting together, and never for longer than one season without renewal of the emergency by Assembly vote.

- (a) The Mayor may declare an emergency and notify Judicial and the Heads of Departments. Judicial may challenge the declaration, and if challenged, Judicial shall rule whether the emergency is genuine, and the ruling is final.
- (b) An emergency suspends this Pact's ordinary procedures for a time set by the Mayor and Judicial jointly, not to exceed one season; if the emergency continues beyond one season, the Mayor must petition the Assembly for renewal of the emergency, and the Assembly must ratify the renewal by simple majority vote.
- (c) During an emergency, the Mayor may order citizens to work beyond their ordinary labor hours, may redirect resources from one Department to another as the emergency requires, and may restrict citizen movement between floors as necessary to preserve the silo's essential functions.

- (d) During an emergency, Judicial may hear and judge an offense with such swiftness as the emergency requires, and the hearing Article 6 grants for an offense not among the gravest may be shortened but not refused. No measure of correction beyond those Article 17 names may be given, and no offense not named among the gravest may be answered by cleaning, in emergency as in ordinary times, whatever order is given by any office.

SECTION 2. THE GREEN LIST AND EMERGENCY PROTOCOL

In advance of any known emergency, the Mayor and the Heads of Departments maintain a protocol, called the green list, known to Judicial and to the Head of every Department, setting down in advance what measures must be taken in each kind of emergency — the sealing of certain floors, the rationing of water or air, the order in which the generator's power is given and withheld, the shutting down of what the silo can spare. This list is updated yearly and kept in the Judicial archive.

- (a) A citizen ordered to follow the green list protocol during an emergency shall obey that order as though it were a standing order of the Mayor, and may not refuse or delay the order, save Judicial rules during or after the emergency that the order was not a genuine emergency requirement.
- (b) The green list is not part of this Pact and is not open to citizen review or publication, save where a citizen has appealed an order given under the green list and Judicial is reviewing whether the order was lawful. The green list is maintained in secure archive under Article 21 and its contents and updates are the sole determination of the Mayor and Heads of Departments.
- (c) The green list is maintained by the Mayor in consultation with Judicial and the Heads of every Department, and is updated not less than once yearly, before the Assembly's ordinary session; the fact of its updating, but not its contents, is reported to the Assembly at that session, so that the Heads of Departments know the current protocol and every citizen knows that one is kept.

SECTION 3. THE DURATION AND THE END OF EMERGENCY

An emergency, once declared, holds for the time set by the Mayor and Judicial. At the end of that time, the emergency is lifted, and the Pact's ordinary procedures resume in full. If the emergency continues, it must be renewed.

- (a) At the end of the time set for the emergency, all extraordinary measures cease, and all citizens released to other duties resume those duties. Any citizen held or assigned to emergency labor shall be reassigned to ordinary labor or compensated for the extraordinary work by the Mayor or the Department concerned.
- (b) An emergency renewed beyond one season requires Assembly ratification; an emergency lasting longer than two seasons must be ratified anew by Assembly vote once per season thereafter.
- (c) Any order given during an emergency that violates this Pact in a way not authorized by the emergency declaration is answerable under Article 17, and a citizen obeying such an order is not punished; the responsibility rests with the officer who gave the unlawful order.

SECTION 4. THE HOLDING OF A FINAL REQUEST IN ABEYANCE

In the gravest emergency, where the silo's survival itself is at stake, the Mayor and Judicial may jointly hold in abeyance the requirement under Article 18 that a citizen requesting to go outside be sent to the cleaning without delay. A citizen whose request is so held remains in the silo and shall be assigned to such labor as the emergency requires.

- (a) A citizen's final request under Article 18 may be held in abeyance, not suspended, during an emergency, by the Mayor and Judicial jointly, for the duration of the emergency only; a citizen whose request is held in abeyance may renew it at any time after the emergency ends.
- (b) A citizen whose request is held in abeyance may petition Judicial for a ruling that the emergency no longer poses a genuine threat to the silo's survival and that the citizen's request should be honored; Judicial shall rule within one cycle of the petition.
- (c) No citizen's request shall be permanently denied or forgotten; if the emergency lasts longer than the citizen's own life, the citizen's death is recorded in the rolls without the cleaning, and the request is entered in the archive as unfulfilled but not denied.

SECTION 5. THE NECESSITY AND THE RESTRAINT

Emergency powers exist to preserve the silo; they are not given to expand the Mayor's or Judicial's authority. A citizen may petition Judicial after an emergency to rule whether any order given during the emergency was necessary to the survival, and Judicial may order compensation or restitution if the order was deemed unnecessary.

- (a) After an emergency ends, Judicial shall, within one season, review any emergency orders given and determine whether they were necessary to the stated emergency purpose. Orders found to be unnecessary or excessive may trigger compensation to citizens harmed by them.
- (b) A citizen who dies or is injured in service to an emergency order determined by Judicial to have been necessary is remembered in the archive, and the citizen's household may petition for compensation under Article 17's restitution provisions.

SECTION 6. THE ANNOUNCEMENT OF AN EMERGENCY

An emergency binds no citizen who has not been told of it, and the telling is done by one road for every floor.

- (a) Upon the declaration under Section 1, the Mayor sends the fact of it, the kind of emergency, and the measures first ordered by the stations of official word under Article 8 to the Sheriff, the Judge, and the Head of every Department, and by the same stations to each Deputy's station under Article 7; the Deputies send Peacekeepers to every landing of their zones, who cry the emergency at the landing and post the Mayor's notice there, in the Mayor's own words, within one hour of its reaching the station.
- (b) A citizen who hears the emergency cried goes to the citizen's own dwelling, or to the citizen's own floor of labor where the citizen's trade is one the emergency requires, and remains there until a further order reaches the landing; a citizen on the stair goes to the nearest landing and waits upon the Peacekeeper's word.
- (c) Every further order of the Mayor under this Article reaches a floor by the same road, and is posted at the landing with the hour, and no order binds a floor before it is posted there; a Peacekeeper who posts an order enters the hour, and the entries of every landing are gathered by the Deputy and delivered to the archive when the emergency is lifted.
- (d) Word that cannot wait for the stair passes by the stations as Article 21 allows, to the Deputy or Peacekeeper of the floor and no further;

word from a floor to the Mayor passes by porter, or by the Peacekeeper to the Deputy's station and thence by the station of official word.

SECTION 7. THE SEALING OF A FLOOR

A floor is sealed only against a danger that would otherwise pass beyond it, and a sealed floor is not a floor abandoned.

- (a) The Mayor may order a floor, or a range of floors, sealed against the passage of citizens where the emergency is a disease under Article 19, a fouling of the air or the water, or a breach of the silo's structure; the order names the floors, the cause, the Peacekeepers who keep the seal at the landings above and below, and the day it is to be reviewed, which is not more than one cycle after; and no seal stands beyond one season save by the Assembly's renewal under Section 3.
- (b) A sealed floor draws the ration from its own station under Article 11, filled by Supply's runners to the landing and no further, and draws its water and air as before; where the emergency is a fouling of the water or the air, Mechanical carries the sealed floor's water to the landing and Supply its air in such vessels as it keeps for the purpose, and the Infirmary's aide is sent within the seal and remains there.
- (c) A citizen within a sealed floor may send word by the Peacekeeper at the landing, who carries it to the Deputy's station as Section 6 provides, and the household of a citizen sealed on a floor not the citizen's own is told where the citizen is; a citizen may not pass the seal in either direction save a Physician, a Peacekeeper, or a citizen of Mechanical the Head sends, and a citizen who does is answerable under Article 17 as for the violation of isolation under Article 19.
- (d) A citizen who dies within a sealed floor is examined by the Physician within the seal, and the Form of Death under Article 19 is sent out by the Peacekeeper, and the body is kept within the seal in such manner as the Physician orders until the seal is lifted, and given to the soil under Article 11 then.
- (e) The Judge reviews every seal at the day the order names, upon the reports of the Physician, the Head of Mechanical, and the Deputy, and enters whether the cause stands; a seal whose cause the Judge finds to have passed is lifted the same day, whatever the Mayor's order said.

SECTION 8. THE RATION IN EMERGENCY

The ration is lessened in emergency as it is lessened at any shortfall, alike for every citizen; this section sets down only the order in which the silo's other draws are lessened before it.

- (a) Upon a shortfall of food, water, air, or power in an emergency, the Mayor orders the lessening in this order and no other, each draw lessened to what the emergency requires before the next is touched: the market under Article 12 is closed; the recreation of Article 19 and the lights of the common halls are stopped; the servers' share under Article 8 is lessened; the farms' share under Article 11 is lessened, and the beds let go dry in the order the Head of Supply enters; the reserve under Article 11 is opened by the Mayor's written order; and last, the ration itself is lessened under Article 11, alike for every citizen.
- (b) The works of Article 9, the Infirmary, and the stations of official word are not lessened in any emergency save where the Head of Mechanical enters that the generator cannot bear them, and then by the Head's order and not the Mayor's.
- (c) The Head of Supply reports to the Mayor and the Judge at each cycle of an emergency what the stores hold and how many cycles they will hold at the emergency's draw, and the report is posted at every landing with the Mayor's orders under Section 6.
- (d) A citizen who draws, keeps, or sells in an emergency beyond the ration the emergency allows is answerable under Article 17 as for the diversion of stores, and the grace of that Article's first offense is not given for it.

SECTION 9. THE LABOR OF EMERGENCY

The silo's work does not stop for an emergency; it changes hands.

- (a) The Mayor may assign any citizen of majority to any labor the emergency requires, beyond the citizen's trade and beyond the ordinary hours of Article 13, by an order posted at the landing naming the floor, the labor, and the Head under whom it is done; a citizen so assigned works under that Head as under the citizen's own, and the Head enters the citizen in the Department's roll for the emergency's span.

- (b) The rest day under Article 1 is not owed in an emergency, and no citizen is owed a substitute for it; but no citizen labors more than two shifts in any day save the tenders of the works, and every citizen assigned is fed at the labor's floor from the station there.
- (c) A citizen assigned to a critical role's labor under Article 13 in an emergency, or to the works, or to the workings, works only beside a citizen confirmed in that trade and does nothing alone; a citizen so assigned is not thereby of the trade, and is not vetted, and is bound by the entry Article 8, Section 11 provides where the labor was that Department's.
- (d) A citizen hurt or killed in the labor of emergency is entered in the roll of accidents of the Department under whose Head the labor was done, and the household petitions for restitution under Section 5 and Article 17; a citizen who cannot return to the citizen's own trade after is reassigned or retired under Article 13 as for a hurt in the trade.

SECTION 10. THE LIFTING OF AN EMERGENCY

An emergency ends as it began, by a declaration told to every floor, and what it cost is counted after.

- (a) The Mayor lifts an emergency by a declaration sent and posted as Section 6 provides, naming the day and the hour; every seal, every assignment of labor, every lessening under Section 8, and every order given under this Article ceases at that hour, save such as the Judge continues under Section 3 for a stated cause and a stated span, entered.
- (b) Within one cycle of the lifting, every Department returns its citizens to their own trades and floors, Housing under Article 14 lodges anew any citizen whose dwelling the emergency took, and Supply resumes the ration in full and reports to the Mayor the day the reserve will be made good.
- (c) Within the same cycle, the Deputies deliver to the archive the entries of every landing under Section 6, the Physicians the Forms of every death within a seal, and every Head the roll of the emergency's labor and accidents; the Judge's review under Section 5 begins upon the delivery, and is read at the next sitting of the Assembly under Article 20.

- (d) The Mayor's report at that sitting states the emergency's cause, its span, the measures ordered, the stores spent, the citizens hurt and dead, and what the green list under Section 2 is to be changed to on the emergency's account; the change is entered before the next ordinary sitting, as Section 2 provides, and the Assembly is told that it has been.

OF AMENDMENT AND THE CONTINUANCE OF THE PACT

In which is set down how this Pact may be altered by the silo's citizens acting together, what no amendment may diminish, and what stands beyond the Assembly's reach altogether, that the silo's continuance not be undone by well-meant hands.

SECTION 1. THE PROCESS OF AMENDMENT

This Pact may be amended by the Assembly, gathered in Assembly under Article 20, upon proposal from the Mayor or petition from one fifth of the silo's citizens of majority. An amendment requires the affirmative vote of two thirds of the Assembly present.

- (a) The text of a proposed amendment shall be made known to all citizens not fewer than fourteen days before the Assembly vote, and citizens shall have the right to speak to the amendment in the Assembly or to send messages under Article 21 raising objections or support.
- (b) An amendment, once ratified, is entered in the Amendment Log maintained under Article 21 and becomes part of this Pact from the day of ratification forward. All earlier editions of this Pact remain in the archive for the record.
- (c) No amendment may be repealed save by a later amendment, ratified in the same manner as the first.

SECTION 2. THE LIMITS ON AMENDMENT

Certain truths are so fundamental to the silo's nature that no amendment may alter them, lest the silo cease to be a place where citizens may live.

- (a) No amendment may eliminate a citizen's right to petition for a final request to go outside, nor may an amendment make that request answerable as an offense under this Pact.
- (b) No amendment may eliminate the lottery for children under Article 3, nor may an amendment increase a citizen's burden of labor beyond the capacity any ordinary citizen might bear.
- (c) No amendment may remove Judicial's right to rule where this Pact is silent, nor may an amendment subordinate Judicial to the Mayor's authority without the Assembly's explicit consent.
- (d) No amendment may eliminate a citizen's right to know the content of this Pact, to view records concerning the citizen under Article 21, or to speak before the Assembly under Article 20.
- (e) No amendment may codify inequality before the law; every citizen shall remain equal under the Pact, save where the Pact itself explicitly provides differences by office, trade, or age.
- (f) No amendment may alter the founding as Article 1 records it, nor compel any Department to disclose the manner, location, or working of any matter this Pact elsewhere commits to that Department's own procedure and does not itself set down.
- (g) An amendment touching any limit named in this section takes no effect upon the Assembly's vote alone. It further requires the written concurrence of the Judge and the Head of Information Technology, given only upon their joint finding that the amendment works none of the harms this section forbids. An amendment lacking such concurrence is void, whatever majority approved it, and is struck from the Log as though never ratified.

SECTION 3. THE AMENDMENT LOG

Amendments to this Pact, ratified by the Assembly, are recorded in a separate roll under Article 21 and are printed at the end of every copy of this Pact, as its Appendix, so that any citizen may see how the law has grown and changed.

- (a) Each amendment is entered in its order of ratification, with the text of the amendment in full and a brief notation of what Article or Section it amends or adds.
- (b) The Amendment Log is maintained in the Judicial archive, and a backup copy is kept by the Department of Supply under Article 11.

- (c) Any citizen may petition Judicial to examine the Amendment Log and to ask for an explanation of any amendment's import or consequence.

SECTION 4. THE CONTINUANCE AND THE RENEWAL OF THE PACT

This Pact is made for the continuance of the silo and the protection of every citizen who dwells here. It shall endure as long as the silo stands, and shall bind every citizen born or entering the silo until the citizen's death or final release.

- (a) Every citizen of majority takes an oath to know this Pact, to obey it, and to call others to obey it, under Article 2. This oath is binding and sacred.
- (b) The Mayor, the Judge, the Sheriff, and every Head of Department swear at their assumption of office to defend this Pact against those who would breach it, and to enforce this Pact fairly and without favor.
- (c) Should the silo ever cease to stand, or should the citizens ever no longer dwell here, this Pact ends. But while the silo stands and citizens dwell within it, this Pact shall govern, and every citizen shall be bound by it.

APPENDIX A

AMENDMENT LOG

AMENDMENTS RATIFIED SINCE THE FOUNDING

The following amendments have been ratified by the Assembly of the silo since this Pact was first adopted. Each is entered below in the order of its ratification, with the text of the amendment and a note of its effect. The Pact does not itself reckon a calendar from the founding, and this Log follows the Pact's own practice: an amendment's place here is fixed by its order, not by a year that binds it to a count no citizen is asked to keep.

Amendment 1: The Housing Proviso

Ratified in the silo's early years, not long after the offices of this Pact had settled into their ordinary practice.

"Section 1 of Article 14 is amended to add the following clause: 'A citizen whose dwelling is revoked under this Section may petition Judicial to reduce or stay the revocation, provided the citizen has made a good-faith effort to remedy the breach that occasioned it and sufficient time has passed for remedy to have been possible.' The remainder of Section 1 is unchanged."

Effect: Judicial is given explicit discretion to allow remediation before imposing housing revocation. This amendment reflects the principle that citizens are given opportunity to correct small breaches before suffering larger penalties.

Amendment 2: The Testimony Entered into the Lottery

Ratified in the generation after Amendment 1, upon a petition of citizens rather than the Mayor's proposal, the first amendment so brought.

"Article 3, Section 6 is amended to add, before its clauses, the following: 'It is recorded, though not by the name of the household, that a citizen who waited three years for a lottery slot, and buried a stillborn child in the fourth, came before the Assembly and said that this balance, hard as it had been to bear, was the same balance that had kept her own mother fed as a child, and asked that no citizen be spared the waiting who had not first been spared the alternative. This Pact does not require any citizen to feel as she felt. It asks only that every citizen know such a citizen has lived, and judged as she judged.’ The remainder of Section 6 is unchanged.”

Effect: No requirement of the Section is altered; a citizen’s testimony is set within it, that the lottery’s necessity be heard in a citizen’s voice as well as the Pact’s. The Assembly’s record notes that the petitioners first asked the Judge whether a citizen’s words might be entered into the Pact at all, and that the Judge ruled they might, provided the household went unnamed, as no other citizen is named anywhere in the Pact.

Amendment 3: The Rumor Proviso

Ratified in the same generation as Amendment 2, upon the Mayor’s proposal, after a season the Mayor’s own report to the Assembly called a season of loose talk.

“Article 16, Section 2 is amended to add: ‘Forasmuch as a rumor is a leak in the hull no less than a crack in the wall, and a hull is kept whole by the many hands that stop it and not by the one that made it, every citizen who hears a rumor of the kind this Section forbids shall report it to the Sheriff within one hour of the hearing, and the Sheriff shall enter the report, the hour, and the name of the citizen reporting, and no report so entered shall be held against the citizen who made it, whatever the rumor proved.’ The remainder of Section 2 is unchanged.”

Effect: A duty to report rumor is added to the duty Section 1 already lays upon a citizen who hears the forbidden word, and an hour is set for it. The Judge afterward ruled, under Article 6, Section 2, that the hour is reckoned from the citizen’s reaching a landing where a Deputy is posted, and not from the hearing itself, no citizen upon the stair being able to keep it otherwise; the ruling stands entered beside the amendment.

Amendment 4: The Retirement Entitlement

Ratified some years after Amendment 2.

“Article 19, Section 5 is amended to require that a retired citizen receive, in addition to the ordinary ration, a medicine stipend adequate to the cost of common treatments, and that the Infirmary provide the same care to a retired citizen as to a citizen still in labor. The remainder of

Effect: Retired citizens are guaranteed medication and continued medical care rather than left to purchase such care from their ration chits.

Amendment 5: The Appeal of Judicial Sentence

Ratified some years further on.

“Article 6, Section 4 is amended to add: ‘A citizen sentenced to the mines under Article 17 may petition Judicial to review the sentence once the citizen has served half the term originally set, and the Judge may shorten the remainder of the term if the citizen has demonstrated good conduct and honest labor throughout the sentence’s duration, or if material new evidence has emerged bearing on the citizen’s guilt. No such review shall reduce a sentence’s total length by more than half of what was originally imposed.’ The remainder is unchanged.”

Effect: Citizens in the mines are given a pathway to early release at the midpoint of good behavior, though no sentence may be halved more than once, and the core of every sentence must still be served.

Amendment 6: The Right to Counsel

Ratified in the years following Amendment 5.

“Article 6, Section 4 is amended to add: ‘A citizen accused of an offense not among the gravest named under Article 17 may request that another citizen be permitted to speak on the accused’s behalf before Judicial, that the Judicial hearing not be conducted in isolation. Judicial shall grant such request, provided the speaking-citizen is not themselves under prosecution and has not been barred from Assembly by prior judgment.’ The remainder is unchanged.”

Effect: Citizens are permitted advocates in non-gravest trials, though the form and scope of advocacy remain within Judicial’s discretion.

Amendment 7: The Bounding of the Forgiveness Holiday

Ratified some years after Amendment 6, upon the Mayor’s own proposal, in a season the Mayor’s report called a season of many surrenders.

“Article 4, Section 7 is amended to add: ‘No Forgiveness Holiday shall be declared within five years of the ending of the last, nor shall any run longer than one turn of the season; and the Mayor shall report to the Assembly, at the sitting next following, the number of things surrendered and the number classified among the gravest, without the names of the citizens who surrendered them.’ The remainder of Section 7 is unchanged.”

Effect: The Holiday, which the Pact left wholly to the Mayor’s judgment as to interval and cause, is bounded in both, and a count of what it yields is made known to the Assembly.

Amendment 8: The Syndromic Retirement

Ratified well after Amendment 6, in a season this Log does not further mark.

“Article 13, Section 8 is amended to add: ‘A citizen diagnosed with the Syndrome may petition for retirement under the same process as any other citizen seeking to leave labor, without waiting for the age at which retirement is ordinarily granted. The Head Physician and the Mayor shall approve such petition within one cycle of its filing.’ The remainder is unchanged.”

Effect: Citizens with the Syndrome are permitted to seek retirement at any age if their condition makes continued labor untenable.

Amendment 9: The Restoration of the Holiday

Ratified after Amendment 8, upon a petition of citizens, the second amendment so brought. The text as ratified does not survive in the archive entire: the leaf of the roll bearing it is wanting, and what stands here is the Judge’s reconstruction from the archive’s marginal entry and the recollection of the tellers, entered as authoritative by a ruling under Article 6, Section 2, at the sitting next following.

“Article 4, Section 7, as amended by Amendment 7, is restored to its form before that amendment, Amendment 7 being repealed entire [...] save that the count of things surrendered [...] be kept [...] as the Mayor judges [...].”

Effect: The bound upon the Holiday is lifted, and the Mayor’s judgment as to its interval and cause stands as the Pact first gave it. Whether the count of things surrendered is still required, the reconstruction does not settle; the Mayor’s reports since have given it in some years and not in others.

Amendment 10: The Floor Reassignment Procedure

Ratified some time after Amendment 8.

“Article 14, Section 2 is amended such that: ‘A citizen may petition the Head of Supply for reassignment to a different floor’s housing, and the Head of Supply shall consider such petition with regard to the citizen’s trade, the silo's current needs, and the space available on the requested floor. A denial of such petition may be appealed to Judicial, though Judicial shall confirm the decision where the Head of Supply's reason is plainly stated and grounded in the silo's need.' The remainder is unchanged."

Effect: Citizens gain a formal right to petition for floor reassignment, with Judicial review available for denials.

Amendment 11: The Assembly Quorum

Ratified later still.

"Article 20, Section 1 is amended: 'An extraordinary Assembly session to address a matter of urgent silo need may proceed with not fewer than one third of the silo's population of majority present in the hall or counted from the floors under Section 6, provided the session has been called in accordance with this Article and all citizens have been given not fewer than seven days' notice; a session with fewer present may hear, but may not vote.' The remainder is unchanged."

Effect: The Pact had set no least number for an extraordinary session; this amendment sets one, that a vote taken with few present not be afterward disputed. The ordinary Assembly, to which any citizen of majority may come or send word under this Article, is unaffected.

Amendment 12: The Reporting of Anomalous Signal and Device

Ratified late among those entered in this Log, at the recommendation of the Department of Information Technology, following a matter the Department represented to the Assembly as touching the whole silo's safety. The Assembly's own record of the deliberation preceding the vote does not survive in the Judicial archive in complete form; what is reproduced below is reconstructed from the surviving fragments and the Judge's own summary, entered afterward at Judicial's own insistence that no amendment stand in this Log without some account of its passage.

"Article 16, Section 6 is amended to add: 'Where Information Technology represents to Judicial that a device, signal, or apparatus discovered by a citizen may bear upon matters this Pact does not commit to public record, the citizen who discovers it shall report the discovery to Information Technology directly, and shall not first report it to the Sheriff or to Judicial, notwithstanding any other provision of this Article; and the citizen shall thereafter answer such questions as Information Technology puts to the citizen concerning the manner, place, and circumstance of the discovery. This is not to be understood as a diminishment of Judicial's charge to investigate offenses under this Pact, but as a necessary sequencing of that investigation, that the silo's safety not be made to wait upon a report reaching Information Technology only after having passed through other hands. No citizen who complies with this Section in good faith shall be found to have violated the ordinary reporting requirement this Section otherwise imposes, whatever the outcome of Information Technology's own review proves to be.' The remainder of Article 16 is unchanged."

Effect: A discovery a citizen might once have carried first to the Sheriff or to Judicial is now carried first to Information Technology. The report of the incident that prompted this amendment does not survive in the archive. The concurrence Article 23 requires of the Judge and the Head of Information Technology together, for any amendment touching what this Pact keeps from ordinary record, was given by both offices and is entered in the archive without further note.

Amendment 13: The Narrowing of the Right to Counsel

Ratified after Amendment 12, in a season the Assembly's own call to vote described only as necessary to the Pact's continued good order, without further particular given.

"Article 6, Section 4, as amended by Amendment 6, is further amended: 'The right granted by Amendment 6 to bring a speaking-citizen before Judicial does not extend to an offense under Article 16, Sections 1, 3, 5, or 6, it being the judgment of the Assembly that a hearing upon such an offense ought not be made an occasion for the very speech, teaching, relic, or discovery those Sections forbid.' The remainder of Article 6, Section 4 is unchanged."

Effect: A citizen accused of the forbidden word, the false teaching of the founding, the keeping of a restricted instrument, or interference with the apparatus of the silo's keeping may no longer bring a speaking-citizen to the hearing Amendment 6 otherwise grants. The Assembly's record of its own deliberation is entered in the archive in summary only.

Amendment 14: The Recitation Affirmed

Ratified after Amendment 13, upon the Mayor's proposal, in a season the Mayor's report called a season of forgetting among the young.

"Article 15, Section 3 is amended to add: 'And the teacher shall, before the recitation is taught, say to the children that the silo is a vessel with a hull, and a hull cannot be pierced in one place without the whole of it taking on water, as the Preamble of this Pact says, that the children know why the recitation is kept, and keep it the more gladly for knowing. The remainder of Section 3 is unchanged.”

Effect: A sentence of the Preamble, which every child already hears read at the opening of the school year under Article 15, Section 9, is to be said again before the recitation is taught. The Judge’s statement under Article 21 found no conflict with any provision of this Pact, and no provision altered.

Amendment 15: The Ordinary Pause

Ratified some years after Amendment 14, upon the Mayor’s proposal at the Sheriff’s asking.

“Article 7, Section 2 is amended to add: ‘The ordinary pause for rest upon the stair or a landing, beyond which a citizen may not remain there, is a pause of no longer than a count of two hundred, or of four hundred for a citizen carrying a load, or a child, or retired under Article 19; and the Peacekeeper posted at a landing shall keep the count for any citizen who pauses, and move the citizen on at its end.’ The remainder of Section 2 is unchanged.”

Effect: A pause the Pact left to the Sheriff’s judgment is given a length. The Sheriff’s report to the Assembly at the sitting following gave the number of citizens moved on under this amendment in its first season as none, the Peacekeepers having found no citizen who paused so long that they could reach the count before the citizen moved of their own accord.

Amendment 16: The Naming of Officers in Assembly

Ratified after Amendment 15, upon the Mayor’s proposal at the recommendation of the Judge.

“Article 20, Section 3 is amended to add: ‘The protection this Section gives a citizen who speaks to the Assembly does not extend to an address that names an officer of the silo and imputes to that officer a breach of this Pact, save where the citizen has first brought the matter to Judicial under Article 6 and Judicial has ruled upon it; an address so made without a ruling is struck from the archive, and the citizen is answerable as for a false bringing under Article 17, Section 5, where Judicial afterward finds the imputation false.’ The remainder of Section 3 is unchanged.”

Effect: A citizen who would say before the Assembly that an officer has broken this Pact must first have said so to Judicial. The Assembly’s record of the sitting enters three addresses struck under this amendment at the sitting next following its ratification, without their text.

Amendment 17: The Mayor's Presence at the Tending

Ratified upon a petition of the citizens of Mechanical, the first petition of citizens brought from the Down Deep, after a stopping of the generator for its full tending that ran three days beyond the one day Article 9 allows without the Mayor's written order — the order having been given, the Head of Mechanical represented to the Assembly, too late to be of use.

“Article 9, Section 8 is amended to add: ‘The Mayor shall be present in the Down Deep, at the generator's housing, for the whole of the full tending, and shall sign the log of it beside the Head of Mechanical; and where the tending must run beyond one day, the Mayor's order under this Section is given there, in the log, and not sent.’ The remainder of Section 8 is unchanged.”

Effect: The Mayor attends the yearly full tending and signs its log. The amendment does not say what the Mayor's presence at the housing is to accomplish, and Mechanical's petition, which survives entire in the archive, does not say either.

Amendment 18: The Notice of Revaluation

Ratified twice, the first ratification having been entered in error: the tellers' count under Article 20, Section 6 had added a floor count that arrived after the close of the sitting. The Judge struck the first entry, and the amendment was put again at the sitting following, and carried. Both entries stand in the archive; this Log enters the second.

“Article 12, Section 3 is amended to add: ‘No revaluation of chits under this Section takes effect until one cycle after its announcement to the Assembly, and the Chit-Keepers shall post the revaluation, and the day it takes effect, at every market and every dispatch of porters within one day of the announcement.’ The remainder of Section 3 is unchanged.”

Effect: A revaluation is announced one cycle before it binds. The Assembly's record of the first vote, and the floor count that was wrongly added, are entered under Article 20, Section 6 as that Section provides for a count arriving late.

Amendment 19: The Keeping of the Green List

Ratified after Amendment 18, at the recommendation of the Department of Information Technology, upon the Mayor's proposal.

“Article 22, Section 2 is amended such that the green list is maintained by the Mayor together with the Head of Information Technology, whose concurrence every updating of the list requires, in consultation with Judicial and the Heads of the other Departments as that Section otherwise provides; and the report to the Assembly that the list has been kept is made by the Mayor and the Head of Information Technology together. The remainder of Section 2 is unchanged.”

Effect: The green list, which this Pact gave the Mayor to keep in consultation with Judicial and the Heads, is now kept by the Mayor and the Head of Information Technology together, and no updating stands without both. The concurrence Article 23 requires, for an amendment touching what this Pact keeps from ordinary record, was given by the Judge and the Head of Information Technology; the Judge’s statement under Article 21 found no conflict with any provision of this Pact.

Amendment 20: The Housing Proviso Restated

Ratified last of those entered in this Log, upon a petition of citizens.

“Article 14, Section 1 is amended to add: ‘Where a citizen’s dwelling is to be revoked under this Section, and the citizen has tried in good faith to mend what occasioned the revoking, and there has been time enough for the mending, the citizen may ask Judicial that the revoking be lessened or stayed, and Judicial may so order.’ The remainder of Section 1 is unchanged.”

Effect: This Log enters the amendment as ratified. Its effect, beside Amendment 1, is none that the Judge could find, and the Judge’s statement under Article 21 says so; the Assembly’s record does not show that Amendment 1 was read before the vote.

UNAMENDED PROVISIONS

The following provisions of the Pact have not been amended since its founding and remain in their original form:

- Article 1: Of the Founding and Purpose of the Silo
- Article 2: Of Citizenship and the Census
- Article 5: Of the Deputy Mayor and the Order of Succession
- Article 8: Of the Department of Information Technology
- Article 10: Of the Department of Mines
- Article 11: Of Supply, Hydroponics, and the Ration
- Article 17: Of Crimes and Their Punishments
- Article 18: Of the Cleaning

- Article 21: Of Records, Porters, and the Post
- Article 23: Of Amendment and the Continuance of the Pact

The fact that an Article remains unamended does not indicate that it is unchanging or unchangeable—only that no amendment ratified by Assembly has yet altered it. The founding principles of the Pact remain firm; the amendments recorded above show how the silo’s citizens have chosen to clarify, extend, restrict, and occasionally soften the Pact’s application over time.
